

Rear Admiral (Ret.) Michael G. Beatrice, Ph.D.

Rear Admiral (Ret.) Michael Beatrice was elected Vice President, Corporate Regulatory and Quality Science, Abbott Laboratories by Abbott's board of directors, effective November 1, 1999.

Prior to joining Abbott in his current position, RADM Beatrice was a vice president at Quintiles, in Rockville, Maryland. Before joining Quintiles in 1996, Beatrice, a retired Admiral and Assistant Surgeon General in the United States Public Health Service, was the Deputy Director of FDA's Center for Biologics Evaluation and Research.

His background includes 20 years experience at the FDA, 1 year in the National Institutes of Health (NIH) Product Development Service, a rotational residency at the hospitals of the University of Oklahoma, and practicing pharmacy in both hospital and retail settings.

RADM Beatrice serves on the Executive Advisory Council of The College of Integrated Science and Technology at James Madison University and is a Principal Visiting Staff Member at University College, London. In addition he is a charter member of the Association of Food and Drug Administration Alumni Association, a member of the Association of Food and Drug Officials, and serves on the Board of Directors of the Piven Theatre in Evanston, Illinois and the Lookingglass Theatre in Chicago.

RADM Beatrice earned a Bachelor's degree in pharmacy from the University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, a Master's degree in clinical pharmacy from the University of Oklahoma, Norman, Oklahoma, and a Ph.D. in pharmaceuticals from the University of Maryland in Baltimore.