DEPARTMENTAL APPEALS BOARD

Civil Remedies Division

Viora Home Health, Inc.,

Petitioner,

v.

Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services.

Docket No. C-15-2500

Decision No. CR4369

Date: October 27, 2015

DECISION

I sustain the determination of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) to revoke the participation in the Medicare program of Petitioner, Viora Home Health, Inc. Revocation is authorized because Petitioner was not operational within the meaning of 42 C.F.R. § 424.535(a)(5).

I. Background

Petitioner, a home health agency, requested a hearing in order to challenge the determination of a Medicare contractor – sustained by CMS on initial determination and reconsideration – to revoke Petitioner's participation in Medicare. CMS filed a motion for summary judgment or, in the alternative for a decision based on the written record of the case. CMS filed seven proposed exhibits, identified as CMS Ex. 1 – CMS Ex. 7, with its motion. Petitioner did not file a brief in opposition to CMS's motion but filed five proposed exhibits, identified as P. Ex. 1 – P. Ex. 5. I receive both parties' exhibits into the record.

¹ I gave Petitioner several opportunities to file a brief in opposition to CMS's motion. My initial pre-hearing order directed Petitioner to file a brief on the merits. When Petitioner failed to do so I afforded it another opportunity. Petitioner still did not file a

II. Issue, Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law

A. Issue

The issue is whether CMS is authorized to revoke Petitioner's Medicare participation on the ground that Petitioner was not operational within the meaning of 42 C.F.R. § 424.535(a)(5).

B. Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law

The facts of this case are not complex. Petitioner, in its 2012 application for revalidation as a Medicare participant, listed its business address as 12808 W. Airport Boulevard, Suite 285, Sugarland, Texas 77478 (Airport Boulevard location). CMS Ex. 6. On July 8, 2014, an inspector employed by a Medicare contractor went to that location in order to conduct an onsite inspection. When he arrived there, he discovered that Petitioner was not conducting business at that location. CMS Ex. 4. The contractor and CMS predicated their revocation determination on the fact that Petitioner was no longer doing business at the location that it had listed as its business location in its revalidation application. CMS Ex. 3.

In fact, Petitioner had changed its business location at some point in time after it had filed its revalidation application. As of July 2014 it was no longer doing business at the Airport Boulevard location but had moved its business address to 3711 Pennington Court, Missouri City, Texas 77459 (Pennington Court location). P. Exs. 1, 2.

CMS asserts that its contractor has no record of Petitioner ever notifying it of its change of location. Petitioner did not submit an official form notifying the contractor of its change of address (855 Form) nor did it notify the contractor online via CMS's Provider Enrollment Chain and Ownership System (PECOS). ² In responding to the brief. On October 23, 2015, I issued an order foreclosing Petitioner from filing a brief. On October 26, 2015, Petitioner's representative called my office and insisted that he had attempted to file a brief but that the Departmental Appeals Board's electronic filing system would not accept it. I allowed Petitioner some additional time in order to file its brief. Finally, Petitioner filed a brief later on October 26. I am accepting that brief and I address Petitioner's arguments in this decision.

² Petitioner now contends that it filed an updated 855 Form advising the contractor and CMS of its change of business location. Petitioner's brief at 1. Petitioner does not state when it allegedly filed this form – whether it did so before the unsuccessful July 8, 2014 inspection or subsequently – nor has it offered a copy of this allegedly filed form as proof of its action. I do not find that Petitioner filed an 855 Form properly notifying the determination to revoke its participation Petitioner did not deny that it failed to use either of these official mechanisms for notifying the contractor of its change of business location but it asserted that on August 6, 2013, it sent a letter to the contractor announcing its intent to move from the Airport Boulevard location to the Pennington Court location. P. Ex. 1.

CMS contends that its contractor has no record of ever having received this letter. It contends additionally that Petitioner cannot prove that it actually sent the letter or that it was delivered because it was not sent either as certified or as registered mail. I find it unnecessary to decide whether the letter actually was delivered to the contractor. The letter was an ineffective form of notice and consequently, Petitioner did not comply with its duty as a Medicare participant to notify the contractor of its change of business location.

A provider or a supplier participating in Medicare is required to comply with that program's participation criteria. Its duties include complying with the program's prerequisites for providing notice and information regarding its business location and change of address. Medicare publishes a Program Integrity Manual (Manual) that instructs providers and suppliers as to what information they must provide but just as importantly, how they are to provide that information. The Manual specifically instructs providers and suppliers that they must adhere to all relevant instructions. Manual § 15.1.3. The Manual allows for two ways in which a provider or supplier may provide the Medicare program with notice. It may do so either by filing an 855 Form or via PECOS. Manual § 15.1.2.

The two forms of notice provided for by the Manual are exclusive. The Manual allows for no alternate form of notice. Petitioner was required, when it changed its business location, either to provide the Medicare program with an 855 Form announcing the change, or to notify the program online via PECOS. Sending a letter to the contractor by regular mail is not an acceptable alternative.

This is not an instance of exalting form over substance. I take notice that there are many thousands, if not more, providers and suppliers participating in Medicare. The contractors who administer the program on a day-to-day basis are confronted with immense amounts of information and are responsible for processing and organizing that information. It is essential that they receive relevant information in a routinized way. Receiving it piecemeal or by irregular means poses a real threat to disrupt the orderly administration of the program. Consequently, it is entirely rational that the Medicare program and CMS, its administrator, insist that information be provided to the program only in a standardized format. These requirements apply to all providers and suppliers.

contractor and CMS of its change of business location absent any proof that Petitioner filed such a form timely.

Petitioner, as a program participant, was required to be knowledgeable and to adhere to the requirements.

The regulatory requirement that a participating provider or supplier be operational subsumes the duty to be accessible for on-site compliance inspections. 42 C.F.R. § 424.535(a)(5). A provider or supplier can fulfill its duty to be accessible only by keeping the contractor informed as to its current business location. It is impossible to inspect a provider or supplier when that participant's current business location is unknown. Here, Petitioner failed to provide the contractor with acceptable notice of its current business location and, consequently, the contractor's inspector – relying on the information that Petitioner had supplied on an 855 Form as to its business location – went to a location that no longer housed Petitioner's business. Petitioner's new business location was inaccessible to the contractor because the contractor had never been informed of the new address through acceptable channels. Petitioner's failure to keep the contractor informed of its business location meant that it was not operational within the meaning of the regulation. Revocation is justified for that reason.³

An additional basis for revocation would be that Petitioner failed properly to notify the Medicare program of its change of business location. 42 C.F.R. §§ 424.516(e)(2); 424.535(a)(1). I do not sustain CMS's determination on this ground inasmuch as this basis was not cited by CMS either in its initial determination or in its reconsidered determination.
