Dear Melanie,

Florida student athletes will NOT be required to submit their menstrual history in order to play school sports.

We asked you to submit messages to the Florida High School Athletics Association (FHSAA) Board of Directors demanding they not implement this harmful and dangerous policy.

Because you acted so quickly, we delivered more than 5,000 messages in less than 48 hours to the FHSAA Board of Directors, which held an emergency vote on the policy on Thursday.

Thank you for taking action against Florida's gross attempt to force the collection of student menstrual data. But the fight's not over yet.

Even though the FHSAA Board decided against requiring students to submit their menstrual history, they quietly moved from asking about a student's sex to specifying that students must attest their "sex assigned at birth." The Board couldn't be more clear: at the root of the proposed requirement was an attempt to monitor trans students and violate their bodily autonomy.

So much is still at stake: we need to stay outraged and protect trans, nonbinary, and intersex students who just want to play sports alongside their peers without bullying and exclusion.

This work would not be possible without our state partners fighting against these violations. Please consider supporting Progress Florida Education Institute, which organized on the ground against the FHSAA's harmful policy proposal and following Equality Florida for more ways to support LGBTQI+ youth.

Even though Florida students will not be required to report their menstrual history, any attack on trans and nonbinary students is an attack on gender justice. We'll never stop fighting for the rights of women, girls, and LGBTQI+ individuals.

Thank you for joining us in this fight.

In solidarity,

Caitlin Panarella

DeSantis targets trans health care in Florida universities

The request asks for a breakdown of how many people were prescribed puberty blockers, hormones or hormone antagonists, or underwent a medical procedure.

By ANDREW ATTERBURY

01/18/2023 06:07 PM EST

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The DeSantis administration is requesting a trove of information on individuals who receive gender-affirming treatments at Florida universities, furthering its practice of questioning or scaling back treatment for transgender people.

In a blanket request to 12 state universities, top officials with Republican Gov. Ron DeSantis are seeking data on the number of individuals who have been diagnosed with gender dysphoria or received treatment in campus clinics across Florida. It's unclear what exactly DeSantis intends to do with the information, but his administration says it involves "governing institutional resources and protecting the public interest."

"Our office has learned that several state universities provide services to persons suffering from gender dysphoria. On behalf of the Governor, I hereby request that you respond to the enclosed inquiries related to such services," wrote Chris Spencer, director of the Office of Policy and Budget for DeSantis, in a Jan. 11 memo to schools that was released Wednesday.

The request from DeSantis poses a list of questions for universities, such as asking them to provide the number of students or individuals who received gender-affirming treatment, including surgical procedures, spanning the last five years and where the treatment was sought. It also asks how many of those cases were "first-time" visits for treatment or were referred to other facilities.

The DeSantis administration also wants to know how many students were diagnosed with gender identity disorders under a medical classification. Additionally, the request asks for a breakdown of how many people were prescribed puberty blockers, hormones or hormone antagonists, or underwent a medical procedure.

Gender dysphoria refers to the feelings of discomfort or distress some transgender people experience when their bodies don't align with their gender. The American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Medical Association support gender-affirming care for adults and adolescents.

DeSantis in the past has made several statewide decisions on gender-affirming care, such as passing rules restricting children from receiving treatments despite medical associations supporting care. Florida under DeSantis also banned health care providers from billing Medicaid for gender-affirming medical treatments.

Equality Florida, an LGBTQ advocacy group, called the request by DeSantis "incredibly disturbing."

"This is another example of DeSantis using his office to attempt to intimidate colleges and universities into becoming less inclusive of their students for his political gain," Brandon Wolf with Equality Florida said in a statement. "Those institutions should continue providing affirming services for all students despite the governor's attempts to intimidate them."

This move by DeSantis is similar to his administration's request earlier this month for data from colleges regarding spending on diversity, equity and inclusion programs. With his budget request set to be released sometime in February, these actions could play a significant role in shaping state funding in Florida's upcoming legislative session as state conservatives continue to rail against "wokeness" and "indoctrination" in schools.

The data is due to the DeSantis administration by Feb. 10.

BACKGROUND:

- The White House asked us to hold a series of listening sessions with advocates and impacted families from states that have (or are close to) banning gender affirming care for minors.
- The listening sessions are designed to be small, to allow for an intimate conversation where families can feel comfortable sharing highly personal and traumatic information.
- The states included in today's call represent those where the executive branch has taken action to prohibit or limit gender affirming care for minors:
 - Texas: In March 2022, Gov. Greg Abbott directed the state's Department of Family and Protective Services to investigate certain gender-affirming care for transgender children as possible child abuse. Private litigants sued, and the order is currently enjoined with regard to the plaintiffs only. Texas Senate just advance Senate Bill 14, "a sweeping ban on cross-sex hormone therapies, puberty blockers and gender-affirming surgeries for minors"; SB 14 is expected to pass and then move to the Texas House.
 - Florida: The Florida board of medicine rule banning gender affirming care for transgender youth who have not yet begun treatment went in to affect March 16, 2023. One bill currently advancing through the state Senate would make providing care to minors a third-degree felony.
 - Missouri: On March 20, 2023, Missouri AG Andrew Bailey announced that he was "issuing an emergency regulation clarifying that, because gender transition interventions are experimental, they are covered by existing Missouri law governing unfair, deceptive, and unconscionable business practices, including in administering healthcare services." The rule has not been promulgated yet, but once it is the emergency regulation will last 30 legislative days or 180 days, whichever is longer. The Missouri Senate advanced SB 843 to prohibit gender affirming care for minors on March 21, 2023.

Florida Department of Health releases guidance against gender-affirming care for minors

The guidance comes amid debates in other states about such treatment. Pictured: Protestors in support of transgender rights rally outside the Alabama State House. The Alabama Senate on Wednesday, Feb. 23, 2022, approved legislation that would prohibit transgender minors from being given treatments to affirm their gender identity.

The Florida Department of Health on Wednesday released guidance that said treatment such as puberty-blocking medication and hormone therapy should not be used for transgender youths, clashing with federal officials over the issue.

The guidance came amid debates in other states about such treatment and is the latest move by Gov. Ron DeSantis' administration and Republican leaders to target transgender issues. As an example, DeSantis last month signed a controversial law that restricts instruction about gender identity and sexual orientation in public schools.

A news release from the Department of Health said the guidance addresses treatment of gender dysphoria, which the federal government defines as clinically "significant distress that a person may feel when sex or gender assigned at birth is not the same as their identity."

The state news release said "current evidence does not support the use of puberty blockers, hormone treatments or surgical procedures for children and adolescents." Florida Surgeon General Joseph Ladapo also issued a statement blasting federal directives that backed treatment for transgender youths.

"It was about injecting political ideology into the health of our children," Ladapo said. "Children experiencing gender dysphoria should be supported by family and seek counseling, not pushed into an irreversible decision before they reach 18."

But the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services last month issued guidance that said its Office for Civil Rights "will continue working to ensure that transgender and gender nonconforming youth are able to access health care free from the burden of discrimination."

"The Department of Health & Human Services stands with transgender and gender nonconforming youth and their families — and the significant majority of expert medical associations — in unequivocally stating that gender affirming care for minors, when medically appropriate and necessary, improves their physical and mental health," the federal agency's statement said. "Attempts to restrict, challenge or falsely characterize this potentially lifesaving care as abuse is dangerous. Such attempts block parents from making critical health care decisions for their children, create a chilling effect on health care providers who are necessary to provide care for these youth, and ultimately negatively impact the health and well-being of transgender and gender nonconforming youth."

Among medical groups that have supported such treatment are the American Academy of Pediatrics.

"AAP (the academy) policy states that youths who identify as transgender should have access to comprehensive, gender-affirming and developmentally appropriate health care that is provided in a safe and inclusive clinical space in close consultation with parents," said a post this month on the academy's website.

Issues about treatment of transgender youths have led to fights in states such as Alabama and Texas. Alabama Gov. Kay Ivey this month signed a measure that would make it a crime to provide treatment such as puberty-blocking medication and hormone-replacement therapy. The measure quickly drew a legal challenge.

The Florida Department of Health guidance said, in part, that people under age 18 "should not be prescribed puberty blockers or hormone therapy" and that gender "reassignment surgery should not be a treatment option for children or adolescents." It also said that "social gender transition should not be a treatment option for children or adolescents."

"The department crafted this guidance using published and peer-reviewed data that calls into question the motives of the federal HHS," the accompanying news release said. "Guidance of this magnitude requires a full, diligent understanding of the scientific evidence."

But the LGBTQ-advocacy group Equality Florida issued a statement that said the DeSantis administration "seeks to replace science and the safety of young people with political propaganda."

"The Florida Department of Health has released non-binding guidance opposing science-backed health care resources for parents of transgender children," the Equality Florida statement said. "This guidance demonizes life-saving, medically necessary care and asserts that the government, not parents, knows best when it comes to health care for our children. And, once again, DeSantis wants the government to intrude into doctors' offices to pander to extremists in service to his political ambitions."

DeSantis targets trans health care in Florida universities

The request asks for a breakdown of how many people were prescribed puberty blockers, hormones or hormone antagonists, or underwent a medical procedure.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The DeSantis administration is requesting a trove of information on individuals who receive gender-affirming treatments at Florida universities, furthering its practice of questioning or scaling back treatment for transgender people.

In a blanket request to 12 state universities, top officials with Republican Gov. Ron DeSantis are seeking data on the number of individuals who have been diagnosed with gender dysphoria or received treatment in campus clinics across Florida. It's unclear what exactly DeSantis intends to do with the information, but his administration says it involves "governing institutional resources and protecting the public interest."

"Our office has learned that several state universities provide services to persons suffering from gender dysphoria. On behalf of the Governor, I hereby request that you respond to the enclosed inquiries related to such services," wrote Chris Spencer, director of the Office of Policy and Budget for DeSantis, in a Jan. 11 memo to schools that was released Wednesday.

The request from DeSantis poses a list of questions for universities, such as asking them to provide the number of students or individuals who received gender-affirming treatment, including surgical procedures, spanning the last five years and where the treatment was sought. It also asks how many of those cases were "first-time" visits for treatment or were referred to other facilities.

The DeSantis administration also wants to know how many students were diagnosed with gender identity disorders under a medical classification. Additionally, the request asks for a breakdown of how many people were prescribed puberty blockers, hormones or hormone antagonists, or underwent a medical procedure.

Gender dysphoria refers to the feelings of discomfort or distress some transgender people experience when their bodies don't align with their gender. The American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Medical Association support gender-affirming care for adults and adolescents.

DeSantis in the past has made several statewide decisions on gender-affirming care, such as passing rules restricting children from receiving treatments despite medical associations supporting care. Florida under DeSantis also banned health care providers from billing Medicaid for gender-affirming medical treatments.

Equality Florida, an LGBTQ advocacy group, called the request by DeSantis "incredibly disturbing."

"This is another example of DeSantis using his office to attempt to intimidate colleges and universities into becoming less inclusive of their students for his political gain," Brandon Wolf with Equality Florida said in a statement. "Those institutions should continue providing affirming services for all students despite the governor's attempts to intimidate them."

This move by DeSantis is similar to his administration's request earlier this month for data from colleges regarding spending on diversity, equity and inclusion programs. With his budget request set to be released sometime in February, these actions could play a significant role in shaping state funding in Florida's upcoming legislative session as state conservatives continue to rail against "wokeness" and "indoctrination" in schools.

The data is due to the DeSantis administration by Feb. 10.

DeSantis targets trans health care in Florida universities

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The DeSantis administration is requesting a trove of information on individuals who receive gender-affirming treatments at Florida universities, furthering its practice of questioning or scaling back treatment for transgender people.

In a blanket request to 12 state universities, top officials with Republican Gov. Ron DeSantis are seeking data on the number of individuals who have been diagnosed with gender dysphoria or received treatment in campus clinics across Florida. It's unclear what exactly DeSantis intends to do with the information, but his administration says it involves "governing institutional resources and protecting the public interest."

"Our office has learned that several state universities provide services to persons suffering from gender dysphoria. On behalf of the Governor, I hereby request that you respond to the enclosed inquiries related to such services," wrote Chris Spencer, director of the Office of Policy and Budget for DeSantis, in a Jan. 11 memo to schools that was released Wednesday.

The request from DeSantis poses a list of questions for universities, such as asking them to provide the number of students or individuals who received gender-affirming treatment, including surgical procedures, spanning the last five years and where the treatment was sought. It also asks how many of those cases were “first-time” visits for treatment or were referred to other facilities.

The DeSantis administration also wants to know how many students were diagnosed with gender identity disorders under a medical classification. Additionally, the request asks for a breakdown of how many people were prescribed puberty blockers, hormones or hormone antagonists, or underwent a medical procedure.

Gender dysphoria refers to the feelings of discomfort or distress some transgender people experience when their bodies don’t align with their gender. The American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Medical Association support gender-affirming care for adults and adolescents.

DeSantis in the past has made several statewide decisions on gender-affirming care, such as passing rules restricting children from receiving treatments despite medical associations supporting care. Florida under DeSantis also banned health care providers from billing Medicaid for gender-affirming medical treatments.

Equality Florida, an LGBTQ advocacy group, called the request by DeSantis “incredibly disturbing.”

“This is another example of DeSantis using his office to attempt to intimidate colleges and universities into becoming less inclusive of their students for his political gain,” Brandon Wolf with Equality Florida said in a statement. “Those institutions should continue providing affirming services for all students despite the governor’s attempts to intimidate them.”

This move by DeSantis is similar to his administration’s request earlier this month for data from colleges regarding spending on diversity, equity and inclusion programs. With his budget request set to be released sometime in February, these actions could play a significant role in shaping state funding in Florida’s upcoming legislative session as state conservatives continue to rail against “wokeness” and “indoctrination” in schools.

The data is due to the DeSantis administration by Feb. 10.

A university hospital generally would be covered by HIPAA, as university hospitals generally don't provide health care services to students for the university, so the records would not fall under the FERPA exception to HIPAA. University hospitals generally provide health care services without regard to whether the patient is a student at the university, and not on behalf of the university.

We'll gather information to be clear to whom the request for information was made and what laws apply.

Ensuring elder representation in the country's largest trans and non-binary community survey

The 2022 U.S. Transgender Survey will launch shortly, and we need to make sure the perspectives and experiences of trans and non-binary (TGNB) elders are represented. Of the 28,000 people who took the survey when it was last conducted in 2015, just 16% were 46 years old and over. It's time to make sure TGNB elders get the visibility they deserve in this crucial data. The data from this survey is used to inform media, educators, policymakers, and the general public about the experiences of TGNB people when it comes to health conditions, access to healthcare and employment, income, and more. If you are a TGNB elder, we need your input so the data collected truly represents TGNB people of all ages. Show that TGNB elders refuse to be invisible, visit ustranssurvey.org to take the pledge to participate in the 2022 survey!

Inclusive services continue to improve the lives of LGBTQ+ elders as they age

From heightened rates of loneliness and social isolation, to challenges in finding welcoming care, LGBTQ+ elders confront unique experiences every day – with resilience. As SAGE CEO Michael Adams is quoted in a recent article in USA Today, "We're talking about elders who've lived through decades of oppression, discrimination, invisibility, violence, and who have not only survived, but continued to thrive." SAGE is proud to offer services and resources that LGBTQ+ elders want, need, and deserve, whether it's the volunteer weekly phone call program SAGEConnect, or the recent guide released with the HRC Foundation on how to find inclusive and welcoming long-term care facilities. SAGE's top priority is making sure LGBTQ+ elders continue to have access to services that support us, communities that welcome us, and opportunities to be given the respect and visibility we deserve. Read more about SAGE's impact here.

Overcoming financial challenges in the new year

Last year, older LGBTQ+ people saw a major victory when surviving same-sex partners who had previously been denied Social Security Survivor's Benefits could finally receive their deserved benefits. Because many LGBTQ+ elders depend on this source of income as they age, this decision provided financial security to many members of the community who are more likely than their non-LGBTQ+ counterparts to experience poverty and financial instability. You can visit Lambda Legal's website to find more information on how to access these benefits. Additionally, for help improving your overall financial wellness, you can access programs like SAGECents that offer financial assistance specifically curated for LGBTQ+ elders. With more than 1,000 users across the country, SAGECents provides LGBTQ+ people with the financial literacy and freedom they deserve as they age. Celebrate Black History Month with SAGE

Throughout Black History Month this February, follow SAGE on social media to watch videos, read blog posts, and hear stories about and from the LGBTQ+ movement's Black pioneers. SAGE Centers in New York will also be offering a number of programs and discussions that highlight Black joy in culture, media, and as a form of resistance from passionate LGBTQ+ elders and leaders in the community. We are always looking to hear from our trailblazers, so if you have a story to share for Black History Month, please email us at info@sageusa.org!

Updating SAGE's organizational language to LGBTQ+

As an organization committed to equity, SAGE continues to evolve and adapt to represent the breadth of identities among the communities that we serve. This is why, in response to direct feedback from LGBTQ+ elders across the country, SAGE has updated our organizational language to use LGBTQ+ (lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer and questioning, and other sexual orientation and/or gender identities) when referring to our community. SUBJECT: INFORMATION MEMO – Florida Proposed Rule 59G-1.050

1. Background

In June 2022, the Florida Agency for Health Care Administration proposed amendments to Florida Administrative Code Rule 59G-1.050, the General Medicaid Policy. 48 Fla. Admin. Reg. 2461–62 (June 17, 2022). The proposed rule states that certain gender-affirming procedures are not covered under Florida Medicare. Id.

This memorandum will first detail the content and timeline of the proposed rule, as well as the report used to justify promulgation. It will then explore the current status of the proposed rule and developments since its original publication. It will also note the work of Florida organizations on this rule, before turning to next steps on the proposed rule.

a. Timeline and Contents

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration proposed an amendment to the Florida General Medicaid Policy in June 2022. The proposed amendment adds the following text:

(7) Gender Dysphoria

(a) Florida Medicaid does not cover the following services for the treatment of gender dysphoria:

1. Puberty blockers;
2. Hormones and hormone antagonists;
3. Sex reassignment surgeries; and
4. Any other procedures that alter primary or secondary sexual characteristics.

(b) For the purpose of determining medical necessity, including Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis, and Treatment (EPSDT), the services listed in subparagraph (7)(a) do not meet the definition of medical necessity in accordance with Rule 59G-1.010, F.A.C.

48 Fla. Admin. Reg. 2461–62 (June 17, 2022). As rulemaking authority for promulgating this amendment, the agency cites Florida Statute § 409.919 and § 409.961, which some commenters have challenged as being insufficient for this proposal. See infra Appendix. Sections 409.919 and 409.961 both include the same language surrounding agency rulemaking. Both state that the agency “shall adopt any rules necessary to comply with or administer” Medicaid “and all rules necessary to comply with federal requirements.” Fla. Stat. § 409.919 (2021); Fla. Stat. § 409.961

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration held a hearing on this proposed rule on July 8, 2022. Written comments were due to the agency on July 11, 2022, and they reportedly received approximately 1,200 total public comments. Forrest Saunders, Agency for Health Care Administration Set to Decide on Medicaid Coverage of Gender Dysphoria Therapies, WPTV (July 11, 2022), <https://www.wptv.com/news/lgbtq/lgbtq-advocates-decry-possible-end-of-medicaid-coverage-for-gender-dysphoria-treatments>. No further developments have yet ensued on the rule.

b. Florida Medicaid Report

In order for services to be covered under Florida Medicaid, they must be “medically necessary.” Agency for Health Care Admin., Florida Medicaid: Definitions Policy 7 (2017), https://ahca.myflorida.com/medicaid/review/General/59G_1010_Definitions.pdf. Part of this definition includes being “consistent with generally accepted professional medical standards” and not being “experimental or investigational.” Id.

Shortly before the proposed rule was published, the Division of Florida Medicaid issued a report (“Florida Medicaid Report”) concluding that gender-affirming care is not medically necessary because it is not “consistent with generally accepted professional medical standards” and it is “experimental or investigational.” See Div. of Fla. Medicaid, Florida Medicaid: Generally Accepted Professional Medical Standards Determination on the Treatment of Gender Dysphoria (June 2022), https://www.ahca.myflorida.com/letkidsbekids/docs/AHCA_GAPMS_June_2022_Report.pdf. In making this conclusion, the report opened the door for the Medicaid exclusion. The Florida Medicaid Report incorporates literature reviews on the etiology of gender dysphoria, desistance of gender dysphoria and puberty suppression, cross-sex hormones as a treatment for gender dysphoria, sex reassignment surgery, and the quality of available evidence and bioethical questions. Id. at 1. It also explores coverage policies domestically and in western Europe, and includes several attachments, including articles in support. Id. at 1–2.

The Florida Medicaid Report claims that “[a]vailable medical literature provides insufficient evidence that sex reassignment through medical intervention is a safe and effective treatment for gender dysphoria” and that studies focusing on the benefits “are either low or very low quality and rely on unreliable methods.” Id. at 2. It claims that current evidence around gender-affirming care shows that it “cause[s] irreversible physical changes and side effects that can affect long-term health.” Id. From the literature reviews conducted, the report states that “Florida Medicaid has determined that the research supporting sex reassignment treatment is insufficient to demonstrate efficacy and safety.” Id. at 3.

Numerous critiques have been levied against the Florida Medicaid Report, both in public comments as described infra Part 2 and in external documents. Most comprehensively, faculty members from Yale and other universities¹ drafted a report reviewing the Florida Medicaid

¹ Faculty members were from Yale Law School, Yale School of Medicine Child Study Center, Yale School of Medicine Department of Psychiatry, Yale School of Medicine Department of Pediatrics, University of Texas

Report (“Critical Review”). See Meredith McNamara et al., A Critical Review of the June 2022 Florida Medicaid Report on the Medical Treatment of Gender Dysphoria (July 8, 2022), https://medicine.yale.edu/lgbtqi/research/gender-affirming-care/florida%20report%20final%20july%208%202022%20accessible_443048_284_55174_v3.pdf. The Critical Review states that the Florida Medicaid Report “purports to be a review of the scientific and medical evidence but is, in fact, fundamentally unscientific” as it “makes false statements and contains glaring errors regarding science, statistical methods, and medicine.” Id. at 2. The Critical Review is structured in five parts. It argues that “medical care for gender dysphoria is supported by a robust scientific consensus, meets generally accepted professional medical standards, and is neither experimental nor investigational”; that the Florida Medicaid Report is “a flawed analysis that ignores the scientific evidence and relies instead on pseudo-science” including experts who have been disqualified in court; that the Florida Medicaid Report “makes unfounded criticisms of robust and well-regarded clinical research and . . . cites sources with little or no scientific merit”; that the Florida Medicaid Report’s “linchpin” is an analysis which is “extremely narrow in scope, inexpert, and so flawed it merits no scientific weight at all”; and that the Florida Medicaid Report “erroneously dismisses solid studies as ‘low quality,’” which if followed regularly would mean that widely-used medications and common medical procedures would also have to be denied coverage. Id. at 3.

The Agency for Health Care Administration responded to the Critical Review, stating that it is “another example of the left-wing academia propaganda machine arrogantly demanding you follow their words and not the clear evidence-based science sitting right in front of you” and that it is a “hodgepodge of baseless claims” without authority or credibility. 2. Current Status

a. July 8, 2022 Hearing

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration held a lively public hearing on July 8, 2022 on the proposed rule. The hearing consisted mostly of public comments, a comprehensive summary of which is attached in the Appendix. The full hearing can be viewed online. 7/8/22 Agency for Health Care Administration Hearing on General Medicaid Policy Rule, Fla. Channel (July 8, 2022), <https://thefloridachannel.org/videos/7-8-22-agency-for-health-care-administration-hearing-on-general-medicaid-policy-rule/>.

The hearing included a “panel of experts” consisting of Dr. Andre Van Mol, Dr. Quentin Van Meter, and Dr. Miriam Grossman. Dr. Van Meter has been found by a court unqualified to be an expert on the subject of gender-affirming care. See Stephen Caruso, *A Texas Judge Ruled This Doctor was Not an Expert. Discourse, <https://www.thepublicdiscourse.com/author/andre-van-mol/> (last visited July 22, 2022). The panelists spoke at several times during the hearing, primarily to point the audience towards the Florida Medicaid Report. See Appendix.

Over the two-hour hearing period, fifty public commenters spoke. Forty-two of those commenters supported the proposed rule and eight opposed it. Of the forty-two in support, two formerly identified as transgender but have since detransitioned, eight were representatives of the Christian Family Coalition, and at least ten mentioned God or the Bible as part of their rationale. Many supporters also raised concerns that children and teenagers are not mature or knowledgeable enough to choose these procedures, or that they are being unduly influenced by their peers and may later regret transitioning. Notably, the proposed rule would apply to gender-affirming care for individuals of all ages, not only youth. 48 Fla. Admin. Reg. 2461–62 (June 17, 2022). Several supporters also cited the Florida Medicaid Report as being well-researched and providing a strong basis for the rule; some opponents of the rule noted criticisms of the report including those raised by the Critical Review.

b. Florida Organizations and Individuals

The university faculty who wrote the Critical Review also wrote a significant public comment on the proposed rule. See Letter from Anne L. Alstott et al. to Simone Marstiller & Tom Wallace re Rule No. 59G-1.050: General Medicaid Policy (July 8, 2022), https://medicine.yale.edu/lgbtqi/research/gender-affirming-care/alstott%20et%20al%20full%20comment%20proposed%20rule%20re%20gender%20dysphoria_443049_284_55174_v3.pdf. The letter highlights similar concerns, noting that the “complete absence of scientific foundation for the Proposed Rule renders it an arbitrary and capricious use of rulemaking power” and that it “cannot [be] characterize[d] . . . as a valid interpretation of the existing Florida regulations on generally accepted professional medical standards, because the [Florida Medicaid] Report fails to satisfy Florida’s own regulatory requirements for scientific review.” Id. at 2. It reiterates concerns about the Florida Medicaid Report, including the cited experts’ bias and lack of expertise, errors about scientific research and medical regulation, and lack of scientific weight. Id. passim, 20.

Disability Rights Florida submitted a comment also opposing the proposed rule. See Letter from Peter P. Sleasman to Simone Marstiller re Proposed Amendments to Rule 59G-1.050, https://disabilityrightsflorida.org/images/uploads/DRF_Gender_Affirming_Care_Comment_-_Final_Signed.pdf. The letter focuses primarily on how this proposed rule “will cause unnecessary and disproportionate harm to individuals with disabilities living in Florida,” especially those who are low-income. Id. at 1. It notes that transgender individuals “are more than twice as likely as the general population to live in poverty,” and transgender individuals with disabilities are four times as likely. Id. at 2. Disability Rights Florida goes on to raise concerns about the agency’s “apparent failure to take even minimal steps to ensure that the rulemaking workshop . . . is accessible to the very people with disabilities it will directly impact,” citing to the lack of accommodations, contact information for seeking accommodations, and response regarding livestreaming. Id. at 3.

As did the Endocrine Society. See Letter from Ursula Kaiser to Agency for Health Care Administration re 59G-1.050: General Medicaid Policy (July 8, 2022), <https://www.endocrine.org/-/media/endocrine/files/advocacy/society-letters/2022/july-2022/response-to-fl-medicaid-nprm.pdf>. They note that their guidelines, “while not standards of care that clinicians are legally bound to follow, . . . provide a framework for best practices, and deviations must be justified.” Id. at 1–2. They expound on how their guidelines were developed—using a “robust and rigorous process that adheres to the highest standards of trustworthiness and transparency” and with a “systematic review of the evidence that supports [clinical] questions”—in contrast to the Florida Medicaid Report, which “did not include endocrinologists with expertise in transgender medicine,” “makes sweeping statements against gender affirming medical care that are not supported by evidence or references provided,” and “does not acknowledge the data showing harm reduction and improvements in behavioral health issues” that result from gender affirming care. Id. at 2–3. The letter goes on to state that this proposed rule would cause irreparable harm to transgender youth, including putting their lives at risk. Id. at 6.

Equality Florida advocated against the rule as well. Equality Florida, Press Release, Equality Florida Decries Proposed Rule to Eliminate Medicaid Coverage for Gender Affirming Care (June 17, 2022), <https://www.eqfl.org/proposed-ahca-rule-2022>. They note that this will affect approximately 9,000 transgender Floridians insured with Medicaid, and that “major medical and mental health associations recognize the critical importance of gender affirming care.” Id.

The Florida Coalition for Trans Liberation has also put together a short policy brief around the proposed rule. See Fla. Coal. for Trans Liberation, Stop Rule 59G-1.050 (2022), https://drive.google.com/file/d/11CHjVMOOLi_8a1tdaE_jKacf-xOK5akA/view. They note that this proposed rule contravenes all major medical advice, pushes a political agenda, and can be life-threatening. Id.

Florida Policy Institute also submitted a comment. See Letter from Anne Swerlick to Thomas Wallace re Proposed Rule 59G-1.050, Florida Administrative Code (July 7, 2022), https://www.dropbox.com/s/ld9f8yzo61xrxac/FPI_gender-affirming-care_comments_July72022.pdf?dl=0&mc_cid=08420fb607&mc_eid=6cb16947ac. They note that the proposed rule would “bar transgender patients from accessing essential care and reverse current Medicaid policies which have been in effect for years. Id. at 1. They also point out that this is counter to established standards of care, inconsistent with antidiscrimination laws, and exacerbates the challenges that transgender individuals already face. Id. It closes by noting that this rule seems to be “weaponiz[ing] [the Medicare program] as a tool for promoting a particular political agenda.” Id.

DELIBERATIVE

While the majority of public comments during the July 8 hearing were in support of the rule, few comments posted online seem to be, and Florida Medicaid has not made all of the comments publicly available. Christian Family Coalition, who was also heavily represented at the July 8 hearing, did make a public statement, stating that this rule was “important and necessary” to protect Floridians, “especially minors, from harmful transgender surgeries, hormone blockers, and other unnatural therapies.” CFC Florida to Testify in Support of DeSantis Administration Rule Banning Medicaid Funding for Transgender Surgeries and Puberty Blockers, Best Things Fla. 3. Next Steps

Several nonprofit groups in Florida are prepared to push back against the proposed rule. Lambda Legal, the National Health Law Program, the Florida Health Justice Project, and Southern Legal Counsel issued a statement criticizing the Florida Medicaid Report and stating that they “stand ready to defend the rights of transgender people in Florida.” LGBTQ Groups to Fight Florida Over Medicaid Ban for Trans Treatments, CBS Miami (June 6, 2022), <https://www.cbsnews.com/miami/news/lgbtq-groups-fight-florida-medicaid-ban-transgender-treatments/>.

One potential avenue for doing so may be seeking an administrative determination. Florida law says that any person “substantially affected by a . . . proposed rule may seek an administrative determination of the invalidity of the rule on the ground that the rule is an invalid exercise of delegated legislative authority. Fla. Stat. § 120.56 (2022). If a complaint is properly filed, the state must assign an administrative law judge (ALJ) to conduct a hearing within thirty days. Id. at (1)(c). The ALJ may declare the proposed rule wholly or partially invalid, and the rule then may not be adopted unless the judgment is reversed on appeal. Id. at (2)(b).

Appendix: Summary from July 8, 2022 Hearing

This appendix will detail the public comments made at the July 8 hearing regarding the proposed changes to 59G-1.050. There is no readily available transcript of the proceedings, so please note that names below may be missing or misspelled. Each speaker was met with audience applause at the end of their remarks, but any audience reactions during remarks are noted below.

The meeting opened with introductions of the panelists and representatives and a brief summary of the rule before opening the floor for public comments. Public commenters were asked to state their name and organization and to limit comments to two minutes, focusing only on the proposed rule language. The agency also noted that comments could be submitted via email.

The first speaker was Chloe Cole, a 17-year-old detransitioner from California. Cole began medical transition at the age of 13. In retrospect, she states that she was not becoming a man, but was just “fleeing from the uncomfortable feeling of being [a] wom[a]n.” Chloe states that she “really didn’t understand all of the ramifications of any of the medical decisions that [she] was making” when she chose to undergo a double mastectomy at the age of 15. She lamented that she will never be able to breastfeed, has blood clots in her urine, cannot fully empty her bladder, and does not know if she can ever give birth.²

The next speaker was Sophia Galvin, also a detransitioner. She states that she had a history of mental illness, including self-harm and suicidal ideation, and that her desire to transition was “all in an effort to escape the fear of being a woman in this society.” Galvin stated that she had no support when she chose to detransition; her doctor told her to stop taking hormones but she did not see a mental health counselor. She said that “this is not good for children” and she “was harmed by this, and it should not be covered under Medicaid.”

Next, the mother of a transgender boy spoke. She said that a physician gave her son testosterone at the age of 16 without her consent or knowledge, and that Medicaid covered her son’s double mastectomy, hysterectomy, and vaginoplasty. She states that her son had private insurance but it was bypassed. She said that it is “impossible to change one’s biological sex” and that doctors should not be affirming the “lie that biological sex is changeable.” She characterized these lies as “child abuse,” at which point the crowd began to applaud, and said that “amputating the healthy body parts of a child whose brain has not reached full decision-making maturity is simply criminal.” This led to more applause. She further characterized gender-affirming care as a “medical experiment.”

The next speaker, Jeanette Cooper, spoke on behalf of Partners for Ethical Care. Cooper stated that “we need to make space in the public sphere for ethical therapists by removing the medical treatment option” and characterized gender identity affirmation as a “poisoned bandage on the ² Several news sources also reported on Chloe and her testimony. See, e.g., Tyler O’Neil, California Ex-Trans Teen Backs Florida Ban on Medicaid Funds for Transgender Medical Interventions, Fox News (July 10, 2022), <https://www.foxnews.com/health/california-ex-trans-teen-backs-florida-ban-medicaid-funds-transgender-medical-interventions>. In one article, she urged individuals to “wait until you are a fully developed adult” prior to transitioning. Id. Notably, the Florida proposed rule is not only a prohibition on gender-affirming procedures for minors, but prohibits Medicaid funding for any gender-affirming procedures regardless of age.

skin of children causing permanent psychological and physical harm.” The audience applauded when Cooper said “everyone knows what a woman is, but some people are afraid to say it.” Cooper went on to state that “the state has no business using taxpayer funding to turn children into permanent medical patients” and “assisting doctors in selling disabilities to vulnerable suffering children.” She further said that gender-affirming care is “not real healthcare” and that the state should instead fund “legitimate care” that addresses trans children’s “actual needs.” She likened the satisfaction children get from gender-affirming care to “a street drug that needs to be injected every day.” Cooper closed by stating that the medical is “failing these families” and that her organization supports the proposed rule.

Donna Lambert, on behalf of Concerned Parents, also supported the rule. She said that “the healthcare professionals are presenting many [parents] with a false and painful choice: accept what we know will permanently harm our children, or lose them to suicide.” She stated that “there is no data to prove that medically transitioning minors prevents suicide” and that parents lose their children down this “dangerous medical path permanently harming their healthy bodies with off-label drugs and experimental surgeries.” Lambert said that transgender children “become angry and hostile and resentful; they begin lashing out at anyone who will not agree with their newfound identity.” She described this as a “destructive social phenomenon” which “cuts parents out of the equation.”

A Christian pastor spoke next, stating that the Bible teaches that “God makes people made and female” and to try and transition people “is a sin” and “should be a criminal abuse of children, especially when they’re not at the age when they can properly process what they’re doing to themselves.” He said that the “one goal” of doctors who provide gender-affirming care is to “cut[] back on the birth rate.” He supported the proposed rule and said Florida should “go further” and classify aiding in this case as “extreme child abuse.”

Brandy Hendricks stated that gender-affirming procedures “have been shown to be extremely harmful, especially to minors.” She lamented that children are being allowed to “change their genders before they’ve even reached puberty or shortly after.” She said that pharmaceutical companies are advertising puberty blockers to children and unethically enriching themselves. She too characterized gender-affirming care as “child abuse” and as “experimental.”

Sabrina Hartsfield, an alumna of Florida State University and a born-again Christian, spoke against the rule. Hartsfield said that “without gender-affirming healthcare, transgender and gender nonconforming individuals will die.” She said that, “according to every major legitimate medical organization, gender-affirming care is the treatment for gender dysphoria.” She said gender affirming care is “medically necessary and lifesaving treatment” that should not be decided by big government overreach. An audience member shouted something indiscernible at this point in Hartsfield’s comment. Hartsfield went on to state that the proposed rule violates the Affordable Care Act and Medicaid Act’s nondiscrimination provisions. She noted that denying gender-affirming care can be life-threatening.

Simone Chris, an attorney and the director of the Transgender Rights Initiative at Southern Legal Council, “vehemently oppose[d]” the proposed rule. She stated that her organization’s experience working with hundreds of transgender individuals has evinced “the tremendous benefits that access to [gender-affirming] care provides.” Chris went on to state that “the insidiousness of this rule is exacerbated by the fact that it places in its crosshairs the individuals in our state who are already disproportionately likely” to face poverty, homelessness, poor health outcomes, and limited access to healthcare. She noted that every major medical association supports gender-affirming care, and that the proposed changes would “cause significant harm” by depriving individuals of “critical, lifesaving medical care.” Chris went on to state that the changes to the rule substitute the state’s judgment for that of the patient and their doctor, and that it is a “shameful waste of state resources.” She cited to nationwide litigation which has struck down similar laws as inconsistent with the guarantees provided by the Medicaid Act, the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, and the Affordable Care Act, and noted that Florida will undoubtedly face similar challenges, wasting taxpayer money.

The next speaker, Matthew Benson, a pediatrician and pediatric endocrinologist, agreed with the proposed changes, stating that the data used to support gender-affirming care “is not scientific.” He cited to a Swedish study from 2016 which found that the mortality rates of transgender individuals who received gender-affirming care were three times that of the general population, and that they attempted suicide five times more often than the general population. He also cited a similar study from Denmark wherein 10 percent of the study population died over the 20-year study period. Benson said we need better data and longer-term trials “to justify these kinds of very aggressive therapies.”

Karen Schoen, a former teacher, spoke on behalf of Florida Citizens Alliance. She opened by stating that she would like to know “why 0.03 percent of the population is dictating to 99.97 percent of the population” that their elective surgeries should be paid for. This was met with audience applause. Schoen said that “kids change their minds” and that they become fearful of maturing. She lamented that thirteen-year-olds cannot drive a car, have a drink, or shoot a gun, but are “in charge” when it comes to changing their gender. This was met with audience laughter and applause.

The next speaker was Bill Snyder. Snyder first told a story about “reality disease,” stating that “the further we move from reality, the further we move from morality” and that “the further we move from virtue, the more secular we become.” Secularity leads to less freedom, he said, and then urged Florida to approve the changes to the rule.

Avery Fork with Christian Family Coalition, a college counselor, also spoke in support of the proposed rule. She characterized gender-affirming procedures as “unnatural therapies being promoted by radical gender ideals and with no basis in science.” She said the proposed rule would prevent taxpayers from having to pay for “highly unethical and dangerous procedures.”

Richard Carlins also spoke in support of the rule. He said that our Constitution was founded on “biblical principles.” Carlins said children are being indoctrinated through commercials, Disney World, Coca-Cola commercials, and restaurants, and that gender-affirming procedures are a “horrendous evil.” He said that “God raises up nations and he brings down nations,” which was met with audience vocal support, and that this is a recent phenomenon. He said we’ve been “living in Judeo Christian principles” for 1500 years, and “it’s just recently that we’re throwing any mention of God [or] the Bible under the bus.”

DELIBERATIVE

Amber Hand with the Body of Christ grew up with two queer parents. She said she had been considering gender transition for most of her life, but that “we have to teach these kids right from wrong” and that it is wrong to teach children they can make these decisions. Hand said that she is glad she never transitioned because she recently realized she wanted children. She went on to quote the Bible and that it’s “not okay to change your identity.”

The next speaker, Ms. Hazen, also supported the rule. She said that children are being pressured at a young age to identify as transgender, and that much of the pressure comes from the internet. She cited a follow-up study of individuals who transitioned, which found that the suicide rate in those individuals was twenty times the general population. She said that this evinces the “deep regret” they face after “mutilating” their bodies. She said that children “don’t understand that they will never be able to procreate ever again” when we “mutilate these children’s bodies at an early age.”

Leonard Lord also spoke in favor of the proposed changes. He said that he was also uncomfortable in his body as a child but was able to get comfortable by becoming closer with God. The audience murmured in approval. He said that “either we’re playing games, or we really believe there’s a God and the Bible is true,” and that this “problem” happens because we don’t believe in God. Lord said that, with regard to mental health issues, “God’s spirit is the answer to what’s missing in their lives,” again leading to audience applause and cheers. He said that by taking God, the Bible, and prayer out of schools, we are removing ourselves of power, love, and a sound mind. The audience again applauded. He said the “devil is the author of confusion” (the audience cheered) and that “if you spend your life trying to figure out if you’re a man or a woman you’ll never know why you’re here” (again, audience applause).

The next speaker, Pam, also supported “stopping Medicaid from paying for children and teenagers to have such changes.” She said that children are “confused” and likened gender-affirming procedures to “paying for [children] to have furry animal body parts,” to which the audience cheered. She said she is thankful that Florida will “stop the madness” for “the sake of the children.”

Jon Harris Maurer, the public policy director for Equality Florida, spoke next against the proposed rule. Maurer said that the proposed changes are without scientific or legal basis and are “clearly discriminatory.” He cited to numerous experts and organizations who endorse gender-affirming care. Maurer also said that the agency “lacks the specific delegated rule-making authority to adopt the proposed rule” and that the statute cited “grants no authority” for the agency to usurp the role of healthcare providers. He said the rule is discriminatory and targets the transgender community, and that it would harm the 9,000 transgender Floridians on Medicaid. An audience member began to shout, and the audience began to speak over Maurer. He said that the proposed rule is politically calculated and urged them to reject the rule.

Anthony Verdugo spoke on behalf of the Christian Family Coalition as the Executive Director. Verdugo supported the rule. He said that “they call it gender-affirming care” but “they don’t care, and it’s not affirming.” He called Chloe Cole and Sophia Galvin “heroes,” and said that this is a “war on children and this is a crime against humanity.” Verdugo said that “groomers” are pressuring children to undergo gender-affirming procedures. He cites to the warning label on a package of hormones which states that emotional instability is a side effect. He said that the organizations Maurer listed “have been discredited” and cited to “more renowned” organizations who believe that “the suppression of normal puberty, the use of disease-causing cross sex hormones, and the surgical mutilation and sterilization of children” are “atrocities” and “not health care.”

The next speaker, a veteran and police officer, said that doctors, parents, teachers, and scientists have been wrong before, but that detransitioners are the “evidence” we need. He said we need to “stop being ignorant” and that churches are bigger than any organization and in support of the proposed change. The audience met this with cheers and applause throughout.

Michael Haller, a doctor and professor of medicine at the University of Florida, spoke on his own behalf. After establishing himself as an expert, he said that this proposed rule makes “numerous false claims, uses biased reviews of the literature, and relies on more so-called experts who actually lack actual expertise” in caring for transgender youth. He said that the state’s assertion that gender-affirming care is not safe or effective is “patently false” and that nearly every major medical organization supports this care. He says the state is “either unwilling or willfully chooses to ignore the totality of evidence for gender-affirming care.” He said that the state’s experts are unqualified. Haller noted that the proposal is “poorly-conceived,” likely to cause harm, and should be rejected.

At this point, a member of the panel, Dr. Van Meter, made a comment. He said that the Endocrine Society guidelines are not standards of care, but merely guidelines, drafted by “ideologues” from the World Professional Association for Transgender Health. He said that this group excluded “world renowned experts in the field” and did not include their input “on purpose.” He said that we “have to stop using the term ‘standards of care’ when there are absolutely no standards of care in this instance that have been addressed.”

Robert Youelis spoke next, lamenting that gender-affirming care was not on anyone’s radar even five years ago. He said that this is man “proclaim[ing] himself as God” and that there is only one truth. Youelis said we are “philosophically and morally” going down a slippery slope when we start considering gender-affirming care. He said that brains are not fully developed until the age of twenty-five, and children cannot make other decisions in life, so we should not be educating anyone about gender identities until they are in twelfth grade.

The next speaker, Keith Claw of Florida Citizens Alliance, spoke next. He said that children in public schools are “purposefully confused, desensitized, and even pressured into abnormal sexual behavior” and that “gender ideologues are coaching kids to be into this dysphoria.” He said that there is ongoing debate as to whether gender dysphoria is biological or psychological. He said that taxpayers should not have to pay for gender-affirming care.

Robert Roper spoke next, also in support of the rule. He said that it “serves to protect the children.” He said “gender confusion is the only disorder that comes with a false assertion that a child can be born in the wrong body” and that it is “impossible” to become the opposite gender. He went on to say that gender dysphoria is the only “disorder [where] the body is mangled to conform to the thoughts of the mind” and where “the child actually dictates his or her medical care . . . instead of the other way around.” He called this a “social media epidemic manufactured by social media influencers making a lot of money off the very vulnerable element of our society.” He likened gender-affirming procedures to giving drugs to a drug addict or alcohol to an alcoholic and cited to a Reddit post where 35,000 individuals expressed regret of transitioning.

Karl Charles of Lambda Legal spoke against the proposed rule. He said that this care is “essential and in some cases lifesaving,” “clinically effective,” “evidence based,” and “widely accepted.” Charles said that exclusions such as this one cause “serious immediate and irreparable harm” to those who already experience “well-documented and pervasive stigma” and barriers to healthcare. He said that he is particularly concerned by the agency’s characterization of this care as “experimental and ineffective,” and that this is contrary to available medical evidence and misrepresents studies. He notes that the so-called experts relied on have been discredited and do not treat transgender patients. He noted that no one on the panel was a transgender Medicaid recipient in Florida, and that singling out transgender Medicaid participants violates Equal Protection and ACA § 1557.

A panelist at this point referred everyone to the appendices to the Florida Medicaid Report, including Dr. Cantor’s reports cited to on page thirty-nine, which discusses each organization that has supported gender-affirming care.

Ed Wilson spoke in support of the proposed rule, saying that it would “protect children who are not mature enough to be comfortable in their own bodies” from “making mistakes that will destroy their lives.” He said that taxpayer money should “never be used to destroy innocent lives” and that gender-affirming care “never actually succeed[s]” but does cause harm. He characterized it as “mutilation” and an “atrocit[y]” to be banned, “not healthcare.”

Suzanne Zimmerman, a relative of a gender dysphoric youth, spoke next. She “pray[ed]” that the state “not make it easy” for this youth’s parents to be persuaded towards gender-affirming care. She pointed to the testimony of detransitioners to state that “God doesn’t make mistakes” (the audience said “amen”). She urged them to support the changes.

Jean Halloran also supports the changes. She said that Medicaid should not be supporting or paying for gender-affirming care. She likened gender-affirming care to cosmetic changes to make her look younger, receiving audience applause and laughter.

Ezra Stone, a clinical social worker, pointed to research that medical transition is safe and effective. They pointed to clients who have “expressed tremendous relief” and an increased sense of safety when they are able to access medical care. They said that “understanding and being seen as [one’s] true self[f] creates a sense of belonging, which is a fundamental human need.” They pointed to the political climate in Florida as causing harm and anxiety to “transgender, nonbinary, questioning, and gender-diverse Floridians.” Their patients “worry about their access to medical care” and experience fear of violence daily, which supports the minority stress model that says that expecting harm and violence has a negative impact on mental health and well-being. They said that this proposed change will create an atmosphere of fear and take away medically necessary care.

DELIBERATIVE

Peggy Joseph shared the thoughts of Ryan T. Anderson, author of When Harry Became Sally. She cited to the Obama Administration's refusal to mandate coverage of gender-affirming surgeries under Medicaid, which said that there was "not enough evidence" to determine whether it improved health outcomes. She said that studies with positive outcomes were exploratory, without follow-up, which "could be pointing to suicide." She cited to the Swedish study regarding suicide rates, as well. She said the "minimal standard of care should be with a standard of normality" and that gender dysphoric thoughts are "misguided and cause harm."

A panelist again interjected to note that the report on pages 35–36 and 42–45 discusses the international consensus.

Jack Walton with the Christian Family Coalition is a pastor. He said he has counseled queer individuals for thirty-seven years. He believes that "gender dysphoria should be labeled as child abuse" and the doctors who prescribe gender-affirming care are "tear[ing] the child apart and call[ing] it health care." Walton says that gender-affirming care is "not science" and that any such procedures "should be labeled criminal." He said that "nearly 90 percent of those that escape from that life do it by the time they reach the end of puberty because they come back to their senses that they were created male and female by God." Walton expressed that suicide happens when a transgender person transitions but "still do[es]n't find the completion that they thought they felt." He said that many individuals transition because of child abuse they faced as children or because they were not accepted by others. He closed by saying there are "two genders, male and female; women bear children, women breastfeed, women have menstrual cycles, men do not." He said he "would not provide the anorexic with food and [he] would not say give money to do something that would harm a child."

Another member of the Christian Family Coalition, Jose, also supported the changes. He characterized gender-affirming care as "mutilation" and said that transgender individuals need "counseling" and should not be given a "destructive choice." He said that everyone will have to "stand before our living God and give account for where we stand on this and other issues." He thanked Chloe Cole and Sophia Galvin for their testimonies.

The panel then asked that members of the same organization be mindful of their time.

Bob Johnson, an attorney, spoke next. He thanked the agency for putting together the report, noting that it is "thorough," and said the "case is compelling." He strongly supports the rule change, and this is in large part due to the report making the case. He noted that the "FDA does not approve any medication as clinically indicated for gender dysphoria" and lamented the lack of randomized controlled trials and long-term data for puberty suppression medication.

Sandy Westad also spoke on behalf of Christian Family Coalition. She said that her heart is "breaking for what these kids are going through" and that "the parents need to stay in control." She said that kids "play house" and "pretend," but they "don't want to be or understand or even know what it is to change from one sex to another." She said, "children cannot make those kinds of decisions" and "cannot decide who they are."

Gayle Carlins also spoke from Christian Family Coalition. She said her beliefs are based on the

DELIBERATIVE

Bible, which is “the only truth that there is,” and which says that “God created male and female.” She went on to “bring science into it,” stating that females have two X chromosomes and males have an X and a Y chromosome, and that “it’s an impossibility to change from one to the other” “no matter what kind of mutilation or anything is done to a person.”

Dorothy Barron spoke next, also from Christian Family Coalition. She first thanked Florida’s “great governor,” eliciting audience cheers and applause, and thanked Chloe Cole and Sophia Galvin for not “going along with what you were trying to be brainwashed into” (also eliciting audience cheers and applause). She said “they’re definitely targeting our youngest,” and lamented that “we can’t seem to find baby formula anywhere but yet Medicaid can fund this nonsense.” Barron said it “has to be left up to the parents,” and that “whatever you choose to practice in the privacy of your own home is your business”; she is “not discriminating against any genders or whatever.” She said that it needs to be “taken out of the schools.” She said Michael Haller’s testimony was “shameful” and is “why we’re in this bloody mess right now,” to which the audience also cheered and applauded.

The panel reminded the public to be focused on the rule and respectful of other speakers.

Troy Peterson, the president of Warriors of Faith, supported Christian Family Coalition, and came from the Tampa Bay area. He said that he represents “thousands that stand in agreement” with the proposed change. He thanked the doctors for the report and said that “when [he] saw the evidence, [he] could clearly see that we need this rule.” He quoted from Genesis and said that God created male and female, and he is opposed to Michael Haller as well. He said that “if [he] had any authority in the medical field, [he] would have [Michael Haller’s] license revoked.” The audience whistled and verbally approved. He said that the most thorough follow-up of transgender individuals in Sweden said that “the suicide rate is twenty times that of the comparable peers” and that “50 percent of the gender identity confused children have thoughts of suicide.”

Janet Rath spoke next. She said that “fifty years ago, as parents, we were smarter than what’s going on today,” and that parents are being left out of their children’s lives. She said some of this is the fault of parents and some is the fault of teachers. She said her granddaughter, a teacher, has told her that “if she has a child that comes in and identifies as a cat, she must have a litterbox there and a bowl of water.” Rath said that our country is going “absolutely insane,” and the audience murmured in agreement. She said that Dr. Fauci is “nothing but a money-grabbing liar” and “we have been hoodwinked ever since.” Rath went on to say that “Chinese children in third grade are learning advanced calculus” but “our third graders are learning which bathroom to use.”

Gerald Lomer drove 3.5 hours to attend the hearing. He supported the proposed rule and “the best governor in the United States,” to which the audience cheered and applauded. He told “stories” of a girl who wanted to spend more time with her father and thought that being a boy was the best way to do so and a boy who wanted to spend more time with his mother and thought that being a girl was the best way to do so. He said that thirteen-year-olds cannot drive a car, drink a beer, or smoke a cigarette, but are able to take hormones and obtain surgeries for gender-affirming care. He characterized gender-affirming surgeries as “mutilating.”

DELIBERATIVE

A pastor from Florida spoke next on behalf of Protect Our Children Project, Duval County Charter House, and Christian Family Coalition. She supported the rule prohibiting funding for “unnatural therapies” and does not want taxpayers to subsidize transgender care. She said that “transgenderism is driven by unethical pharmaceutical companies enriching themselves with puberty blockers” and that this is child abuse. She cited to Swedish psychiatrist Dr. Christopher Gillberg, who has said that “pediatric transition is possibly one of the greatest scandals in medical history.”

Paul Aarons, a physician, spoke next. He said he has transgender patients and friends. He said that he opposes the proposed change, because it “conflicts with the preponderance of medical science and practice and would do irreparable harm” to transgender Floridians of all ages. He said that the American Academy of Pediatrics and its Florida chapter have directly refuted the agency’s report. Aarons said that, “contrary to an earlier comment, the Endocrine Society has stated, ‘medical intervention for transgender youth and adults, including puberty suppression hormone therapy, and medically indicated surgery, has been established as their standard of care. Federal and private insurers should cover such interventions as prescribed by a physician.’” He said gender dysphoria is “very real” and that people should meet and speak to transgender individuals, which will help them realize that denial of care “at any age would be inhumane and a violation of human rights.” He said that gender-affirming care is “generally accepted professional medical standards” and that this rule would put the health and lives of transgender people in danger. He said that “it feels like Medicaid is crossing into a political lane by seeking to preempt provider/patient/family decision-making.” He said that, if the agency still wants to address this topic, they should “at least convene an appropriate panel of experts including transgender community members to inform yourselves and the public about the overwhelming evidence against denying coverage for gender affirming care.”

A doctor on the panel then encouraged everyone to read the report and its attachments. He said that the report focuses on studies which have been brought up, and “specifically the flaws” in those studies. He also encouraged audience members not to interrupt when others are speaking. He went on to say that the Endocrine Society’s 2017 guidelines “are guidelines, just that,” and they “do not guarantee an outcome” and “do not establish a standard of care.” He also referred to international reviews which “all came to the same conclusion” that “this should not be going on in minors at all,” to which the audience applauded. He said that children need “strong psychological support” and that four decades of literature point to the “overwhelming probability of mental health problems after these childhood events” and “problems like autism spectrum disorder.” He said that in other nations, having “psychological instability . . . blocks you from the transition pathway” and that “those things be taken care of first because transition simply won’t fix them.” He said that the report is a “very well-researched document” and addresses a lot of the concerns raised in comment letters.

Another panelist then referred everyone to Attachment C of the report and Dr. Hruz’s Deficiencies in Scientific Evidence for Medical Management of Gender Dysphoria.

January Littlejohn, a mental health counselor, spoke next. Her child expressed that they were experiencing gender dysphoria in 2020, shortly after three of their friends had started identifying as transgender. She said that the middle school had “socially transitioned [her child] without their knowledge or consent”³ and that her child’s “mental health spiraled.” She said that she has worked with a psychologist to help address her child’s low self-esteem and anxiety, and has “given [her child] more one-on-one time, in-person activities away from trans influences, limited [her child’s] internet use, and declined to affirm [her child’s] newly-chosen name and pronouns.” She said that they set “appropriate boundaries” and allowed her child to choose hairstyle and clothing but “denied harmful requests such as breast binders, puberty blockers, cross-sex hormones, and surgeries.” She said it was “clear from [their] conversations” that her child was uncomfortable with their developing body and had “an intense fear of being sexualized.” Littlejohn said that her child was “filled with self-loathing and was in true emotional pain,” but “had been led by peers and influencers to believe that gender was the source of [their] pain.” She said that her child needed to be “remind[ed] that hormones and surgeries can never change [their] sex or resolve [their] issues.” She said that she “shudder[s] to think what could have happened if [they] had affirmed [her child’s] false identity and consented to medical treatment” as opposed to “lovingly affirm [her child] as [they are], beautifully unique and irreplaceable and undeniably female.” She said that her child has “desisted and is on a path to self-love” but unfortunately gender dysphoric children are “being encouraged to activism peer pressure to disassociate from their bodies and to believe their body parts can be simply removed, modified, or replaced.” Littlejohn said that “the irreversible consequences of medically transitioning, including loss of sexual and reproductive function, cannot be fully understood by children or teens who lack the necessary maturity or experience.”

Kendra Barris, a mental health attorney, spoke next. She first addressed the comment about the lack of peer-reviewed standards of care, saying that this lack means that “a lot of people who are harmed or experience bad outcomes from these surgeries or other interventions have no ability to sue.” She said that “they have had decades to create peer-reviewed standards of care and they have not,” and she suspects that some people do not want to standards because it would open them up to lawsuits, which is not currently happening. She went on to say that “when you put a female on testosterone, within about five years [they are] going to have to have a hysterectomy,” which for teens could mean a potential hysterectomy before the age of twenty. She said that “hysterectomy is correlated with negative mental health outcomes and cognitive decline” and that this is worse the earlier a hysterectomy is performed. She said that “essentially, the earlier you do the hysterectomy, the earlier the onset of dementia.” She is “very concerned about” how in a few decades “we’re going to have an absolute wave of young females, 40–50 years old, with early-onset cognitive decline” in assisted-living facilities. She said that “some people who are trans and have dementia forget that they’re trans” and if they don’t have written consent to continue their transition, they “might be cut off.” She worries that “we have not considered all of the implications of this.”

The next speaker was Nathan Bruemmer, Florida’s LGBTQ Consumer Advocate. He opposed the proposed rule “on behalf of healthcare consumers,” saying that consumers “must be provided with accurate information, education, choice, safety, representation, and regress.” He said that

³ Note that news organizations have reported that Ms. Littlejohn was aware of her child’s choice to change names and pronouns at school and told the school she would not stop them from doing so. She later filed a lawsuit against the school. See, e.g., Leyla Santiago, Fact Check: Emails Show One of Desantis’s Stories Backing the Rationale for So-Called ‘Don’t Say Gay’ Law Didn’t Happen as the Governor Says, CNN Politics (Apr. 6, 2022), <https://www.cnn.com/2022/04/06/politics/fact-check-desantis-dont-say-gay-family-narrative/index.html>.

DELIBERATIVE

“documented, well-researched standards of care have been established, are based on a wide range of evidence, and conclude that gender-affirming medical care is medically necessary and safe and effective.” In other words, “gender-affirming care is the standard of care.” Bruemmer said that the proposed rule would “deny health care consumers . . . access to the standard of care.” He said that agencies must defend the rights of all Floridians, including transgender Floridians, and that this includes the right to non-discriminatory healthcare coverage. He said we should work to increase access to healthcare, not lessen or remove it. Bruemmer said that he is “one of . . . tens of thousands of transgender Floridians” who have had access to gender-affirming care, and who are “happy, and successful, and thriving.” He said that transgender Floridians “deserve the rights and benefits afforded to all.”

The next speaker’s name was inaudible, but he also spoke in support of the proposed rule. He told examples of his fifteen-year-old son making bad decisions, including speeding on his dirt bike and wanting to leave home, as proof that “these kids can[’t] make a decision on what they want that’s going to be with them for the rest of life.” He said that the doctors who spoke previously “are despicable,” “need to have their licenses taken away,” and “are a disgrace to the human race.”

A panelist thanked him for his comment and said, “we respect everybody’s comments, including the doctors that you referenced.”

Dottie McPherson spoke next on behalf of the Florida Federation of Republican Women. She said that even at the age of eighteen “children don’t have the maturity to handle certain responsibilities given them” like driving and alcohol, and that “even older adults don’t.” She said that state programs include “programs for abused and neglected children, but not gender decisions.” She urged the panel to “prevent funding the destruction of children’s genitalia and hormonal balance.” McPherson urged the panel to consider unintended consequences, such as “taxpayer money that will need to be used for lawsuits by those whose lives were ruined from surgeries that they got while they were immature or too young to understand,” parents whose “parental rights were denied to protect their children’s future.” She said that “life isn’t fair” and we have to “stop giving in to the ‘poor pitiful me’ syndrome.” McPherson said that government “has no business funding these things.”

Maria Caulkins spoke next in support of the proposed rule. She said that taxpayer money should not be spent on funding surgeries that are “unnecessarily and tremendously harmful.” She said that there is “a war on our children” and that we need to “protect our children” and “support our governor” by being on the “right side” of this war.

James Caulkins also spoke in support of the rule, saying that we’re “in a battle in this country.” He said that the people of Florida “have spoken” by electing “the greatest governor in the United States,” to which the audience cheered and applauded. Caulkins said that we “don’t need this stuff, this evil, this Medicaid funding for transgender surgery” and that Florida should lead other states against “this evil.”

The final speaker, whose name was also inaudible, spoke in support of the proposed rule. She said that, years ago, she was told by a doctor that she needed to undergo hormone therapy, but she “saw the risks involved.” She said that hormone therapy is an attempt to “prevent . . . natural things from occurring,” such as menstruation, and we can’t expect it not to have any problems. She cited to Bill Maher, who pointed out that transgender procedures were only occurring in major cities where “social engineering is happening and where people are being influenced” but not in the rest of the country. She lamented that she can’t go to the media and say anything against transgender individuals because it will be “criticized and condemned” which “isn’t fair.” She said that “the government should not be involved in supporting any kind of procedure to these young kids.”

A panelist thanked everyone for their comments and then clarified the purpose of the rule. He said that it is not “a ban on treatment for gender dysphoria,” but rather lack of Medicaid coverage for services mentioned in the proposed rule. He also said that “there are other comprehensive coverage of services for gender dysphoria currently in the Florida Medicaid program” before reading some of those services (community-based services, psychiatric services, emergency services and inpatient services, and behavioral health services in schools).

A university hospital generally would be covered by HIPAA, as university hospitals generally don't provide health care services to students for the university, so the records would not fall under the FERPA exception to HIPAA. University hospitals generally provide health care services without regard to whether the patient is a student at the university, and not on behalf of the university.

We'll gather information to be clear to whom the request for information was made and what laws apply.

DeSantis targets trans health care in Florida universities

The request asks for a breakdown of how many people were prescribed puberty blockers, hormones or hormone antagonists, or underwent a medical procedure.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The DeSantis administration is requesting a trove of information on individuals who receive gender-affirming treatments at Florida universities, furthering its practice of questioning or scaling back treatment for transgender people.

In a blanket request to 12 state universities, top officials with Republican Gov. Ron DeSantis are seeking data on the number of individuals who have been diagnosed with gender dysphoria or received treatment in campus clinics across Florida. It's unclear what exactly DeSantis intends to do with the information, but his administration says it involves "governing institutional resources and protecting the public interest."

“Our office has learned that several state universities provide services to persons suffering from gender dysphoria. On behalf of the Governor, I hereby request that you respond to the enclosed inquiries related to such services,” wrote Chris Spencer, director of the Office of Policy and Budget for DeSantis, in a Jan. 11 memo to schools that was released Wednesday.

The request from DeSantis poses a list of questions for universities, such as asking them to provide the number of students or individuals who received gender-affirming treatment, including surgical procedures, spanning the last five years and where the treatment was sought. It also asks how many of those cases were “first-time” visits for treatment or were referred to other facilities.

The DeSantis administration also wants to know how many students were diagnosed with gender identity disorders under a medical classification. Additionally, the request asks for a breakdown of how many people were prescribed puberty blockers, hormones or hormone antagonists, or underwent a medical procedure.

Gender dysphoria refers to the feelings of discomfort or distress some transgender people experience when their bodies don’t align with their gender. The American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Medical Association support gender-affirming care for adults and adolescents.

DeSantis in the past has made several statewide decisions on gender-affirming care, such as passing rules restricting children from receiving treatments despite medical associations supporting care. Florida under DeSantis also banned health care providers from billing Medicaid for gender-affirming medical treatments.

Equality Florida, an LGBTQ advocacy group, called the request by DeSantis “incredibly disturbing.”

“This is another example of DeSantis using his office to attempt to intimidate colleges and universities into becoming less inclusive of their students for his political gain,” Brandon Wolf with Equality Florida said in a statement. “Those institutions should continue providing affirming services for all students despite the governor’s attempts to intimidate them.”

This move by DeSantis is similar to his administration’s request earlier this month for data from colleges regarding spending on diversity, equity and inclusion programs. With his budget request set to be released sometime in February, these actions could play a significant role in shaping state funding in Florida’s upcoming legislative session as state conservatives continue to rail against “wokeness” and “indoctrination” in schools.

The data is due to the DeSantis administration by Feb. 10.

Treatment of Gender Dysphoria for Children and Adolescents

April 20, 2022

The Florida Department of Health wants to clarify evidence recently cited on a fact sheet released by the US Department of Health and Human Services and provide guidance on treating gender dysphoria for children and adolescents.

Systematic reviews on hormonal treatment for young people show a trend of low-quality evidence, small sample sizes, and medium to high risk of bias. A paper published in the International Review of Psychiatry states that 80% of those seeking clinical care will lose their desire to identify with the non-birth sex. One review concludes that "hormonal treatments for transgender adolescents can achieve their intended physical effects, but evidence regarding their psychosocial and cognitive impact is generally lacking."

According to the Merck Manual, "gender dysphoria is characterized by a strong, persistent cross-gender identification associated with anxiety, depression, irritability, and often a wish to live as a gender different from the one associated with the sex assigned at birth."

Due to the lack of conclusive evidence, and the potential for long-term, irreversible effects, the Department's guidelines are as follows:

- Social gender transition should not be a treatment option for children or adolescents.
- Anyone under 18 should not be prescribed puberty blockers or hormone therapy.
- Gender reassignment surgery should not be a treatment option for children or adolescents.
 - Based on the currently available evidence, "encouraging mastectomy, ovariectomy, uterine extirpation, penile disablement, tracheal shave, the prescription of hormones which are out of line with the genetic make-up of the child, or puberty blockers, are all clinical practices which run an unacceptably high risk of doing harm."
- Children and adolescents should be provided social support by peers and family and seek counseling from a licensed provider.

These guidelines do not apply to procedures or treatments for children or adolescents born with a genetically or biochemically verifiable disorder of sex development (DSD). These disorders include, but are not limited to, 46, XX DSD; 46, XY DSD; sex chromosome DSDs; XX or XY sex reversal; and ovotesticular disorder.

The Department's guidelines are consistent with the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services age requirement for surgical and non-surgical treatment. These guidelines are also in line with the guidance, reviews, and recommendations from Sweden, Finland, the United Kingdom, and France.

Parents are encouraged to reach out to their child's health care provider for more information.

SUBJECT: INFORMATION MEMO – Florida Proposed Rule 59G-1.050

1. Background

In June 2022, the Florida Agency for Health Care Administration proposed amendments to Florida Administrative Code Rule 59G-1.050, the General Medicaid Policy. 48 Fla. Admin. Reg. 2461–62 (June 17, 2022). The proposed rule states that certain gender-affirming procedures are not covered under Florida Medicare. Id.

This memorandum will first detail the content and timeline of the proposed rule, as well as the report used to justify promulgation. It will then explore the current status of the proposed rule and developments since its original publication. It will also note the work of Florida organizations on this rule, before turning to next steps on the proposed rule.

a. Timeline and Contents

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration proposed an amendment to the Florida General Medicaid Policy in June 2022. The proposed amendment adds the following text:

(7) Gender Dysphoria

(a) Florida Medicaid does not cover the following services for the treatment of gender dysphoria:

1. Puberty blockers;
2. Hormones and hormone antagonists;
3. Sex reassignment surgeries; and
4. Any other procedures that alter primary or secondary sexual characteristics.

(b) For the purpose of determining medical necessity, including Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis, and Treatment (EPSDT), the services listed in subparagraph (7)(a) do not meet the definition of medical necessity in accordance with Rule 59G-1.010, F.A.C.

48 Fla. Admin. Reg. 2461–62 (June 17, 2022). As rulemaking authority for promulgating this amendment, the agency cites Florida Statute § 409.919 and § 409.961, which some commenters have challenged as being insufficient for this proposal. See infra Appendix. Sections 409.919 and 409.961 both include the same language surrounding agency rulemaking. Both state that the agency “shall adopt any rules necessary to comply with or administer” Medicaid “and all rules necessary to comply with federal requirements.” Fla. Stat. § 409.919 (2021); Fla. Stat. § 409.961

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration held a hearing on this proposed rule on July 8, 2022. Written comments were due to the agency on July 11, 2022, and they reportedly received approximately 1,200 total public comments. Forrest Saunders, Agency for Health Care Administration Set to Decide on Medicaid Coverage of Gender Dysphoria Therapies, WPTV (July 11, 2022). No further developments have yet ensued on the rule.

b. Florida Medicaid Report

In order for services to be covered under Florida Medicaid, they must be “medically necessary.” Agency for Health Care Admin., Florida Medicaid: Definitions Policy 7 (2017). Part of this definition includes being “consistent with generally accepted professional medical standards” and not being “experimental or investigational.” Id.

Shortly before the proposed rule was published, the Division of Florida Medicaid issued a report (“Florida Medicaid Report”) concluding that gender-affirming care is not medically necessary because it is not “consistent with generally accepted professional medical standards” and it is “experimental or investigational.” See Div. of Fla. Medicaid, Florida Medicaid: Generally Accepted Professional Medical Standards Determination on the Treatment of Gender Dysphoria (June 2022). In making this conclusion, the report opened the door for the Medicaid exclusion. The Florida Medicaid Report incorporates literature reviews on the etiology of gender dysphoria, desistance of gender dysphoria and puberty suppression, cross-sex hormones as a treatment for gender dysphoria, sex reassignment surgery, and the quality of available evidence and bioethical questions. Id. at 1. It also explores coverage policies domestically and in western Europe, and includes several attachments, including articles in support. Id. at 1–2.

The Florida Medicaid Report claims that “[a]vailable medical literature provides insufficient evidence that sex reassignment through medical intervention is a safe and effective treatment for gender dysphoria” and that studies focusing on the benefits “are either low or very low quality and rely on unreliable methods.” Id. at 2. It claims that current evidence around gender-affirming care shows that it “cause[s] irreversible physical changes and side effects that can affect long-term health.” Id. From the literature reviews conducted, the report states that “Florida Medicaid has determined that the research supporting sex reassignment treatment is insufficient to demonstrate efficacy and safety.” Id. at 3.

Numerous critiques have been levied against the Florida Medicaid Report, both in public comments as described infra Part 2 and in external documents. Most comprehensively, faculty members from Yale and other universities¹ drafted a report reviewing the Florida Medicaid Report (“Critical Review”). See Meredith McNamara et al., (July 8, 2022). The Critical Review states that the Florida Medicaid Report “purports to be a review of the scientific and medical evidence but is, in fact, fundamentally unscientific” as it “makes false statements and contains glaring errors regarding science, statistical methods, and medicine.” Id. at 2. The Critical Review is structured in five parts. It argues that “medical care for gender dysphoria is supported by a robust scientific consensus, meets generally accepted professional medical standards, and is neither experimental nor investigational”; that the Florida Medicaid Report is “a flawed analysis that ignores the scientific evidence and relies instead on pseudo-science” including experts who have been disqualified in court; that the Florida Medicaid Report “makes unfounded criticisms of robust and well-regarded clinical research and . . . cites sources with little or no scientific merit”; that the Florida Medicaid Report’s “linchpin” is an analysis which is “extremely narrow in scope, inexpert, and so flawed it merits no scientific weight at all”; and that the Florida Medicaid Report “erroneously dismisses solid studies as ‘low quality,’” which if followed regularly would mean that widely-used medications and common medical procedures would also have to be denied coverage. Id. at 3.

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration responded to the Critical Review, stating that it is “another example of the left-wing academia propaganda machine arrogantly demanding you follow their words and not the clear evidence-based science sitting right in front of you” and that it is a “hodgepodge of baseless claims” without authority or credibility. Dara Kam, Expert Report Condemns Florida’s Plan to Ban Medicaid Coverage for Transgender Care, Palm Coast Observer (July 17, 2022).

2. Current Status

a. July 8, 2022 Hearing

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration held a lively public hearing on July 8, 2022 on the proposed rule. The hearing consisted mostly of public comments, a comprehensive summary of which is attached in the Appendix. The full hearing can be viewed online. 7/8/22 Agency for Health Care Administration Hearing on General Medicaid Policy Rule, Fla. Channel (July 8, 2022).

The hearing included a “panel of experts” consisting of Dr. Andre Van Mol, Dr. Quentin Van Meter, and Dr. Miriam Grossman. Dr. Van Meter has been found by a court unqualified to be an expert on the subject of gender-affirming care. See Stephen Caruso, A Texas Judge Ruled This Doctor was Not an Expert. A Pennsylvania Republican Invited Him to Testify on Trans Health Care, Penn. Capital-Star (Sept. 15, 2020). He is also the president of the American College of Pediatricians, an advocacy group whose primary focus is to advocate for conservative policies in medicine, which has been categorized by the Southern Poverty Law Center as a hate group. See American College of Pediatricians, Southern Poverty L. Ctr. (last visited July 22, 2022). Dr. Van Mol is also a member. Andre Van Mol, Pub. Discourse (last visited July 22, 2022). The panelists spoke at several times during the hearing, primarily to point the audience towards the Florida Medicaid Report. See Appendix.

Over the two-hour hearing period, fifty public commenters spoke. Forty-two of those commenters supported the proposed rule and eight opposed it. Of the forty-two in support, two formerly identified as transgender but have since detransitioned, eight were representatives of the Christian Family Coalition, and at least ten mentioned God or the Bible as part of their rationale. Many supporters also raised concerns that children and teenagers are not mature or knowledgeable enough to choose these procedures, or that they are being unduly influenced by their peers and may later regret transitioning. Notably, the proposed rule would apply to gender-affirming care for individuals of all ages, not only youth. 48 Fla. Admin. Reg. 2461–62 (June 17, 2022). Several supporters also cited the Florida Medicaid Report as being well-researched and providing a strong basis for the rule; some opponents of the rule noted criticisms of the report including those raised by the Critical Review.

b. Florida Organizations and Individuals

The university faculty who wrote the Critical Review also wrote a significant public comment on the proposed rule. See Letter from Anne L. Alstott et al. to Simone Marstiller & Tom Wallace re Rule No. 59G-1.050: General Medicaid Policy (July 8, 2022). The letter highlights similar concerns, noting that the “complete absence of scientific foundation for the Proposed Rule renders it an arbitrary and capricious use of rulemaking power” and that it “cannot [be] characterize[d] . . . as a valid interpretation of the existing Florida regulations on generally accepted professional medical standards, because the [Florida Medicaid] Report fails to satisfy Florida’s own regulatory requirements for scientific review.” Id. at 2. It reiterates concerns about the Florida Medicaid Report, including the cited experts’ bias and lack of expertise, errors about scientific research and medical regulation, and lack of scientific weight. Id. passim, 20.

Disability Rights Florida submitted a comment also opposing the proposed rule. See Letter from Peter P. Sleasman to Simone Marstiller re Proposed Amendments to Rule 59G-1.050. The letter focuses primarily on how this proposed rule “will cause unnecessary and disproportionate harm to individuals with disabilities living in Florida,” especially those who are low-income. Id. at 1. It notes that transgender individuals “are more than twice as likely as the general population to live in poverty,” and transgender individuals with disabilities are four times as likely. Id. at 2. Disability Rights Florida goes on to raise concerns about the agency’s “apparent failure to take even minimal steps to ensure that the rulemaking workshop . . . is accessible to the very people with disabilities it will directly impact,” citing to the lack of accommodations, contact information for seeking accommodations, and response regarding livestreaming. Id. at 3.

As did the Endocrine Society. See Letter from Ursula Kaiser to Agency for Health Care Administration re 59G-1.050: General Medicaid Policy (July 8, 2022). They note that their guidelines, “while not standards of care that clinicians are legally bound to follow, . . . provide a framework for best practices, and deviations must be justified.” Id. at 1–2. They expound on how their guidelines were developed—using a “robust and rigorous process that adheres to the highest standards of trustworthiness and transparency” and with a “systematic review of the evidence that supports [clinical] questions”—in contrast to the Florida Medicaid Report, which “did not include endocrinologists with expertise in transgender medicine,” “makes sweeping statements against gender affirming medical care that are not supported by evidence or references provided,” and “does not acknowledge the data showing harm reduction and improvements in behavioral health issues” that result from gender affirming care. Id. at 2–3. The letter goes on to state that this proposed rule would cause irreparable harm to transgender youth, including putting their lives at risk. Id. at 6.

Equality Florida advocated against the rule as well. Equality Florida, Press Release, Equality Florida Decries Proposed Rule to Eliminate Medicaid Coverage for Gender Affirming Care (June 17, 2022). They note that this will affect approximately 9,000 transgender Floridians insured with Medicaid, and that “major medical and mental health associations recognize the critical importance of gender affirming care.” Id.

The Florida Coalition for Trans Liberation has also put together a short policy brief around the proposed rule. See Fla. Coal. for Trans Liberation, Stop Rule 59G-1.050 (2022). They note that this proposed rule contravenes all major medical advice, pushes a political agenda, and can be life-threatening. Id.

Florida Policy Institute also submitted a comment. See Letter from Anne Swerlick to Thomas Wallace re Proposed Rule 59G-1.050, Florida Administrative Code (July 7, 2022). They note that the proposed rule would “bar transgender patients from accessing essential care and reverse current Medicaid policies which have been in effect for years. Id. at 1. They also point out that this is counter to established standards of care, inconsistent with antidiscrimination laws, and exacerbates the challenges that transgender individuals already face. Id. It closes by noting that this rule seems to be “weaponiz[ing] [the Medicare program] as a tool for promoting a particular political agenda.” Id.

While the majority of public comments during the July 8 hearing were in support of the rule, few comments posted online seem to be, and Florida Medicaid has not made all of the comments publicly available. Christian Family Coalition, who was also heavily represented at the July 8 hearing, did make a public statement, stating that this rule was “important and necessary” to protect Floridians, “especially minors, from harmful transgender surgeries, hormone blockers, and other unnatural therapies.” CFC Florida to Testify in Support of DeSantis Administration Rule Banning Medicaid Funding for Transgender Surgeries and Puberty Blockers, Best Things Fla. (July 8, 2022).

3. Next Steps

Several nonprofit groups in Florida are prepared to push back against the proposed rule. Lambda Legal, the National Health Law Program, the Florida Health Justice Project, and Southern Legal Counsel issued a statement criticizing the Florida Medicaid Report and stating that they “stand ready to defend the rights of transgender people in Florida.” LGBTQ Groups to Fight Florida Over Medicaid Ban for Trans Treatments, CBS Miami (June 6, 2022).

One potential avenue for doing so may be seeking an administrative determination. Florida law says that any person “substantially affected by a . . . proposed rule may seek an administrative determination of the invalidity of the rule on the ground that the rule is an invalid exercise of delegated legislative authority. Fla. Stat. § 120.56 (2022). If a complaint is properly filed, the state must assign an administrative law judge (ALJ) to conduct a hearing within thirty days. Id. at (1)(c). The ALJ may declare the proposed rule wholly or partially invalid, and the rule then may not be adopted unless the judgment is reversed on appeal. Id. at (2)(b).

Appendix: Summary from July 8, 2022 Hearing

This appendix will detail the public comments made at the July 8 hearing regarding the proposed changes to 59G-1.050. There is no readily available transcript of the proceedings, so please note that names below may be missing or misspelled. Each speaker was met with audience applause at the end of their remarks, but any audience reactions during remarks are noted below.

The meeting opened with introductions of the panelists and representatives and a brief summary of the rule before opening the floor for public comments. Public commenters were asked to state their name and organization and to limit comments to two minutes, focusing only on the proposed rule language. The agency also noted that comments could be submitted via email.

The first speaker was Chloe Cole, a 17-year-old detransitioner from California. Cole began medical transition at the age of 13. In retrospect, she states that she was not becoming a man, but was just “fleeing from the uncomfortable feeling of being [a] wom[a]n.” Chloe states that she “really didn’t understand all of the ramifications of any of the medical decisions that [she] was making” when she chose to undergo a double mastectomy at the age of 15. She lamented that she will never be able to breastfeed, has blood clots in her urine, cannot fully empty her bladder, and does not know if she can ever give birth.²

The next speaker was Sophia Galvin, also a detransitioner. She states that she had a history of mental illness, including self-harm and suicidal ideation, and that her desire to transition was “all in an effort to escape the fear of being a woman in this society.” Galvin stated that she had no support when she chose to detransition; her doctor told her to stop taking hormones but she did not see a mental health counselor. She said that “this is not good for children” and she “was harmed by this, and it should not be covered under Medicaid.”

Next, the mother of a transgender boy spoke. She said that a physician gave her son testosterone at the age of 16 without her consent or knowledge, and that Medicaid covered her son’s double mastectomy, hysterectomy, and vaginoplasty. She states that her son had private insurance but it was bypassed. She said that it is “impossible to change one’s biological sex” and that doctors should not be affirming the “lie that biological sex is changeable.” She characterized these lies as “child abuse,” at which point the crowd began to applaud, and said that “amputating the healthy body parts of a child whose brain has not reached full decision-making maturity is simply criminal.” This led to more applause. She further characterized gender-affirming care as a “medical experiment.”

The next speaker, Jeanette Cooper, spoke on behalf of Partners for Ethical Care. Cooper stated that “we need to make space in the public sphere for ethical therapists by removing the medical treatment option” and characterized gender identity affirmation as a “poisoned bandage on the ² Several news sources also reported on Chloe and her testimony. See, e.g., Tyler O’Neil, California Ex-Trans Teen Backs Florida Ban on Medicaid Funds for Transgender Medical Interventions, Fox News (July 10, 2022), <https://www.foxnews.com/health/california-ex-trans-teen-backs-florida-ban-medicaid-funds-transgender-medical-interventions>. In one article, she urged individuals to “wait until you are a fully developed adult” prior to transitioning. Id. Notably, the Florida proposed rule is not only a prohibition on gender-affirming procedures for minors, but prohibits Medicaid funding for any gender-affirming procedures regardless of age.

skin of children causing permanent psychological and physical harm.” The audience applauded when Cooper said “everyone knows what a woman is, but some people are afraid to say it.” Cooper went on to state that “the state has no business using taxpayer funding to turn children into permanent medical patients” and “assisting doctors in selling disabilities to vulnerable suffering children.” She further said that gender-affirming care is “not real healthcare” and that the state should instead fund “legitimate care” that addresses trans children’s “actual needs.” She likened the satisfaction children get from gender-affirming care to “a street drug that needs to be injected every day.” Cooper closed by stating that the medical is “failing these families” and that her organization supports the proposed rule.

Donna Lambert, on behalf of Concerned Parents, also supported the rule. She said that “the healthcare professionals are presenting many [parents] with a false and painful choice: accept what we know will permanently harm our children, or lose them to suicide.” She stated that “there is no data to prove that medically transitioning minors prevents suicide” and that parents lose their children down this “dangerous medical path permanently harming their healthy bodies with off-label drugs and experimental surgeries.” Lambert said that transgender children “become angry and hostile and resentful; they begin lashing out at anyone who will not agree with their newfound identity.” She described this as a “destructive social phenomenon” which “cuts parents out of the equation.”

A Christian pastor spoke next, stating that the Bible teaches that “God makes people made and female” and to try and transition people “is a sin” and “should be a criminal abuse of children, especially when they’re not at the age when they can properly process what they’re doing to themselves.” He said that the “one goal” of doctors who provide gender-affirming care is to “cut[] back on the birth rate.” He supported the proposed rule and said Florida should “go further” and classify aiding in this case as “extreme child abuse.”

Brandy Hendricks stated that gender-affirming procedures “have been shown to be extremely harmful, especially to minors.” She lamented that children are being allowed to “change their genders before they’ve even reached puberty or shortly after.” She said that pharmaceutical companies are advertising puberty blockers to children and unethically enriching themselves. She too characterized gender-affirming care as “child abuse” and as “experimental.”

Sabrina Hartsfield, an alumna of Florida State University and a born-again Christian, spoke against the rule. Hartsfield said that “without gender-affirming healthcare, transgender and gender nonconforming individuals will die.” She said that, “according to every major legitimate medical organization, gender-affirming care is the treatment for gender dysphoria.” She said gender affirming care is “medically necessary and lifesaving treatment” that should not be decided by big government overreach. An audience member shouted something indiscernible at this point in Hartsfield’s comment. Hartsfield went on to state that the proposed rule violates the Affordable Care Act and Medicaid Act’s nondiscrimination provisions. She noted that denying gender-affirming care can be life-threatening.

Simone Chris, an attorney and the director of the Transgender Rights Initiative at Southern Legal Council, “vehemently oppose[d]” the proposed rule. She stated that her organization’s experience working with hundreds of transgender individuals has evinced “the tremendous benefits that access to [gender-affirming] care provides.” Chris went on to state that “the insidiousness of this rule is exacerbated by the fact that it places in its crosshairs the individuals in our state who are already disproportionately likely” to face poverty, homelessness, poor health outcomes, and limited access to healthcare. She noted that every major medical association supports gender-affirming care, and that the proposed changes would “cause significant harm” by depriving individuals of “critical, lifesaving medical care.” Chris went on to state that the changes to the rule substitute the state’s judgment for that of the patient and their doctor, and that it is a “shameful waste of state resources.” She cited to nationwide litigation which has struck down similar laws as inconsistent with the guarantees provided by the Medicaid Act, the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, and the Affordable Care Act, and noted that Florida will undoubtedly face similar challenges, wasting taxpayer money.

The next speaker, Matthew Benson, a pediatrician and pediatric endocrinologist, agreed with the proposed changes, stating that the data used to support gender-affirming care “is not scientific.” He cited to a Swedish study from 2016 which found that the mortality rates of transgender individuals who received gender-affirming care were three times that of the general population, and that they attempted suicide five times more often than the general population. He also cited a similar study from Denmark wherein 10 percent of the study population died over the 20-year study period. Benson said we need better data and longer-term trials “to justify these kinds of very aggressive therapies.”

Karen Schoen, a former teacher, spoke on behalf of Florida Citizens Alliance. She opened by stating that she would like to know “why 0.03 percent of the population is dictating to 99.97 percent of the population” that their elective surgeries should be paid for. This was met with audience applause. Schoen said that “kids change their minds” and that they become fearful of maturing. She lamented that thirteen-year-olds cannot drive a car, have a drink, or shoot a gun, but are “in charge” when it comes to changing their gender. This was met with audience laughter and applause.

The next speaker was Bill Snyder. Snyder first told a story about “reality disease,” stating that “the further we move from reality, the further we move from morality” and that “the further we move from virtue, the more secular we become.” Secularity leads to less freedom, he said, and then urged Florida to approve the changes to the rule.

Avery Fork with Christian Family Coalition, a college counselor, also spoke in support of the proposed rule. She characterized gender-affirming procedures as “unnatural therapies being promoted by radical gender ideals and with no basis in science.” She said the proposed rule would prevent taxpayers from having to pay for “highly unethical and dangerous procedures.”

Richard Carlins also spoke in support of the rule. He said that our Constitution was founded on “biblical principles.” Carlins said children are being indoctrinated through commercials, Disney World, Coca-Cola commercials, and restaurants, and that gender-affirming procedures are a “horrendous evil.” He said that “God raises up nations and he brings down nations,” which was met with audience vocal support, and that this is a recent phenomenon. He said we’ve been “living in Judeo Christian principles” for 1500 years, and “it’s just recently that we’re throwing any mention of God [or] the Bible under the bus.”

DELIBERATIVE

Amber Hand with the Body of Christ grew up with two queer parents. She said she had been considering gender transition for most of her life, but that “we have to teach these kids right from wrong” and that it is wrong to teach children they can make these decisions. Hand said that she is glad she never transitioned because she recently realized she wanted children. She went on to quote the Bible and that it’s “not okay to change your identity.”

The next speaker, Ms. Hazen, also supported the rule. She said that children are being pressured at a young age to identify as transgender, and that much of the pressure comes from the internet. She cited a follow-up study of individuals who transitioned, which found that the suicide rate in those individuals was twenty times the general population. She said that this evinces the “deep regret” they face after “mutilating” their bodies. She said that children “don’t understand that they will never be able to procreate ever again” when we “mutilate these children’s bodies at an early age.”

Leonard Lord also spoke in favor of the proposed changes. He said that he was also uncomfortable in his body as a child but was able to get comfortable by becoming closer with God. The audience murmured in approval. He said that “either we’re playing games, or we really believe there’s a God and the Bible is true,” and that this “problem” happens because we don’t believe in God. Lord said that, with regard to mental health issues, “God’s spirit is the answer to what’s missing in their lives,” again leading to audience applause and cheers. He said that by taking God, the Bible, and prayer out of schools, we are removing ourselves of power, love, and a sound mind. The audience again applauded. He said the “devil is the author of confusion” (the audience cheered) and that “if you spend your life trying to figure out if you’re a man or a woman you’ll never know why you’re here” (again, audience applause).

The next speaker, Pam, also supported “stopping Medicaid from paying for children and teenagers to have such changes.” She said that children are “confused” and likened gender-affirming procedures to “paying for [children] to have furry animal body parts,” to which the audience cheered. She said she is thankful that Florida will “stop the madness” for “the sake of the children.”

Jon Harris Maurer, the public policy director for Equality Florida, spoke next against the proposed rule. Maurer said that the proposed changes are without scientific or legal basis and are “clearly discriminatory.” He cited to numerous experts and organizations who endorse gender-affirming care. Maurer also said that the agency “lacks the specific delegated rule-making authority to adopt the proposed rule” and that the statute cited “grants no authority” for the agency to usurp the role of healthcare providers. He said the rule is discriminatory and targets the transgender community, and that it would harm the 9,000 transgender Floridians on Medicaid. An audience member began to shout, and the audience began to speak over Maurer. He said that the proposed rule is politically calculated and urged them to reject the rule.

Anthony Verdugo spoke on behalf of the Christian Family Coalition as the Executive Director. Verdugo supported the rule. He said that “they call it gender-affirming care” but “they don’t care, and it’s not affirming.” He called Chloe Cole and Sophia Galvin “heroes,” and said that this is a “war on children and this is a crime against humanity.” Verdugo said that “groomers” are pressuring children to undergo gender-affirming procedures. He cites to the warning label on a package of hormones which states that emotional instability is a side effect. He said that the organizations Maurer listed “have been discredited” and cited to “more renowned” organizations who believe that “the suppression of normal puberty, the use of disease-causing cross sex hormones, and the surgical mutilation and sterilization of children” are “atrocities” and “not health care.”

The next speaker, a veteran and police officer, said that doctors, parents, teachers, and scientists have been wrong before, but that detransitioners are the “evidence” we need. He said we need to “stop being ignorant” and that churches are bigger than any organization and in support of the proposed change. The audience met this with cheers and applause throughout.

Michael Haller, a doctor and professor of medicine at the University of Florida, spoke on his own behalf. After establishing himself as an expert, he said that this proposed rule makes “numerous false claims, uses biased reviews of the literature, and relies on more so-called experts who actually lack actual expertise” in caring for transgender youth. He said that the state’s assertion that gender-affirming care is not safe or effective is “patently false” and that nearly every major medical organization supports this care. He says the state is “either unwilling or willfully chooses to ignore the totality of evidence for gender-affirming care.” He said that the state’s experts are unqualified. Haller noted that the proposal is “poorly-conceived,” likely to cause harm, and should be rejected.

At this point, a member of the panel, Dr. Van Meter, made a comment. He said that the Endocrine Society guidelines are not standards of care, but merely guidelines, drafted by “ideologues” from the World Professional Association for Transgender Health. He said that this group excluded “world renowned experts in the field” and did not include their input “on purpose.” He said that we “have to stop using the term ‘standards of care’ when there are absolutely no standards of care in this instance that have been addressed.”

Robert Youelis spoke next, lamenting that gender-affirming care was not on anyone’s radar even five years ago. He said that this is man “proclaim[ing] himself as God” and that there is only one truth. Youelis said we are “philosophically and morally” going down a slippery slope when we start considering gender-affirming care. He said that brains are not fully developed until the age of twenty-five, and children cannot make other decisions in life, so we should not be educating anyone about gender identities until they are in twelfth grade.

The next speaker, Keith Claw of Florida Citizens Alliance, spoke next. He said that children in public schools are “purposefully confused, desensitized, and even pressured into abnormal sexual behavior” and that “gender ideologues are coaching kids to be into this dysphoria.” He said that there is ongoing debate as to whether gender dysphoria is biological or psychological. He said that taxpayers should not have to pay for gender-affirming care.

Robert Roper spoke next, also in support of the rule. He said that it “serves to protect the children.” He said “gender confusion is the only disorder that comes with a false assertion that a child can be born in the wrong body” and that it is “impossible” to become the opposite gender. He went on to say that gender dysphoria is the only “disorder [where] the body is mangled to conform to the thoughts of the mind” and where “the child actually dictates his or her medical care . . . instead of the other way around.” He called this a “social media epidemic manufactured by social media influencers making a lot of money off the very vulnerable element of our society.” He likened gender-affirming procedures to giving drugs to a drug addict or alcohol to an alcoholic and cited to a Reddit post where 35,000 individuals expressed regret of transitioning.

Karl Charles of Lambda Legal spoke against the proposed rule. He said that this care is “essential and in some cases lifesaving,” “clinically effective,” “evidence based,” and “widely accepted.” Charles said that exclusions such as this one cause “serious immediate and irreparable harm” to those who already experience “well-documented and pervasive stigma” and barriers to healthcare. He said that he is particularly concerned by the agency’s characterization of this care as “experimental and ineffective,” and that this is contrary to available medical evidence and misrepresents studies. He notes that the so-called experts relied on have been discredited and do not treat transgender patients. He noted that no one on the panel was a transgender Medicaid recipient in Florida, and that singling out transgender Medicaid participants violates Equal Protection and ACA § 1557.

A panelist at this point referred everyone to the appendices to the Florida Medicaid Report, including Dr. Cantor’s reports cited to on page thirty-nine, which discusses each organization that has supported gender-affirming care.

Ed Wilson spoke in support of the proposed rule, saying that it would “protect children who are not mature enough to be comfortable in their own bodies” from “making mistakes that will destroy their lives.” He said that taxpayer money should “never be used to destroy innocent lives” and that gender-affirming care “never actually succeed[s]” but does cause harm. He characterized it as “mutilation” and an “atrocit[y]” to be banned, “not healthcare.”

Suzanne Zimmerman, a relative of a gender dysphoric youth, spoke next. She “pray[ed]” that the state “not make it easy” for this youth’s parents to be persuaded towards gender-affirming care. She pointed to the testimony of detransitioners to state that “God doesn’t make mistakes” (the audience said “amen”). She urged them to support the changes.

Jean Halloran also supports the changes. She said that Medicaid should not be supporting or paying for gender-affirming care. She likened gender-affirming care to cosmetic changes to make her look younger, receiving audience applause and laughter.

Ezra Stone, a clinical social worker, pointed to research that medical transition is safe and effective. They pointed to clients who have “expressed tremendous relief” and an increased sense of safety when they are able to access medical care. They said that “understanding and being seen as [one’s] true self creates a sense of belonging, which is a fundamental human need.” They pointed to the political climate in Florida as causing harm and anxiety to “transgender, nonbinary, questioning, and gender-diverse Floridians.” Their patients “worry about their access to medical care” and experience fear of violence daily, which supports the minority stress model that says that expecting harm and violence has a negative impact on mental health and well-being. They said that this proposed change will create an atmosphere of fear and take away medically necessary care.

DELIBERATIVE

Peggy Joseph shared the thoughts of Ryan T. Anderson, author of When Harry Became Sally. She cited to the Obama Administration's refusal to mandate coverage of gender-affirming surgeries under Medicaid, which said that there was "not enough evidence" to determine whether it improved health outcomes. She said that studies with positive outcomes were exploratory, without follow-up, which "could be pointing to suicide." She cited to the Swedish study regarding suicide rates, as well. She said the "minimal standard of care should be with a standard of normality" and that gender dysphoric thoughts are "misguided and cause harm."

A panelist again interjected to note that the report on pages 35–36 and 42–45 discusses the international consensus.

Jack Walton with the Christian Family Coalition is a pastor. He said he has counseled queer individuals for thirty-seven years. He believes that "gender dysphoria should be labeled as child abuse" and the doctors who prescribe gender-affirming care are "tear[ing] the child apart and call[ing] it health care." Walton says that gender-affirming care is "not science" and that any such procedures "should be labeled criminal." He said that "nearly 90 percent of those that escape from that life do it by the time they reach the end of puberty because they come back to their senses that they were created male and female by God." Walton expressed that suicide happens when a transgender person transitions but "still do[es]n't find the completion that they thought they felt." He said that many individuals transition because of child abuse they faced as children or because they were not accepted by others. He closed by saying there are "two genders, male and female; women bear children, women breastfeed, women have menstrual cycles, men do not." He said he "would not provide the anorexic with food and [he] would not say give money to do something that would harm a child."

Another member of the Christian Family Coalition, Jose, also supported the changes. He characterized gender-affirming care as "mutilation" and said that transgender individuals need "counseling" and should not be given a "destructive choice." He said that everyone will have to "stand before our living God and give account for where we stand on this and other issues." He thanked Chloe Cole and Sophia Galvin for their testimonies.

The panel then asked that members of the same organization be mindful of their time.

Bob Johnson, an attorney, spoke next. He thanked the agency for putting together the report, noting that it is "thorough," and said the "case is compelling." He strongly supports the rule change, and this is in large part due to the report making the case. He noted that the "FDA does not approve any medication as clinically indicated for gender dysphoria" and lamented the lack of randomized controlled trials and long-term data for puberty suppression medication.

Sandy Westad also spoke on behalf of Christian Family Coalition. She said that her heart is "breaking for what these kids are going through" and that "the parents need to stay in control." She said that kids "play house" and "pretend," but they "don't want to be or understand or even know what it is to change from one sex to another." She said, "children cannot make those kinds of decisions" and "cannot decide who they are."

Gayle Carlins also spoke from Christian Family Coalition. She said her beliefs are based on the

DELIBERATIVE

Bible, which is “the only truth that there is,” and which says that “God created male and female.” She went on to “bring science into it,” stating that females have two X chromosomes and males have an X and a Y chromosome, and that “it’s an impossibility to change from one to the other” “no matter what kind of mutilation or anything is done to a person.”

Dorothy Barron spoke next, also from Christian Family Coalition. She first thanked Florida’s “great governor,” eliciting audience cheers and applause, and thanked Chloe Cole and Sophia Galvin for not “going along with what you were trying to be brainwashed into” (also eliciting audience cheers and applause). She said “they’re definitely targeting our youngest,” and lamented that “we can’t seem to find baby formula anywhere but yet Medicaid can fund this nonsense.” Barron said it “has to be left up to the parents,” and that “whatever you choose to practice in the privacy of your own home is your business”; she is “not discriminating against any genders or whatever.” She said that it needs to be “taken out of the schools.” She said Michael Haller’s testimony was “shameful” and is “why we’re in this bloody mess right now,” to which the audience also cheered and applauded.

The panel reminded the public to be focused on the rule and respectful of other speakers.

Troy Peterson, the president of Warriors of Faith, supported Christian Family Coalition, and came from the Tampa Bay area. He said that he represents “thousands that stand in agreement” with the proposed change. He thanked the doctors for the report and said that “when [he] saw the evidence, [he] could clearly see that we need this rule.” He quoted from Genesis and said that God created male and female, and he is opposed to Michael Haller as well. He said that “if [he] had any authority in the medical field, [he] would have [Michael Haller’s] license revoked.” The audience whistled and verbally approved. He said that the most thorough follow-up of transgender individuals in Sweden said that “the suicide rate is twenty times that of the comparable peers” and that “50 percent of the gender identity confused children have thoughts of suicide.”

Janet Rath spoke next. She said that “fifty years ago, as parents, we were smarter than what’s going on today,” and that parents are being left out of their children’s lives. She said some of this is the fault of parents and some is the fault of teachers. She said her granddaughter, a teacher, has told her that “if she has a child that comes in and identifies as a cat, she must have a litterbox there and a bowl of water.” Rath said that our country is going “absolutely insane,” and the audience murmured in agreement. She said that Dr. Fauci is “nothing but a money-grabbing liar” and “we have been hoodwinked ever since.” Rath went on to say that “Chinese children in third grade are learning advanced calculus” but “our third graders are learning which bathroom to use.”

Gerald Lomer drove 3.5 hours to attend the hearing. He supported the proposed rule and “the best governor in the United States,” to which the audience cheered and applauded. He told “stories” of a girl who wanted to spend more time with her father and thought that being a boy was the best way to do so and a boy who wanted to spend more time with his mother and thought that being a girl was the best way to do so. He said that thirteen-year-olds cannot drive a car, drink a beer, or smoke a cigarette, but are able to take hormones and obtain surgeries for gender-affirming care. He characterized gender-affirming surgeries as “mutilating.”

DELIBERATIVE

A pastor from Florida spoke next on behalf of Protect Our Children Project, Duval County Charter House, and Christian Family Coalition. She supported the rule prohibiting funding for “unnatural therapies” and does not want taxpayers to subsidize transgender care. She said that “transgenderism is driven by unethical pharmaceutical companies enriching themselves with puberty blockers” and that this is child abuse. She cited to Swedish psychiatrist Dr. Christopher Gillberg, who has said that “pediatric transition is possibly one of the greatest scandals in medical history.”

Paul Aarons, a physician, spoke next. He said he has transgender patients and friends. He said that he opposes the proposed change, because it “conflicts with the preponderance of medical science and practice and would do irreparable harm” to transgender Floridians of all ages. He said that the American Academy of Pediatrics and its Florida chapter have directly refuted the agency’s report. Aarons said that, “contrary to an earlier comment, the Endocrine Society has stated, ‘medical intervention for transgender youth and adults, including puberty suppression hormone therapy, and medically indicated surgery, has been established as their standard of care. Federal and private insurers should cover such interventions as prescribed by a physician.’” He said gender dysphoria is “very real” and that people should meet and speak to transgender individuals, which will help them realize that denial of care “at any age would be inhumane and a violation of human rights.” He said that gender-affirming care is “generally accepted professional medical standards” and that this rule would put the health and lives of transgender people in danger. He said that “it feels like Medicaid is crossing into a political lane by seeking to preempt provider/patient/family decision-making.” He said that, if the agency still wants to address this topic, they should “at least convene an appropriate panel of experts including transgender community members to inform yourselves and the public about the overwhelming evidence against denying coverage for gender affirming care.”

A doctor on the panel then encouraged everyone to read the report and its attachments. He said that the report focuses on studies which have been brought up, and “specifically the flaws” in those studies. He also encouraged audience members not to interrupt when others are speaking. He went on to say that the Endocrine Society’s 2017 guidelines “are guidelines, just that,” and they “do not guarantee an outcome” and “do not establish a standard of care.” He also referred to international reviews which “all came to the same conclusion” that “this should not be going on in minors at all,” to which the audience applauded. He said that children need “strong psychological support” and that four decades of literature point to the “overwhelming probability of mental health problems after these childhood events” and “problems like autism spectrum disorder.” He said that in other nations, having “psychological instability . . . blocks you from the transition pathway” and that “those things be taken care of first because transition simply won’t fix them.” He said that the report is a “very well-researched document” and addresses a lot of the concerns raised in comment letters.

Another panelist then referred everyone to Attachment C of the report and Dr. Hruz’s Deficiencies in Scientific Evidence for Medical Management of Gender Dysphoria.

January Littlejohn, a mental health counselor, spoke next. Her child expressed that they were experiencing gender dysphoria in 2020, shortly after three of their friends had started identifying as transgender. She said that the middle school had “socially transitioned [her child] without their knowledge or consent”³ and that her child’s “mental health spiraled.” She said that she has worked with a psychologist to help address her child’s low self-esteem and anxiety, and has “given [her child] more one-on-one time, in-person activities away from trans influences, limited [her child’s] internet use, and declined to affirm [her child’s] newly-chosen name and pronouns.” She said that they set “appropriate boundaries” and allowed her child to choose hairstyle and clothing but “denied harmful requests such as breast binders, puberty blockers, cross-sex hormones, and surgeries.” She said it was “clear from [their] conversations” that her child was uncomfortable with their developing body and had “an intense fear of being sexualized.” Littlejohn said that her child was “filled with self-loathing and was in true emotional pain,” but “had been led by peers and influencers to believe that gender was the source of [their] pain.” She said that her child needed to be “remind[ed] that hormones and surgeries can never change [their] sex or resolve [their] issues.” She said that she “shudder[s] to think what could have happened if [they] had affirmed [her child’s] false identity and consented to medical treatment” as opposed to “lovingly affirm [her child] as [they are], beautifully unique and irreplaceable and undeniably female.” She said that her child has “desisted and is on a path to self-love” but unfortunately gender dysphoric children are “being encouraged to activism peer pressure to disassociate from their bodies and to believe their body parts can be simply removed, modified, or replaced.” Littlejohn said that “the irreversible consequences of medically transitioning, including loss of sexual and reproductive function, cannot be fully understood by children or teens who lack the necessary maturity or experience.”

Kendra Barris, a mental health attorney, spoke next. She first addressed the comment about the lack of peer-reviewed standards of care, saying that this lack means that “a lot of people who are harmed or experience bad outcomes from these surgeries or other interventions have no ability to sue.” She said that “they have had decades to create peer-reviewed standards of care and they have not,” and she suspects that some people do not want to standards because it would open them up to lawsuits, which is not currently happening. She went on to say that “when you put a female on testosterone, within about five years [they are] going to have to have a hysterectomy,” which for teens could mean a potential hysterectomy before the age of twenty. She said that “hysterectomy is correlated with negative mental health outcomes and cognitive decline” and that this is worse the earlier a hysterectomy is performed. She said that “essentially, the earlier you do the hysterectomy, the earlier the onset of dementia.” She is “very concerned about” how in a few decades “we’re going to have an absolute wave of young females, 40–50 years old, with early-onset cognitive decline” in assisted-living facilities. She said that “some people who are trans and have dementia forget that they’re trans” and if they don’t have written consent to continue their transition, they “might be cut off.” She worries that “we have not considered all of the implications of this.”

The next speaker was Nathan Bruemmer, Florida’s LGBTQ Consumer Advocate. He opposed the proposed rule “on behalf of healthcare consumers,” saying that consumers “must be provided with accurate information, education, choice, safety, representation, and regress.” He said that

³ Note that news organizations have reported that Ms. Littlejohn was aware of her child’s choice to change names and pronouns at school and told the school she would not stop them from doing so. She later filed a lawsuit against the school. See, e.g., Leyla Santiago, Fact Check: Emails Show One of Desantis’s Stories Backing the Rationale for So-Called ‘Don’t Say Gay’ Law Didn’t Happen as the Governor Says, CNN Politics (Apr. 6, 2022), <https://www.cnn.com/2022/04/06/politics/fact-check-desantis-dont-say-gay-family-narrative/index.html>.

“documented, well-researched standards of care have been established, are based on a wide range of evidence, and conclude that gender-affirming medical care is medically necessary and safe and effective.” In other words, “gender-affirming care is the standard of care.” Bruemmer said that the proposed rule would “deny health care consumers . . . access to the standard of care.” He said that agencies must defend the rights of all Floridians, including transgender Floridians, and that this includes the right to non-discriminatory healthcare coverage. He said we should work to increase access to healthcare, not lessen or remove it. Bruemmer said that he is “one of . . . tens of thousands of transgender Floridians” who have had access to gender-affirming care, and who are “happy, and successful, and thriving.” He said that transgender Floridians “deserve the rights and benefits afforded to all.”

The next speaker’s name was inaudible, but he also spoke in support of the proposed rule. He told examples of his fifteen-year-old son making bad decisions, including speeding on his dirt bike and wanting to leave home, as proof that “these kids can[’t] make a decision on what they want that’s going to be with them for the rest of life.” He said that the doctors who spoke previously “are despicable,” “need to have their licenses taken away,” and “are a disgrace to the human race.”

A panelist thanked him for his comment and said, “we respect everybody’s comments, including the doctors that you referenced.”

Dottie McPherson spoke next on behalf of the Florida Federation of Republican Women. She said that even at the age of eighteen “children don’t have the maturity to handle certain responsibilities given them” like driving and alcohol, and that “even older adults don’t.” She said that state programs include “programs for abused and neglected children, but not gender decisions.” She urged the panel to “prevent funding the destruction of children’s genitalia and hormonal balance.” McPherson urged the panel to consider unintended consequences, such as “taxpayer money that will need to be used for lawsuits by those whose lives were ruined from surgeries that they got while they were immature or too young to understand,” parents whose “parental rights were denied to protect their children’s future.” She said that “life isn’t fair” and we have to “stop giving in to the ‘poor pitiful me’ syndrome.” McPherson said that government “has no business funding these things.”

Maria Caulkins spoke next in support of the proposed rule. She said that taxpayer money should not be spent on funding surgeries that are “unnecessarily and tremendously harmful.” She said that there is “a war on our children” and that we need to “protect our children” and “support our governor” by being on the “right side” of this war.

James Caulkins also spoke in support of the rule, saying that we’re “in a battle in this country.” He said that the people of Florida “have spoken” by electing “the greatest governor in the United States,” to which the audience cheered and applauded. Caulkins said that we “don’t need this stuff, this evil, this Medicaid funding for transgender surgery” and that Florida should lead other states against “this evil.”

The final speaker, whose name was also inaudible, spoke in support of the proposed rule. She said that, years ago, she was told by a doctor that she needed to undergo hormone therapy, but she “saw the risks involved.” She said that hormone therapy is an attempt to “prevent . . . natural things from occurring,” such as menstruation, and we can’t expect it not to have any problems. She cited to Bill Maher, who pointed out that transgender procedures were only occurring in major cities where “social engineering is happening and where people are being influenced” but not in the rest of the country. She lamented that she can’t go to the media and say anything against transgender individuals because it will be “criticized and condemned” which “isn’t fair.” She said that “the government should not be involved in supporting any kind of procedure to these young kids.”

A panelist thanked everyone for their comments and then clarified the purpose of the rule. He said that it is not “a ban on treatment for gender dysphoria,” but rather lack of Medicaid coverage for services mentioned in the proposed rule. He also said that “there are other comprehensive coverage of services for gender dysphoria currently in the Florida Medicaid program” before reading some of those services (community-based services, psychiatric services, emergency services and inpatient services, and behavioral health services in schools).

Understanding the Need for a Federal LGBTQ+ and HIV

Administrative Long-Term Care Bill of Rights

A Series of Listening Sessions with the White House and the Administration for Community Living

Objectives:

SAGE would leverage partnerships with federal agencies, state, and local community groups to either host or work with the White House and ACL to support a series of listening sessions on the topic of a federal LGBTQ+ and HIV Long-Term Care Bill of rights. Our goal is to protect and empower older adults who receive long-term care, whether that be through home and community-based services or institutional care, to fight discrimination on the basis of their sexual orientation, gender identity, and HIV status. Listening sessions will open the policymaking process up to LGBTQ+ older adults and older adults living with HIV, who have historically been excluded from the policy-making that impacts how they age.

We propose a series of three in-person listening sessions (outlined below) that would take place on the East Coast, the American South, and the Midwest. SAGE can facilitate partnerships with local groups to hold the in-person sessions to ensure that elders from all backgrounds and identities are represented, with a specific focus on our most marginalized elders: elders of color and trans elders.

SAGE also recommends holding a series of virtual, nation-wide listening sessions (outlined below) framed around specific demographic groups. These sessions would be held on different days and times to acknowledge that older adults have intersecting identities and they may be interested in attending more than one listening session. Demographics represented in these sessions could include: Black LGBTQ+ older adults, disabled older adults, older adults living with HIV, transgender older adults, Latine older adults, Asian and Pacific Islander LGBTQ+ older adults, LGBTQ+ indigenous older adults, LGBTQ+ older adults who speak English as a second language, LGBTQ+ older adults in the territories, and LGBTQ+ older veterans. SAGE has deep connections to the Diverse Elders Coalition, of which it is a founding member, and often partners with other organizations in these demographic groups.

We hope to invite Deputy Secretary Admiral Levine to our New York listening sessions to hold a breakout session for trans older adult participants.

Potential In Person Listening Sessions:

Listening Session Number One: New York City, NY

SAGE operates a network of five LGBTQ+ older adult centers, called SAGE Centers, and provides services at two LGBTQ+-welcoming elder housing developments in New York City. As such, we recommend conducting a listening session at one of our SAGE Centers. This would also allow for a session specifically focused on transgender and non-binary elders (TGNB) sharing their needs and experiences with Deputy Secretary Admiral Rachel Levine.

Community Partners: Five SAGE Centers across the boroughs, the New York City LGBT Center, New Pride Agenda, GRIOT Circle, the Ali Forney Center, and Callen Lorde

Listening Session Number Two: St Louis, MO

St Louis' central location between the Midwest and the South positions it well to encompass multiple rural areas and experiences. Hosting a listening session in St Louis could also draw in participants from Northern Arkansas and Southern Illinois to represent rural issues. This would allow us to leverage partnerships in a place rarely reached by national organizations and uplift the needs of rural elders. Community Partners: PROMO, Metro Trans Umbrella Group, The GLO Center, Golden Rainbows of Illinois South, and Northwest Arkansas Equality

Listening Session Number Three: Miami, FL

Florida has been a bellwether for LGBTQ+ equality in recent years; many of the anti-trans bills introduced in the state have been copied in other states. It also has a high older adult population, as well as a high immigrant and Latinx population. Holding a listening session in Miami, FL would allow SAGE to engage with our closest partners who work with LGBTQ+ older adults in one of the states where they are most under threat. It would also allow us to focus on the needs of LGBTQ+ older adults who speak English as a second language or who are immigrants.

Community Partners: Miami Freedom Project, Equality Florida, Arianna's Center, Florida Rising, Transinclusive Group, TransSocial, Pride Center at Equality Park, Unity Coalition, Jewish Community Services and Southerners on New Ground

Potential Virtual Listening Sessions:

To augment the in-person listening sessions and reach a deeper cross-section of the LGBTQ+ elder community, SAGE proposes holding a series of virtual listening sessions focused on those living at the intersections of multiple marginalized identities and those who bring unique lived experiences. LGBTQ+ elders of color, LGBTQ+ elders living with disabilities, veterans, and others experience aging differently than their counterparts. As such, SAGE recommends hosting a series of virtual listening sessions with the following demographic groups to ensure that any bill of rights the Administration advances is fully inclusive of the diverse needs of all LGBTQ+ elders.

Black LGBTQ+ and/or Same-Gender Loving (SGL) Older Adults

Community Partners: National Black Justice Coalition, National Caucus and Center on Black Aging, Griot Circle, Affinity Community Services, Zami Nobla, Black Trans Advocacy Coalition, Brave Space Alliance

Disabled LGBTQ+ Older Adults

Community Partners: Milwaukee LGBT Center, National Center for Disability Rights

Transgender and Non-Binary Older Adults

Community Partners: National Center for Transgender Equality, Black Trans Advocacy Coalition, Trans Latina Coalition, Silvia Rivera Law Project, Transgender Law Project, Transgender Legal Defense Fund, Brave Space Alliance

Older Adults Living with HIV

Community Partners: AIDS United, Sero Project, Equality Federation, SAGEPositive

Latinx LGBTQ+ Older Adults

Community Partners: National Hispanic Council on Aging, Trans Latina Coalition, LULAC

Indigenous LGBTQ+ Older Adults:

Community Partners: National Indian Council on Aging, Native Movement

LGBTQ+ Older Adults Who Served as Veterans

Community Partners: Minority Veterans of America, Transgender American Veterans Association, American Veterans for Equal Rights, SAGEVets, Modern Military Association of America

AAPI LGBTQ+ Older Adults

Community Partners: National Asian Pacific Center on Aging, Southeast Asia Resource Action Center, National Queer Asian Pacific Islander Alliance

LGBTQ+ Older Adults in the Territories

Community Partners: Waves Ahead Puerto Rico

Bilingual/ESL Older Adults:

Community Partners: Diverse Elders Coalition, Justice in Aging

LGBTQ+ Older Adults Who are Immigrants:

Community Partners: Justice in Aging, Rush Center for Excellence in Aging, Immigration Equality, Immigration Law Project at LA LGBT Center, Immigrant Justice

Conclusion and Timing:

The members of the Stonewall Generation are aging. They have the expertise, foresight, and the experience to make meaningful contributions, yet they are often left out of conversations about both aging and LGBTQ+ identity. The preceding listening sessions would provide these elders the opportunity to speak to their needs in long-term care, not only as LGBTQ+ people, but also as Black, Indigenous, and other people of color, as immigrants, people who have served as veterans, and more.

In order to build trust in these communities, it is important to allow time to partner with the organizations listed above. Because these listening sessions would require deep and meaningful partnership with leaders in the movement of each focus group, SAGE recommends a lead time of at least three months to organize these virtual sessions. This would ensure that the listening sessions are truly representative and informative for the White House. A fast-turnaround makes trust-building and partnership difficult, and SAGE would like to uplift the leadership of movement partners for each of these events.

For the in-person listening sessions in New York City, a goal of holding the sessions in March would allow for proper outreach. For the sessions in Florida and St Louis, we recommend April as a target date. Older Americans Month in May would offer a hook for each of the virtual listening sessions and offer enough time for outreach.

We look forward to our partnership with you and welcome any feedback. Please refer any further questions to Emma Bessire, SAGE's Manager of Civic Engagement, whose contact information can be found at the bottom of this page.

AN ACT

To establish a Bill of Rights for LGBTQ, Intersex, and HIV-Positive Residents of Long-Term Care Facilities, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. FINDINGS.

(a) All long-term care facility residents have the right to competent, considerate, and respectful care in a safe setting that fosters the resident's comfort and dignity and is free from all forms of discrimination, including discrimination wholly or partially based upon a person's actual or perceived sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, transgender status, intersex status, or HIV status.

(b) LGBTQ older adults, intersex older adults, and older adults living with HIV frequently experience discrimination in daily life, and are particularly vulnerable in long-term care facility settings, where they must rely on others for the care and services they need, and have more limited privacy. LGBTQ older adults have shared stories that illustrate the persistent discrimination they face, which coupled with the lack of cultural competency at many facilities, has devastating and troubling effects. Among other forms of discrimination, these stories include facilities and their staff forcing individuals to wear clothing contrary to their gender identity and expression; refusing to respect the name and/or pronouns the individual uses; traumatically cutting off an individual's access to necessary gender affirming medications; restricting medical decision-making to a resident's family of origin against that individual's wishes; disrespecting residents' rooming requirements and visitation preferences; subjecting individuals to harassment because of their sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, intersex status, or HIV status; lacking medical understanding of the medications and treatments residents require, particularly those for treating HIV or affirming a resident's gender; and wrongfully discharging or refusing to accept residents. These examples of discrimination against LGBTQ older adults, intersex older adults, and those living with HIV are just a sampling, and often the discriminatory acts arise not only from facility staff, but also the other residents living in these facilities.

(c) This discrimination against LGBTQ individuals and those living with HIV in long-term care facilities has gone largely unaddressed. For example, according to a 2010 Justice in Aging study reformatted in 2015 entitled "Stories from the Field: LGBT Older Adults in Long-Term Care Facilities," 43% of respondents reported personally witnessing or experiencing instances of mistreatment of LGBTQ older adults in a long term care facility, including verbal or physical harassment from other residents; being refused admission or re-admission or being abruptly discharged; verbal or physical harassment from staff; staff refusal to accept medical power of attorney from the resident's spouse or partner; discriminatory restrictions on visitation; and staff refusal to refer to a transgender resident by his or her preferred name or pronouns. 81% of respondents believed that other residents would discriminate against an LGBTQ older adult in a long-term care facility; 89% of respondents believed that staff would discriminate against an LGBTQ older adult in a long-term care facility; and 53% believed that staff discrimination would rise to the level of abuse or neglect. In a study conducted by AARP, LGBT community members indicated that when thinking about long-term care facilities, 67% were concerned with neglect, 62% were concerned with abuse, 61% were concerned with limited access to LGBT-specific older adult services and 60% were concerned with verbal or physical harassment.

(d) Given these inadequacies, LGBTQ older adults, intersex older adults, and older adults living with HIV are more reluctant than their peers to access medical care. LGBTQ individuals, including those who identify as transgender or gender non-conforming, have some of the highest rates of concerns surrounding the quality of healthcare they will receive and whether it will be impacted by their sexual orientation or gender identity. This reluctance to receive services results in worse health and social outcomes in our older adult communities. Those older adults who do receive services commonly live in fear of discrimination and receive inadequate care in these facilities where they are often mistreated.

(e) Discrimination against LGBTQ people, intersex people, and people living with HIV is already prohibited in various long term care settings. Section 1557 of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (42 U.S.C. § 18116) prohibits discrimination in federally-funded or -administered health programs on the basis of actual or perceived sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, transgender status, intersex status, or HIV status. The Fair Housing Act (42 U.S.C. § 3601 et seq.) prohibits this same discrimination in housing. Titles II and III of the Americans with Disabilities Act (42 U.S.C. § 12181 et seq.) and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. § 794) bar discrimination based on having or being regarded as having a disability, including HIV status, gender dysphoria, and intersex traits, in government-funded or -conducted programs and in places of public accommodation. However, many facilities fail to understand the scope of these legal obligations and lack the training and experience to deliver high quality nondiscriminatory care to LGBTQ, intersex, or HIV-positive older adults. As a result, these older adults continue to face discrimination in long-term care settings. This Act addresses these shortcomings by mandating affirmative requirements for long-term care facilities, prohibiting specific discriminatory acts in the long-term care setting, and providing information and remedies to ensure that LGBTQ residents, intersex residents, and residents living with HIV know their rights and have the means to enforce them.

SECTION 2. AFFIRMATIVE REQUIREMENTS.

Every long-term care facility and its staff shall:

- (a) refer to each resident using the resident's chosen name and pronouns throughout the course of care, in all medical records, and in all resident histories;
- (b) assign each resident a room in accordance with the resident's gender identity;
- (c) permit every resident to use any restroom open to their gender identity;
- (d) involve each resident in their own medical planning and decision-making;
- (e) if power of attorney designations have not already been made, permit each resident to designate one or more individuals—and to place conditions on or limit the extent of any such authority—to instruct the facility about the resident's medical planning and decision-making when the resident cannot participate;
- (f) permit each resident to restrict or prohibit individuals, without limitation, from visiting the resident;

- (g) permit each resident to identify individuals who would not otherwise enjoy family visitation rights, and allow such individuals the same access to visit the resident as the facility affords the next of kin;
- (h) inform each applicant to become a resident in writing of the basis for every denial of admission and shall maintain the records related to these decisions for a period of no less than three years; and
- (i) inform each resident in writing of the basis for every involuntary transfer, discharge, or eviction from a facility relating to the resident and shall maintain the records related to these decisions for a period of no less than three years.

SECTION 3. PROHIBITIONS.

(a) Prohibited actions. It shall be unlawful for a long-term care facility or facility staff to take any of the following actions because of a person's actual or perceived sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, transgender status, intersex status, or HIV status:

- (1) deny admission to the facility;
- (2) discharge or evict a resident from the facility;
- (3) transfer a resident within a facility or to another facility, or deny a transfer the resident requested;
- (4) deny a resident a room in accordance with the resident's gender identity, or deny the mutual request of residents to share a room;
- (5) fail to accept a resident's verbal or written attestation of their gender identity or require any resident to prove their gender identity by the means of any form of identification;
- (6) willfully and repeatedly fail to use a resident's chosen name and pronouns after being reasonably informed of the resident's chosen name and pronouns;
- (7) deny a resident the right to wear or be dressed in clothing, accessories, or cosmetics of the resident's choosing;
- (8) restrict a resident's right to associate with other residents or with visitors, including, without limitation, the right to consensual sexual relationships or display of physical affection;
- (9) discriminate against a resident in the terms, conditions, or privileges of residence in the long-term care facility, or in the provision of medical or nonmedical care, services, or facilities in connection therewith; and
- (10) fail to take any action within the facility's power to stop discriminatory harassment if the facility knew or should have known about such discriminatory harassment.

(b) Non-retaliation. It shall be unlawful for any person to take any adverse action against a person because that person:

- (1) has opposed any act or practice made unlawful by this Act;
- (2) has invoked this Act or its enforcement for the purpose of supporting themselves or others;
- (3) has filed a complaint under this Act with the OCR or any court; or
- (4) has testified, assisted, or participated in any investigation, proceeding, or litigation under this Act.

SECTION 4. STATEMENT OF RIGHTS

Each facility shall post the following notice in a prominent location in the facility accessible to residents and in the materials provided to potential residents and their caregivers, next to any other nondiscrimination policy:

“It is against the law for a long-term care facility, its staff, or other residents to discriminate against residents on the basis of actual or perceived sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, intersex status, or HIV status, or based on association with another individual on account of that individual’s actual or perceived sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, intersex status, or HIV status. You may file a complaint with the HHS’ Office of Civil Rights (1-800-368-1019; ocrmail@hhs.gov) if you believe that you have experienced this kind of discrimination.”

SECTION 5. TRAINING.

(a) Requirement to provide training. Each long-term care facility shall ensure that the long-term care facility staff, and any persons who contract to provide services to the long-term care facility, receive training, at onboarding and thereafter at least once every two years, concerning:

- (1) caring for LGBTQ older adults, intersex older adults, and older adults living with HIV; and
- (2) preventing discrimination based on sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, transgender status, intersex status, and HIV status.

(b) Training requirements. At a minimum, the onboarding training required by this section shall include:

- (1) the definition of the terms commonly associated with sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, transgender status, gender-affirming care, intersex status, and HIV;
- (2) best practices for communicating with or about LGBTQ older adults, intersex older adults, and older adults living with HIV, including the use of a resident’s chosen name and pronouns;
- (3) an exploration of the health and social challenges historically experienced by LGBTQ older adults, intersex older adults, and older adults living with HIV, including discrimination when seeking or receiving care at long-term care facilities, and the demonstrated physical, mental, and spiritual health effects within the LGBTQ community associated with such discrimination;
- (4) strategies to create a safe and affirming environment for LGBTQ older adults, intersex older adults, and older adults living with HIV, including suggested changes to facility policies and procedures, forms, signage, communication between residents and their families, activities, and staff training and in-house services; and
- (5) an overview of the provisions of this Act, and Section 1557 of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (42 U.S.C. § 18116), as each may be amended from time to time.

(c) Additional requirements for ongoing biennial training. At a minimum, the ongoing biennial training required by this section shall include:

- (1) A refresher course on best practices for communication with or about LGBTQ older adults, intersex older adults, and older adults living with HIV, including the use of a resident's chosen name and pronouns; and
- (2) A refresher course on strategies to create a safe and affirming environment for LGBTQ older adults, intersex older adults, and older adults living with HIV.

(d) Requirements for training entity. The training required pursuant to this section shall be provided by an entity that has demonstrated expertise in identifying the legal, social, and medical challenges faced by, and creating safe and affirming environments for, LGBTQ older adults, intersex older adults, and older adults living with HIV who reside in long-term care facilities.

(e) Record retention.

- (1) Each long-term care facility shall retain records documenting the completion of the training required pursuant to this section by each administrator and staff member at the long-term care facility for a period of no less than seven years;
- (2) Compliance records shall be made available, upon request, to the OCR.

(f) No entitlement of long-term care facility to federal funds for training implementation. Nothing in this Act shall be construed as entitling any long-term care facility to federal funds to implement the training required by this section, nor to prohibit any long-term care facility from spending federal funds to implement the training required by this section to the extent consistent with the documents governing the award or distribution of those federal funds.

(g) Publication of layperson's handbook. Within one year of the effective date of this Act, the OCR shall publish a layperson's handbook to assist long-term care facilities in complying with this Section and to suggest model practices to serve the needs of LGBTQ residents, intersex residents, and residents living with HIV. The OCR shall also publish a list of medical providers available to provide medical care to transgender residents of long-term care facilities and shall update this list on an annual basis.

SECTION 6. RECORDKEEPING.

In addition to other records required to be kept under this Act, each long-term facility shall ensure that a resident's records, including those created at the time of admission, contain the resident's gender identity, preferred gender expression, chosen name, and chosen pronouns, as indicated by the resident.

SECTION 7. ENFORCEMENT.

(a) Civil action.

- (1) Any aggrieved person, the Attorney General of the United States, the attorney general of any state, any organization whose members have suffered or are threatened with violations of this Act, or any person designated in Section 2(g) of this Act may enforce the provisions of this Act against a long-term care facility or its staff by means of a civil action in the federal district court embracing the location of the facility not later than 4 years after the termination of an alleged violation of this Act.

(2) The computation of such 4-year period shall not include any time during which an administrative proceeding under this section was pending with respect to a complaint or charge under this subchapter.

(3) Any long-term care facility is liable under this subsection if

(A) it is found that the facility acted or failed to act, in a negligent manner, to cause a violation of any provision of this Act; or

(B) it is found that the facility had actual or constructive knowledge that a resident of the long-term care facility infringed any of the protections provided by this Act or engaged in conduct prohibited by this Act, and the facility (x) did not take substantial action designed to prevent or remedy such infringement or prohibited conduct or (y) aided in such infringement or prohibited conduct.

(4) An aggrieved person, the Attorney General of the United States, the attorney general of any state, any organization whose members have suffered or are threatened with violations of this Act, or any person designated in Section 2(g) of this Act may commence a civil action under this subsection whether or not a complaint has been filed under subsection (d) and without regard to the status of any such complaint.

(b) Relief which may be granted.

(1) In a civil action under subsection (a), if the court finds that a violation of this Act has occurred or is about to occur, the court may award to the plaintiff

(A) a monetary award equal to three times the actual damages sustained as a result of the violation;

(B) a civil monetary penalty not to exceed $1,000 per violation, considering each day that a continuing violation persists a separate violation;

(C) emotional distress damages as the court may allow;

(D) punitive damages as the court may allow; and

(E) any permanent or temporary injunction, temporary restraining order, or other order (including an order enjoining the defendant from engaging in such practice or ordering such affirmative action as may be appropriate), as the court deems appropriate, even if any plaintiff did not or will not personally suffer the violation the plaintiff establishes.

(2) In a civil action under subsection (a), the court, in its discretion, may allow the prevailing party reasonable attorney's fees and costs.

(c) Administrative action.

(1) Any person who believes that a facility has committed an act in violation of this Act may file a complaint with the OCR which shall be deemed a request to have the OCR investigate and mediate the complaint.

(2) If it is determined that the complaint falls within the OCR's jurisdiction, the OCR shall investigate the allegations and provide the complainant in writing with its determination regarding enforcement. If OCR determines it lacks jurisdiction, it shall so state in writing to the person who filed the complaint.

(d) Non-exculpation. Any provision in any contract with a resident is void to the extent that it purports to restrict or eliminate or by operation of law would restrict or eliminate the causes of action provided in this section, the ability of any person entitled to bring an action under this section to do so in a class action or on a representative basis, or the amount of monetary relief the resident may seek or receive under this section.

SECTION 8. OMBUDSMAN PROGRAM

(a) Designation of LGBTQ+ liaison. If a long-term care facility operates in a state that has an Office of the State Long-Term Care Ombudsman, then such long-term care facility shall designate an independent entity who is not a member of the facility staff to serve as an LGBTQ+ liaison to the State Long-Term Care Ombudsman and shall submit the name and contact information of the designated staff member to the OCR and the Office of the State Long-Term Care Ombudsman. The LGBTQ+ liaison shall complete an annual training that fulfills the requirements of Section 5.

(b) Duties of the LGBTQ+ liaison. The LGBTQ+ liaison shall carry out the functions of the ombudsman as defined in section 712(a)(3) of the Older Americans Act of 1965, as amended (42 U.S.C. § 3001 et seq.) and shall ensure that affirmative requirements and prohibitions are enforced, that residents are aware of their rights in the long-term care facility setting, and that the LGBTQ+ liaison is equipped to protect such rights of residents.

(c) Effect on other law. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent or exempt a long-term care facility from designating, employing, or contracting with any ombudsperson otherwise permitted or required by any other provision of applicable law.

SECTION 9. AMENDMENTS TO EXISTING STATUTES

Section 102(24) of the Older Americans Act of 1965, as amended (42 U.S.C. § 3001 et seq.) is amended to read as follows:

 - (A) physical and mental disabilities;

Subject: Justification Memo Draft

Hi Dylan,

I hope your week is going well! Attached is a rough draft of the Florida Medicaid justification memo. It's not fully polished yet, because I had some questions (noted here in comments) that I was hoping you could answer before I finalize everything. Once some of this is clarified I should be able to get you a more finished version pretty quickly.

Please let me know if you'd rather hop on a call to talk through some of this, or if I should consult with Susie or someone else instead! I know you're busy 😊

Best,
Vatsala

SUBJECT: INFORMATION MEMO – Florida Proposed Rule 59G-1.050

1. Background

In June 2022, the Florida Agency for Health Care Administration proposed amendments to Florida Administrative Code Rule 59G-1.050, the General Medicaid Policy. 48 Fla. Admin. Reg. 2461–62 (June 17, 2022). The proposed rule states that certain gender-affirming procedures are not covered under Florida Medicare. Id.

This memorandum will first detail the content and timeline of the proposed rule, as well as the report used to justify promulgation. It will then explore the current status of the proposed rule and developments since its original publication. It will also note the work of Florida organizations on this rule, before turning to next steps on the proposed rule.

a. Timeline and Contents

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration proposed an amendment to the Florida General Medicaid Policy in June 2022. The proposed amendment adds the following text:

(7) Gender Dysphoria

(a) Florida Medicaid does not cover the following services for the treatment of gender dysphoria:

1. Puberty blockers;
2. Hormones and hormone antagonists;
3. Sex reassignment surgeries; and
4. Any other procedures that alter primary or secondary sexual characteristics.

(b) For the purpose of determining medical necessity, including Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis, and Treatment (EPSDT), the services listed in subparagraph (7)(a) do not meet the definition of medical necessity in accordance with Rule 59G-1.010, F.A.C.

48 Fla. Admin. Reg. 2461–62 (June 17, 2022). As rulemaking authority for promulgating this amendment, the agency cites Florida Statute § 409.919 and § 409.961, which some commenters have challenged as being insufficient for this proposal. See infra Appendix. Sections 409.919 and 409.961 both include the same language surrounding agency rulemaking. Both state that the agency “shall adopt any rules necessary to comply with or administer” Medicaid “and all rules necessary to comply with federal requirements.” Fla. Stat. § 409.919 (2021); Fla. Stat. § 409.961

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration held a hearing on this proposed rule on July 8, 2022. Written comments were due to the agency on July 11, 2022, and they reportedly received approximately 1,200 total public comments. Forrest Saunders, Agency for Health Care Administration Set to Decide on Medicaid Coverage of Gender Dysphoria Therapies, WPTV (July 11, 2022). No further developments have yet ensued on the rule.

b. Florida Medicaid Report

In order for services to be covered under Florida Medicaid, they must be “medically necessary.” Agency for Health Care Admin., Florida Medicaid: Definitions Policy 7 (2017). Part of this definition includes being “consistent with generally accepted professional medical standards” and not being “experimental or investigational.” Id.

Shortly before the proposed rule was published, the Division of Florida Medicaid issued a report (“Florida Medicaid Report”) concluding that gender-affirming care is not medically necessary because it is not “consistent with generally accepted professional medical standards” and it is “experimental or investigational.” See Div. of Fla. Medicaid, Florida Medicaid: Generally Accepted Professional Medical Standards Determination on the Treatment of Gender Dysphoria (June 2022). In making this conclusion, the report opened the door for the Medicaid exclusion. The Florida Medicaid Report incorporates literature reviews on the etiology of gender dysphoria, desistance of gender dysphoria and puberty suppression, cross-sex hormones as a treatment for gender dysphoria, sex reassignment surgery, and the quality of available evidence and bioethical questions. Id. at 1. It also explores coverage policies domestically and in western Europe, and includes several attachments, including articles in support. Id. at 1–2.

The Florida Medicaid Report claims that “[a]vailable medical literature provides insufficient evidence that sex reassignment through medical intervention is a safe and effective treatment for gender dysphoria” and that studies focusing on the benefits “are either low or very low quality and rely on unreliable methods.” Id. at 2. It claims that current evidence around gender-affirming care shows that it “cause[s] irreversible physical changes and side effects that can affect long-term health.” Id. From the literature reviews conducted, the report states that “Florida Medicaid has determined that the research supporting sex reassignment treatment is insufficient to demonstrate efficacy and safety.” Id. at 3.

Numerous critiques have been levied against the Florida Medicaid Report, both in public comments as described infra Part 2 and in external documents. Most comprehensively, faculty members from Yale and other universities¹ drafted a report reviewing the Florida Medicaid Report (“Critical Review”). See Meredith McNamara et al., A Critical Review of the June 2022 Florida Medicaid Report on the Medical Treatment of Gender Dysphoria (July 8, 2022). The Critical Review states that the Florida Medicaid Report “purports to be a review of the scientific and medical evidence but is, in fact, fundamentally unscientific” as it “makes false statements and contains glaring errors regarding science, statistical methods, and medicine.” Id. at 2. The Critical Review is structured in five parts. It argues that “medical care for gender dysphoria is supported by a robust scientific consensus, meets generally accepted professional medical standards, and is neither experimental nor investigational”; that the Florida Medicaid Report is “a flawed analysis that ignores the scientific evidence and relies instead on pseudo-science” including experts who have been disqualified in court; that the Florida Medicaid Report “makes unfounded criticisms of robust and well-regarded clinical research and . . . cites sources with little or no scientific merit”; that the Florida Medicaid Report’s “linchpin” is an analysis which is “extremely narrow in scope, inexperienced, and so flawed it merits no scientific weight at all”; and that the Florida Medicaid Report “erroneously dismisses solid studies as ‘low quality,’” which if followed regularly would mean that widely-used medications and common medical procedures would also have to be denied coverage. Id. at 3.

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration responded to the Critical Review, stating that it is “another example of the left-wing academia propaganda machine arrogantly demanding you follow their words and not the clear evidence-based science sitting right in front of you” and that it is a “hodgepodge of baseless claims” without authority or credibility. Dara Kam, Expert Report Condemns Florida’s Plan to Ban Medicaid Coverage for Transgender Care, Palm Coast Observer (July 17, 2022).

2. Current Status

While no further actions have yet been taken on the proposed rule, several other developments have ensued. First, the Florida Agency for Health Care Administration held a public hearing and accepted public comments on the proposed rule, both of which are discussed below and in the Appendix.

Additionally, the Florida Department of Health submitted a petition to the Florida Board of Medicine, urging them to bar physicians from providing gender-affirming care to minors. See Florida Medical Board to Weigh Blocking Treatments for Transgender Youth, CBS Miami (Aug. 1, 2022). The change would create a standard of care prohibiting individuals under the age of eighteen from receiving gender-affirming surgeries and hormones; it would also mandate a consent form and waiting period for older individuals. Id. The petition relied on guidance issued by the Florida Department of Health which stated that gender-affirming care should not be a treatment option for minors, Off. of State Surgeon Gen., Fla. Dep’t of Health, Treatment of Gender Dysphoria for Children and Adolescents (Apr. 20, 2022), as well as the Florida Medicaid Report discussed supra Part 1-b. Florida Medical Board to Weigh Blocking Treatments for Transgender Youth, CBS Miami (Aug. 1, 2022). The next steps in this process are for the Board of Medicine to draft a proposed rule and take public comment. Id.

a. July 8, 2022 Hearing

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration held a lively public hearing on July 8, 2022 on the proposed rule. The hearing consisted mostly of public comments, a comprehensive summary of which is attached in the Appendix. The full hearing can be viewed online. 7/8/22

DELIBERATIVE

Agency for Health Care Administration Hearing on General Medicaid Policy Rule, Fla. Channel (July 8, 2022).

The hearing included a “panel of experts” consisting of Dr. Andre Van Mol, Dr. Quentin Van Meter, and Dr. Miriam Grossman. Dr. Van Meter has been found by a court unqualified to be an expert on the subject of gender-affirming care. See Stephen Caruso, A Texas Judge Ruled This Doctor was Not an Expert. A Pennsylvania Republican Invited Him to Testify on Trans Health Care, Penn. Capital-Star (Sept. 15, 2020). He is also the president of the American College of Pediatricians, an advocacy group whose primary focus is to advocate for conservative policies in medicine, which has been categorized by the Southern Poverty Law Center as a hate group. See American College of Pediatricians, Southern Poverty L. Ctr., (last visited July 22, 2022). Dr. Van Mol is also a member. Andre Van Mol, Pub. Discourse, (last visited July 22, 2022). The panelists spoke at several times during the hearing, primarily to point the audience towards the Florida Medicaid Report. See Appendix.

Over the two-hour hearing period, fifty public commenters spoke. Forty-two of those commenters supported the proposed rule and eight opposed it. Of the forty-two in support, two formerly identified as transgender but have since detransitioned, eight were representatives of the Christian Family Coalition, and at least ten mentioned God or the Bible as part of their rationale. Many supporters also raised concerns that children and teenagers are not mature or knowledgeable enough to choose these procedures, or that they are being unduly influenced by their peers and may later regret transitioning. Notably, the proposed rule would apply to gender-affirming care for individuals of all ages, not only youth. 48 Fla. Admin. Reg. 2461–62 (June 17, 2022). Several supporters also cited the Florida Medicaid Report as being well-researched and providing a strong basis for the rule; some opponents of the rule noted criticisms of the report including those raised by the Critical Review.

b. Florida Organizations and Individuals

The university faculty who wrote the Critical Review also wrote a significant public comment on the proposed rule. See Letter from Anne L. Alstott et al. to Simone Marstiller & Tom Wallace re Rule No. 59G-1.050: General Medicaid Policy (July 8, 2022). The letter highlights similar concerns, noting that the “complete absence of scientific foundation for the Proposed Rule renders it an arbitrary and capricious use of rulemaking power” and that it “cannot [be] characterize[d] . . . as a valid interpretation of the existing Florida regulations on generally accepted professional medical standards, because the [Florida Medicaid] Report fails to satisfy Florida’s own regulatory requirements for scientific review.” Id. at 2. It reiterates concerns about the Florida Medicaid Report, including the cited experts’ bias and lack of expertise, errors about scientific research and medical regulation, and lack of scientific weight. Id. passim, 20.

Disability Rights Florida submitted a comment also opposing the proposed rule. See Letter from Peter P. Sleasman to Simone Marstiller re Proposed Amendments to Rule 59G-1.050. The letter focuses primarily on how this proposed rule “will cause unnecessary and disproportionate harm to individuals with disabilities living in Florida,” especially those who are low-income. Id. at 1. It notes that transgender individuals “are more than twice as likely as the general population to live in poverty,” and transgender individuals with disabilities are four times as likely. Id. at 2.

Disability Rights Florida goes on to raise concerns about the agency’s “apparent failure to take even minimal steps to ensure that the rulemaking workshop . . . is accessible to the very people with disabilities it will directly impact,” citing to the lack of accommodations, contact information for seeking accommodations, and response regarding livestreaming. Id. at 3.

As did the Endocrine Society. See Letter from Ursula Kaiser to Agency for Health Care Administration re 59G-1.050: General Medicaid Policy (July 8, 2022). They note that their guidelines, “while not standards of care that clinicians are legally bound to follow, . . . provide a framework for best practices, and deviations must be justified.” Id. at 1–2. They expound on how their guidelines were developed—using a “robust and rigorous process that adheres to the highest standards of trustworthiness and transparency” and with a “systematic review of the evidence that supports [clinical] questions”—in contrast to the Florida Medicaid Report, which “did not include endocrinologists with expertise in transgender medicine,” “makes sweeping statements against gender affirming medical care that are not supported by evidence or references provided,” and “does not acknowledge the data showing harm reduction and improvements in behavioral health issues” that result from gender affirming care. Id. at 2–3. The letter goes on to state that this proposed rule would cause irreparable harm to transgender youth, including putting their lives at risk. Id. at 6.

Equality Florida advocated against the rule as well. Equality Florida, Press Release, Equality Florida Decries Proposed Rule to Eliminate Medicaid Coverage for Gender Affirming Care (June 17, 2022). They note that this will affect approximately 9,000 transgender Floridians insured with Medicaid, and that “major medical and mental health associations recognize the critical importance of gender affirming care.” Id.

The Florida Coalition for Trans Liberation has also put together a short policy brief around the proposed rule. See Fla. Coal. for Trans Liberation, Stop Rule 59G-1.050 (2022). They note that this proposed rule contravenes all major medical advice, pushes a political agenda, and can be life-threatening. Id.

Florida Policy Institute also submitted a comment. See Letter from Anne Swerlick to Thomas Wallace re Proposed Rule 59G-1.050, Florida Administrative Code (July 7, 2022). They note that the proposed rule would “bar transgender patients from accessing essential care and reverse current Medicaid policies which have been in effect for years. Id. at 1. They also point out that this is counter to established standards of care, inconsistent with antidiscrimination laws, and exacerbates the challenges that transgender individuals already face. Id. It closes by noting that this rule seems to be “weaponiz[ing] [the Medicare program] as a tool for promoting a particular political agenda.” Id.

While the majority of public comments during the July 8 hearing were in support of the rule, few comments posted online seem to be, and Florida Medicaid has not made all of the comments publicly available. Christian Family Coalition, who was also heavily represented at the July 8 hearing, did make a public statement, stating that this rule was “important and necessary” to protect Floridians, “especially minors, from harmful transgender surgeries, hormone blockers, and other unnatural therapies.” CFC Florida to Testify in Support of DeSantis Administration Rule Banning Medicaid Funding for Transgender Surgeries and Puberty Blockers, Best Things

3. Next Steps

Several nonprofit groups in Florida are prepared to push back against the proposed rule. Lambda Legal, the National Health Law Program, the Florida Health Justice Project, and Southern Legal Counsel issued a statement criticizing the Florida Medicaid Report and stating that they “stand ready to defend the rights of transgender people in Florida.” LGBTQ Groups to Fight Florida Over Medicaid Ban for Trans Treatments, CBS Miami (June 6, 2022).

One potential avenue for doing so may be seeking an administrative determination. Florida law says that any person “substantially affected by a . . . proposed rule may seek an administrative determination of the invalidity of the rule on the ground that the rule is an invalid exercise of delegated legislative authority. Fla. Stat. § 120.56 (2022). If a complaint is properly filed, the state must assign an administrative law judge (ALJ) to conduct a hearing within thirty days. Id. at (1)(c). The ALJ may declare the proposed rule wholly or partially invalid, and the rule then may not be adopted unless the judgment is reversed on appeal. Id. at (2)(b).

Appendix: Summary from July 8, 2022 Hearing

This appendix will detail the public comments made at the July 8 hearing regarding the proposed changes to 59G-1.050. There is no readily available transcript of the proceedings, so please note that names below may be missing or misspelled. Each speaker was met with audience applause at the end of their remarks, but any audience reactions during remarks are noted below.

The meeting opened with introductions of the panelists and representatives and a brief summary of the rule before opening the floor for public comments. Public commenters were asked to state their name and organization and to limit comments to two minutes, focusing only on the proposed rule language. The agency also noted that comments could be submitted via email.

The first speaker was Chloe Cole, a 17-year-old detransitioner from California. Cole began medical transition at the age of 13. In retrospect, she states that she was not becoming a man, but was just “fleeing from the uncomfortable feeling of being [a] wom[a]n.” Chloe states that she “really didn’t understand all of the ramifications of any of the medical decisions that [she] was making” when she chose to undergo a double mastectomy at the age of 15. She lamented that she will never be able to breastfeed, has blood clots in her urine, cannot fully empty her bladder, and does not know if she can ever give birth.²

The next speaker was Sophia Galvin, also a detransitioner. She states that she had a history of mental illness, including self-harm and suicidal ideation, and that her desire to transition was “all in an effort to escape the fear of being a woman in this society.” Galvin stated that she had no support when she chose to detransition; her doctor told her to stop taking hormones but she did not see a mental health counselor. She said that “this is not good for children” and she “was harmed by this, and it should not be covered under Medicaid.”

Next, the mother of a transgender boy spoke. She said that a physician gave her son testosterone at the age of 16 without her consent or knowledge, and that Medicaid covered her son’s double mastectomy, hysterectomy, and vaginoplasty. She states that her son had private insurance but it was bypassed. She said that it is “impossible to change one’s biological sex” and that doctors should not be affirming the “lie that biological sex is changeable.” She characterized these lies as “child abuse,” at which point the crowd began to applaud, and said that “amputating the healthy body parts of a child whose brain has not reached full decision-making maturity is simply criminal.” This led to more applause. She further characterized gender-affirming care as a “medical experiment.”

The next speaker, Jeanette Cooper, spoke on behalf of Partners for Ethical Care. Cooper stated that “we need to make space in the public sphere for ethical therapists by removing the medical treatment option” and characterized gender identity affirmation as a “poisoned bandage on the skin of children causing permanent psychological and physical harm.” The audience applauded when Cooper said “everyone knows what a woman is, but some people are afraid to say it.” Cooper went on to state that “the state has no business using taxpayer funding to turn children into permanent medical patients” and “assisting doctors in selling disabilities to vulnerable suffering children.” She further said that gender-affirming care is “not real healthcare” and that the state should instead fund “legitimate care” that addresses trans children’s “actual needs.” She likened the satisfaction children get from gender-affirming care to “a street drug that needs to be injected every day.” Cooper closed by stating that the medical is “failing these families” and that her organization supports the proposed rule.

Donna Lambert, on behalf of Concerned Parents, also supported the rule. She said that “the healthcare professionals are presenting many [parents] with a false and painful choice: accept what we know will permanently harm our children, or lose them to suicide.” She stated that “there is no data to prove that medically transitioning minors prevents suicide” and that parents lose their children down this “dangerous medical path permanently harming their healthy bodies with off-label drugs and experimental surgeries.” Lambert said that transgender children “become angry and hostile and resentful; they begin lashing out at anyone who will not agree with their newfound identity.” She described this as a “destructive social phenomenon” which “cuts parents out of the equation.”

A Christian pastor spoke next, stating that the Bible teaches that “God makes people made and female” and to try and transition people “is a sin” and “should be a criminal abuse of children, especially when they’re not at the age when they can properly process what they’re doing to themselves.” He said that the “one goal” of doctors who provide gender-affirming care is to “cut[] back on the birth rate.” He supported the proposed rule and said Florida should “go further” and classify aiding in this case as “extreme child abuse.”

Brandy Hendricks stated that gender-affirming procedures “have been shown to be extremely harmful, especially to minors.” She lamented that children are being allowed to “change their genders before they’ve even reached puberty or shortly after.” She said that pharmaceutical companies are advertising puberty blockers to children and unethically enriching themselves. She too characterized gender-affirming care as “child abuse” and as “experimental.”

Sabrina Hartsfield, an alumna of Florida State University and a born-again Christian, spoke against the rule. Hartsfield said that “without gender-affirming healthcare, transgender and gender nonconforming individuals will die.” She said that, “according to every major legitimate medical organization, gender-affirming care is the treatment for gender dysphoria.” She said gender affirming care is “medically necessary and lifesaving treatment” that should not be decided by big government overreach. An audience member shouted something indiscernible at this point in Hartsfield’s comment. Hartsfield went on to state that the proposed rule violates the Affordable Care Act and Medicaid Act’s nondiscrimination provisions. She noted that denying gender-affirming care can be life-threatening.

Simone Chris, an attorney and the director of the Transgender Rights Initiative at Southern Legal Council, “vehemently oppose[d]” the proposed rule. She stated that her organization’s experience working with hundreds of transgender individuals has evinced “the tremendous benefits that access to [gender-affirming] care provides.” Chris went on to state that “the insidiousness of this rule is exacerbated by the fact that it places in its crosshairs the individuals in our state who are already disproportionately likely” to face poverty, homelessness, poor health outcomes, and limited access to healthcare. She noted that every major medical association supports gender-affirming care, and that the proposed changes would “cause significant harm” by depriving individuals of “critical, lifesaving medical care.” Chris went on to state that the changes to the rule substitute the state’s judgment for that of the patient and their doctor, and that it is a “shameful waste of state resources.” She cited to nationwide litigation which has struck down similar laws as inconsistent with the guarantees provided by the Medicaid Act, the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, and the Affordable Care Act, and noted that Florida will undoubtedly face similar challenges, wasting taxpayer money.

The next speaker, Matthew Benson, a pediatrician and pediatric endocrinologist, agreed with the proposed changes, stating that the data used to support gender-affirming care “is not scientific.” He cited to a Swedish study from 2016 which found that the mortality rates of transgender individuals who received gender-affirming care were three times that of the general population, and that they attempted suicide five times more often than the general population. He also cited a similar study from Denmark wherein 10 percent of the study population died over the 20-year study period. Benson said we need better data and longer-term trials “to justify these kinds of very aggressive therapies.”

Karen Schoen, a former teacher, spoke on behalf of Florida Citizens Alliance. She opened by stating that she would like to know “why 0.03 percent of the population is dictating to 99.97 percent of the population” that their elective surgeries should be paid for. This was met with audience applause. Schoen said that “kids change their minds” and that they become fearful of maturing. She lamented that thirteen-year-olds cannot drive a car, have a drink, or shoot a gun, but are “in charge” when it comes to changing their gender. This was met with audience laughter and applause.

The next speaker was Bill Snyder. Snyder first told a story about “reality disease,” stating that “the further we move from reality, the further we move from morality” and that “the further we move from virtue, the more secular we become.” Secularity leads to less freedom, he said, and then urged Florida to approve the changes to the rule.

Avery Fork with Christian Family Coalition, a college counselor, also spoke in support of the proposed rule. She characterized gender-affirming procedures as “unnatural therapies being promoted by radical gender ideals and with no basis in science.” She said the proposed rule would prevent taxpayers from having to pay for “highly unethical and dangerous procedures.”

Richard Carlins also spoke in support of the rule. He said that our Constitution was founded on “biblical principles.” Carlins said children are being indoctrinated through commercials, Disney World, Coca-Cola commercials, and restaurants, and that gender-affirming procedures are a “horrendous evil.” He said that “God raises up nations and he brings down nations,” which was met with audience vocal support, and that this is a recent phenomenon. He said we’ve been “living in Judeo Christian principles” for 1500 years, and “it’s just recently that we’re throwing any mention of God [or] the Bible under the bus.”

DELIBERATIVE

Amber Hand with the Body of Christ grew up with two queer parents. She said she had been considering gender transition for most of her life, but that “we have to teach these kids right from wrong” and that it is wrong to teach children they can make these decisions. Hand said that she is glad she never transitioned because she recently realized she wanted children. She went on to quote the Bible and that it’s “not okay to change your identity.”

The next speaker, Ms. Hazen, also supported the rule. She said that children are being pressured at a young age to identify as transgender, and that much of the pressure comes from the internet. She cited a follow-up study of individuals who transitioned, which found that the suicide rate in those individuals was twenty times the general population. She said that this evinces the “deep regret” they face after “mutilating” their bodies. She said that children “don’t understand that they will never be able to procreate ever again” when we “mutilate these children’s bodies at an early age.”

Leonard Lord also spoke in favor of the proposed changes. He said that he was also uncomfortable in his body as a child but was able to get comfortable by becoming closer with God. The audience murmured in approval. He said that “either we’re playing games, or we really believe there’s a God and the Bible is true,” and that this “problem” happens because we don’t believe in God. Lord said that, with regard to mental health issues, “God’s spirit is the answer to what’s missing in their lives,” again leading to audience applause and cheers. He said that by taking God, the Bible, and prayer out of schools, we are removing ourselves of power, love, and a sound mind. The audience again applauded. He said the “devil is the author of confusion” (the audience cheered) and that “if you spend your life trying to figure out if you’re a man or a woman you’ll never know why you’re here” (again, audience applause).

The next speaker, Pam, also supported “stopping Medicaid from paying for children and teenagers to have such changes.” She said that children are “confused” and likened gender-affirming procedures to “paying for [children] to have furry animal body parts,” to which the audience cheered. She said she is thankful that Florida will “stop the madness” for “the sake of the children.”

Jon Harris Maurer, the public policy director for Equality Florida, spoke next against the proposed rule. Maurer said that the proposed changes are without scientific or legal basis and are “clearly discriminatory.” He cited to numerous experts and organizations who endorse gender-affirming care. Maurer also said that the agency “lacks the specific delegated rule-making authority to adopt the proposed rule” and that the statute cited “grants no authority” for the agency to usurp the role of healthcare providers. He said the rule is discriminatory and targets the transgender community, and that it would harm the 9,000 transgender Floridians on Medicaid. An audience member began to shout, and the audience began to speak over Maurer. He said that the proposed rule is politically calculated and urged them to reject the rule.

Anthony Verdugo spoke on behalf of the Christian Family Coalition as the Executive Director. Verdugo supported the rule. He said that “they call it gender-affirming care” but “they don’t care, and it’s not affirming.” He called Chloe Cole and Sophia Galvin “heroes,” and said that this is a “war on children and this is a crime against humanity.” Verdugo said that “groomers” are pressuring children to undergo gender-affirming procedures. He cites to the warning label on a package of hormones which states that emotional instability is a side effect. He said that the organizations Maurer listed “have been discredited” and cited to “more renowned” organizations who believe that “the suppression of normal puberty, the use of disease-causing cross sex hormones, and the surgical mutilation and sterilization of children” are “atrocities” and “not health care.”

The next speaker, a veteran and police officer, said that doctors, parents, teachers, and scientists have been wrong before, but that detransitioners are the “evidence” we need. He said we need to “stop being ignorant” and that churches are bigger than any organization and in support of the proposed change. The audience met this with cheers and applause throughout.

Michael Haller, a doctor and professor of medicine at the University of Florida, spoke on his own behalf. After establishing himself as an expert, he said that this proposed rule makes “numerous false claims, uses biased reviews of the literature, and relies on more so-called experts who actually lack actual expertise” in caring for transgender youth. He said that the state’s assertion that gender-affirming care is not safe or effective is “patently false” and that nearly every major medical organization supports this care. He says the state is “either unwilling or willfully chooses to ignore the totality of evidence for gender-affirming care.” He said that the state’s experts are unqualified. Haller noted that the proposal is “poorly-conceived,” likely to cause harm, and should be rejected.

At this point, a member of the panel, Dr. Van Meter, made a comment. He said that the Endocrine Society guidelines are not standards of care, but merely guidelines, drafted by “ideologues” from the World Professional Association for Transgender Health. He said that this group excluded “world renowned experts in the field” and did not include their input “on purpose.” He said that we “have to stop using the term ‘standards of care’ when there are absolutely no standards of care in this instance that have been addressed.”

Robert Youelis spoke next, lamenting that gender-affirming care was not on anyone’s radar even five years ago. He said that this is man “proclaim[ing] himself as God” and that there is only one truth. Youelis said we are “philosophically and morally” going down a slippery slope when we start considering gender-affirming care. He said that brains are not fully developed until the age of twenty-five, and children cannot make other decisions in life, so we should not be educating anyone about gender identities until they are in twelfth grade.

The next speaker, Keith Claw of Florida Citizens Alliance, spoke next. He said that children in public schools are “purposefully confused, desensitized, and even pressured into abnormal sexual behavior” and that “gender ideologues are coaching kids to be into this dysphoria.” He said that there is ongoing debate as to whether gender dysphoria is biological or psychological. He said that taxpayers should not have to pay for gender-affirming care.

Robert Roper spoke next, also in support of the rule. He said that it “serves to protect the children.” He said “gender confusion is the only disorder that comes with a false assertion that a child can be born in the wrong body” and that it is “impossible” to become the opposite gender. He went on to say that gender dysphoria is the only “disorder [where] the body is mangled to conform to the thoughts of the mind” and where “the child actually dictates his or her medical care . . . instead of the other way around.” He called this a “social media epidemic manufactured by social media influencers making a lot of money off the very vulnerable element of our society.” He likened gender-affirming procedures to giving drugs to a drug addict or alcohol to an alcoholic and cited to a Reddit post where 35,000 individuals expressed regret of transitioning.

Karl Charles of Lambda Legal spoke against the proposed rule. He said that this care is “essential and in some cases lifesaving,” “clinically effective,” “evidence based,” and “widely accepted.” Charles said that exclusions such as this one cause “serious immediate and irreparable harm” to those who already experience “well-documented and pervasive stigma” and barriers to healthcare. He said that he is particularly concerned by the agency’s characterization of this care as “experimental and ineffective,” and that this is contrary to available medical evidence and misrepresents studies. He notes that the so-called experts relied on have been discredited and do not treat transgender patients. He noted that no one on the panel was a transgender Medicaid recipient in Florida, and that singling out transgender Medicaid participants violates Equal Protection and ACA § 1557.

A panelist at this point referred everyone to the appendices to the Florida Medicaid Report, including Dr. Cantor’s reports cited to on page thirty-nine, which discusses each organization that has supported gender-affirming care.

Ed Wilson spoke in support of the proposed rule, saying that it would “protect children who are not mature enough to be comfortable in their own bodies” from “making mistakes that will destroy their lives.” He said that taxpayer money should “never be used to destroy innocent lives” and that gender-affirming care “never actually succeed[s]” but does cause harm. He characterized it as “mutilation” and an “atrocit[y]” to be banned, “not healthcare.”

Suzanne Zimmerman, a relative of a gender dysphoric youth, spoke next. She “pray[ed]” that the state “not make it easy” for this youth’s parents to be persuaded towards gender-affirming care. She pointed to the testimony of detransitioners to state that “God doesn’t make mistakes” (the audience said “amen”). She urged them to support the changes.

Jean Halloran also supports the changes. She said that Medicaid should not be supporting or paying for gender-affirming care. She likened gender-affirming care to cosmetic changes to make her look younger, receiving audience applause and laughter.

Ezra Stone, a clinical social worker, pointed to research that medical transition is safe and effective. They pointed to clients who have “expressed tremendous relief” and an increased sense of safety when they are able to access medical care. They said that “understanding and being seen as [one’s] true self[f] creates a sense of belonging, which is a fundamental human need.” They pointed to the political climate in Florida as causing harm and anxiety to “transgender, nonbinary, questioning, and gender-diverse Floridians.” Their patients “worry about their access to medical care” and experience fear of violence daily, which supports the minority stress model that says that expecting harm and violence has a negative impact on mental health and well-being. They said that this proposed change will create an atmosphere of fear and take away medically necessary care.

DELIBERATIVE

Peggy Joseph shared the thoughts of Ryan T. Anderson, author of When Harry Became Sally. She cited to the Obama Administration's refusal to mandate coverage of gender-affirming surgeries under Medicaid, which said that there was "not enough evidence" to determine whether it improved health outcomes. She said that studies with positive outcomes were exploratory, without follow-up, which "could be pointing to suicide." She cited to the Swedish study regarding suicide rates, as well. She said the "minimal standard of care should be with a standard of normality" and that gender dysphoric thoughts are "misguided and cause harm."

A panelist again interjected to note that the report on pages 35–36 and 42–45 discusses the international consensus.

Jack Walton with the Christian Family Coalition is a pastor. He said he has counseled queer individuals for thirty-seven years. He believes that "gender dysphoria should be labeled as child abuse" and the doctors who prescribe gender-affirming care are "tear[ing] the child apart and call[ing] it health care." Walton says that gender-affirming care is "not science" and that any such procedures "should be labeled criminal." He said that "nearly 90 percent of those that escape from that life do it by the time they reach the end of puberty because they come back to their senses that they were created male and female by God." Walton expressed that suicide happens when a transgender person transitions but "still do[es]n't find the completion that they thought they felt." He said that many individuals transition because of child abuse they faced as children or because they were not accepted by others. He closed by saying there are "two genders, male and female; women bear children, women breastfeed, women have menstrual cycles, men do not." He said he "would not provide the anorexic with food and [he] would not say give money to do something that would harm a child."

Another member of the Christian Family Coalition, Jose, also supported the changes. He characterized gender-affirming care as "mutilation" and said that transgender individuals need "counseling" and should not be given a "destructive choice." He said that everyone will have to "stand before our living God and give account for where we stand on this and other issues." He thanked Chloe Cole and Sophia Galvin for their testimonies.

The panel then asked that members of the same organization be mindful of their time.

Bob Johnson, an attorney, spoke next. He thanked the agency for putting together the report, noting that it is "thorough," and said the "case is compelling." He strongly supports the rule change, and this is in large part due to the report making the case. He noted that the "FDA does not approve any medication as clinically indicated for gender dysphoria" and lamented the lack of randomized controlled trials and long-term data for puberty suppression medication.

Sandy Westad also spoke on behalf of Christian Family Coalition. She said that her heart is "breaking for what these kids are going through" and that "the parents need to stay in control." She said that kids "play house" and "pretend," but they "don't want to be or understand or even know what it is to change from one sex to another." She said, "children cannot make those kinds of decisions" and "cannot decide who they are."

Gayle Carlins also spoke from Christian Family Coalition. She said her beliefs are based on the

DELIBERATIVE

Bible, which is “the only truth that there is,” and which says that “God created male and female.” She went on to “bring science into it,” stating that females have two X chromosomes and males have an X and a Y chromosome, and that “it’s an impossibility to change from one to the other” “no matter what kind of mutilation or anything is done to a person.”

Dorothy Barron spoke next, also from Christian Family Coalition. She first thanked Florida’s “great governor,” eliciting audience cheers and applause, and thanked Chloe Cole and Sophia Galvin for not “going along with what you were trying to be brainwashed into” (also eliciting audience cheers and applause). She said “they’re definitely targeting our youngest,” and lamented that “we can’t seem to find baby formula anywhere but yet Medicaid can fund this nonsense.” Barron said it “has to be left up to the parents,” and that “whatever you choose to practice in the privacy of your own home is your business”; she is “not discriminating against any genders or whatever.” She said that it needs to be “taken out of the schools.” She said Michael Haller’s testimony was “shameful” and is “why we’re in this bloody mess right now,” to which the audience also cheered and applauded.

The panel reminded the public to be focused on the rule and respectful of other speakers.

Troy Peterson, the president of Warriors of Faith, supported Christian Family Coalition, and came from the Tampa Bay area. He said that he represents “thousands that stand in agreement” with the proposed change. He thanked the doctors for the report and said that “when [he] saw the evidence, [he] could clearly see that we need this rule.” He quoted from Genesis and said that God created male and female, and he is opposed to Michael Haller as well. He said that “if [he] had any authority in the medical field, [he] would have [Michael Haller’s] license revoked.” The audience whistled and verbally approved. He said that the most thorough follow-up of transgender individuals in Sweden said that “the suicide rate is twenty times that of the comparable peers” and that “50 percent of the gender identity confused children have thoughts of suicide.”

Janet Rath spoke next. She said that “fifty years ago, as parents, we were smarter than what’s going on today,” and that parents are being left out of their children’s lives. She said some of this is the fault of parents and some is the fault of teachers. She said her granddaughter, a teacher, has told her that “if she has a child that comes in and identifies as a cat, she must have a litterbox there and a bowl of water.” Rath said that our country is going “absolutely insane,” and the audience murmured in agreement. She said that Dr. Fauci is “nothing but a money-grabbing liar” and “we have been hoodwinked ever since.” Rath went on to say that “Chinese children in third grade are learning advanced calculus” but “our third graders are learning which bathroom to use.”

Gerald Lomer drove 3.5 hours to attend the hearing. He supported the proposed rule and “the best governor in the United States,” to which the audience cheered and applauded. He told “stories” of a girl who wanted to spend more time with her father and thought that being a boy was the best way to do so and a boy who wanted to spend more time with his mother and thought that being a girl was the best way to do so. He said that thirteen-year-olds cannot drive a car, drink a beer, or smoke a cigarette, but are able to take hormones and obtain surgeries for gender-affirming care. He characterized gender-affirming surgeries as “mutilating.”

DELIBERATIVE

A pastor from Florida spoke next on behalf of Protect Our Children Project, Duval County Charter House, and Christian Family Coalition. She supported the rule prohibiting funding for “unnatural therapies” and does not want taxpayers to subsidize transgender care. She said that “transgenderism is driven by unethical pharmaceutical companies enriching themselves with puberty blockers” and that this is child abuse. She cited to Swedish psychiatrist Dr. Christopher Gillberg, who has said that “pediatric transition is possibly one of the greatest scandals in medical history.”

Paul Aarons, a physician, spoke next. He said he has transgender patients and friends. He said that he opposes the proposed change, because it “conflicts with the preponderance of medical science and practice and would do irreparable harm” to transgender Floridians of all ages. He said that the American Academy of Pediatrics and its Florida chapter have directly refuted the agency’s report. Aarons said that, “contrary to an earlier comment, the Endocrine Society has stated, ‘medical intervention for transgender youth and adults, including puberty suppression hormone therapy, and medically indicated surgery, has been established as their standard of care. Federal and private insurers should cover such interventions as prescribed by a physician.’” He said gender dysphoria is “very real” and that people should meet and speak to transgender individuals, which will help them realize that denial of care “at any age would be inhumane and a violation of human rights.” He said that gender-affirming care is “generally accepted professional medical standards” and that this rule would put the health and lives of transgender people in danger. He said that “it feels like Medicaid is crossing into a political lane by seeking to preempt provider/patient/family decision-making.” He said that, if the agency still wants to address this topic, they should “at least convene an appropriate panel of experts including transgender community members to inform yourselves and the public about the overwhelming evidence against denying coverage for gender affirming care.”

A doctor on the panel then encouraged everyone to read the report and its attachments. He said that the report focuses on studies which have been brought up, and “specifically the flaws” in those studies. He also encouraged audience members not to interrupt when others are speaking. He went on to say that the Endocrine Society’s 2017 guidelines “are guidelines, just that,” and they “do not guarantee an outcome” and “do not establish a standard of care.” He also referred to international reviews which “all came to the same conclusion” that “this should not be going on in minors at all,” to which the audience applauded. He said that children need “strong psychological support” and that four decades of literature point to the “overwhelming probability of mental health problems after these childhood events” and “problems like autism spectrum disorder.” He said that in other nations, having “psychological instability . . . blocks you from the transition pathway” and that “those things be taken care of first because transition simply won’t fix them.” He said that the report is a “very well-researched document” and addresses a lot of the concerns raised in comment letters.

Another panelist then referred everyone to Attachment C of the report and Dr. Hruz’s Deficiencies in Scientific Evidence for Medical Management of Gender Dysphoria.

January Littlejohn, a mental health counselor, spoke next. Her child expressed that they were experiencing gender dysphoria in 2020, shortly after three of their friends had started identifying as transgender. She said that the middle school had “socially transitioned [her child] without their knowledge or consent”³ and that her child’s “mental health spiraled.” She said that she has worked with a psychologist to help address her child’s low self-esteem and anxiety, and has “given [her child] more one-on-one time, in-person activities away from trans influences, limited [her child’s] internet use, and declined to affirm [her child’s] newly-chosen name and pronouns.” She said that they set “appropriate boundaries” and allowed her child to choose hairstyle and clothing but “denied harmful requests such as breast binders, puberty blockers, cross-sex hormones, and surgeries.” She said it was “clear from [their] conversations” that her child was uncomfortable with their developing body and had “an intense fear of being sexualized.” Littlejohn said that her child was “filled with self-loathing and was in true emotional pain,” but “had been led by peers and influencers to believe that gender was the source of [their] pain.” She said that her child needed to be “remind[ed] that hormones and surgeries can never change [their] sex or resolve [their] issues.” She said that she “shudder[s] to think what could have happened if [they] had affirmed [her child’s] false identity and consented to medical treatment” as opposed to “lovingly affirm [her child] as [they are], beautifully unique and irreplaceable and undeniably female.” She said that her child has “desisted and is on a path to self-love” but unfortunately gender dysphoric children are “being encouraged to activism peer pressure to disassociate from their bodies and to believe their body parts can be simply removed, modified, or replaced.” Littlejohn said that “the irreversible consequences of medically transitioning, including loss of sexual and reproductive function, cannot be fully understood by children or teens who lack the necessary maturity or experience.”

Kendra Barris, a mental health attorney, spoke next. She first addressed the comment about the lack of peer-reviewed standards of care, saying that this lack means that “a lot of people who are harmed or experience bad outcomes from these surgeries or other interventions have no ability to sue.” She said that “they have had decades to create peer-reviewed standards of care and they have not,” and she suspects that some people do not want to standards because it would open them up to lawsuits, which is not currently happening. She went on to say that “when you put a female on testosterone, within about five years [they are] going to have to have a hysterectomy,” which for teens could mean a potential hysterectomy before the age of twenty. She said that “hysterectomy is correlated with negative mental health outcomes and cognitive decline” and that this is worse the earlier a hysterectomy is performed. She said that “essentially, the earlier you do the hysterectomy, the earlier the onset of dementia.” She is “very concerned about” how in a few decades “we’re going to have an absolute wave of young females, 40–50 years old, with early-onset cognitive decline” in assisted-living facilities. She said that “some people who are trans and have dementia forget that they’re trans” and if they don’t have written consent to continue their transition, they “might be cut off.” She worries that “we have not considered all of the implications of this.”

The next speaker was Nathan Bruemmer, Florida’s LGBTQ Consumer Advocate. He opposed the proposed rule “on behalf of healthcare consumers,” saying that consumers “must be provided with accurate information, education, choice, safety, representation, and regress.” He said that

³ Note that news organizations have reported that Ms. Littlejohn was aware of her child’s choice to change names and pronouns at school and told the school she would not stop them from doing so. She later filed a lawsuit against the school. See, e.g., Leyla Santiago, Fact Check: Emails Show One of Desantis’s Stories Backing the Rationale for So-Called ‘Don’t Say Gay’ Law Didn’t Happen as the Governor Says, CNN Politics (Apr. 6, 2022), <https://www.cnn.com/2022/04/06/politics/fact-check-desantis-dont-say-gay-family-narrative/index.html>.

“documented, well-researched standards of care have been established, are based on a wide range of evidence, and conclude that gender-affirming medical care is medically necessary and safe and effective.” In other words, “gender-affirming care is the standard of care.” Bruemmer said that the proposed rule would “deny health care consumers . . . access to the standard of care.” He said that agencies must defend the rights of all Floridians, including transgender Floridians, and that this includes the right to non-discriminatory healthcare coverage. He said we should work to increase access to healthcare, not lessen or remove it. Bruemmer said that he is “one of . . . tens of thousands of transgender Floridians” who have had access to gender-affirming care, and who are “happy, and successful, and thriving.” He said that transgender Floridians “deserve the rights and benefits afforded to all.”

The next speaker’s name was inaudible, but he also spoke in support of the proposed rule. He told examples of his fifteen-year-old son making bad decisions, including speeding on his dirt bike and wanting to leave home, as proof that “these kids can[’t] make a decision on what they want that’s going to be with them for the rest of life.” He said that the doctors who spoke previously “are despicable,” “need to have their licenses taken away,” and “are a disgrace to the human race.”

A panelist thanked him for his comment and said, “we respect everybody’s comments, including the doctors that you referenced.”

Dottie McPherson spoke next on behalf of the Florida Federation of Republican Women. She said that even at the age of eighteen “children don’t have the maturity to handle certain responsibilities given them” like driving and alcohol, and that “even older adults don’t.” She said that state programs include “programs for abused and neglected children, but not gender decisions.” She urged the panel to “prevent funding the destruction of children’s genitalia and hormonal balance.” McPherson urged the panel to consider unintended consequences, such as “taxpayer money that will need to be used for lawsuits by those whose lives were ruined from surgeries that they got while they were immature or too young to understand,” parents whose “parental rights were denied to protect their children’s future.” She said that “life isn’t fair” and we have to “stop giving in to the ‘poor pitiful me’ syndrome.” McPherson said that government “has no business funding these things.”

Maria Caulkins spoke next in support of the proposed rule. She said that taxpayer money should not be spent on funding surgeries that are “unnecessarily and tremendously harmful.” She said that there is “a war on our children” and that we need to “protect our children” and “support our governor” by being on the “right side” of this war.

James Caulkins also spoke in support of the rule, saying that we’re “in a battle in this country.” He said that the people of Florida “have spoken” by electing “the greatest governor in the United States,” to which the audience cheered and applauded. Caulkins said that we “don’t need this stuff, this evil, this Medicaid funding for transgender surgery” and that Florida should lead other states against “this evil.”

The final speaker, whose name was also inaudible, spoke in support of the proposed rule. She said that, years ago, she was told by a doctor that she needed to undergo hormone therapy, but she “saw the risks involved.” She said that hormone therapy is an attempt to “prevent . . . natural things from occurring,” such as menstruation, and we can’t expect it not to have any problems. She cited to Bill Maher, who pointed out that transgender procedures were only occurring in major cities where “social engineering is happening and where people are being influenced” but not in the rest of the country. She lamented that she can’t go to the media and say anything against transgender individuals because it will be “criticized and condemned” which “isn’t fair.” She said that “the government should not be involved in supporting any kind of procedure to these young kids.”

A panelist thanked everyone for their comments and then clarified the purpose of the rule. He said that it is not “a ban on treatment for gender dysphoria,” but rather lack of Medicaid coverage for services mentioned in the proposed rule. He also said that “there are other comprehensive coverage of services for gender dysphoria currently in the Florida Medicaid program” before reading some of those services (community-based services, psychiatric services, emergency services and inpatient services, and behavioral health services in schools).

Hi Dylan,

I'd requested a transcript of the hearing on the Florida rule back when I first started drafting the memo, and I just finally received that. There shouldn't be much in here that isn't in my original appendix, but I'm attaching it anyway in case it's useful for us or CMS.

See you soon!

Hi Vatsala,

Sorry about the snafu on Friday – apparently CMS thought we were talking about an immigration status EO that Florida issued last year!

Would you mind updating your memo to also mention the below:

FL medical board to weigh blocking treatments for transgender youth
CBS News Miami, 08/01/2022

The FL Board of Medicine posted 1,113 documents related to gender-dysphoria treatment in preparation for their meeting. The state Department of Health filed a petition asking the board, which regulates medical doctors, to start a rulemaking process on the proposal by Gov. Ron DeSantis' administration to bar physicians from providing treatments such as hormone therapy and puberty-blocking medication to transgender youths.

Thank you!

Hi Dylan,

Please find attached a memo about the Florida proposed rule. While the document is pretty long, note that the memo itself is only the first six pages, and the rest is a rundown of the public hearing that was held.

This focuses primarily on public and written comments I was able to find and some of the major issues that have come up therein, but I'm keeping an eye on the news to see if there are any other developments.

Please let me know if I can do any follow-up on this today or next week!

Have a great weekend!

Hi Vatsala,

We are meeting with CMS to discuss the below FL proposed rule next week; are you able to do some research to find out the latest? Maybe there is a transcript or recording of the public hearing as well?

If you can draft up the information as a briefing memo for the Director, that would be great. I have attached a sample for format of the header, and for the body you can include the headers of Background, Current Status, and maybe next steps? Also if there is any information about organizations working in FL on the issue that would be good to know.

Once we have a time, I'll send you the invite.

Thank you!

Subject: FL proposed rule - banning FL Medicaid coverage of gender-affirming care

Good morning all,

I am sure you have all seen the news, but I am flagging the State of Florida's proposed rule 59G-1.050, published in the Florida Administrative Record on Friday (6/17/2022), to prohibit Florida Medicaid coverage of the below services "for treatment of gender dysphoria": 1. Puberty blockers; 2. Hormones and hormone antagonists; 3. Sex reassignment surgeries; and 4. Any other procedures that alter primary or secondary sexual characteristics. Proposed 59G-1.050(7)(a). The proposed rule further states that for the "purpose of determining medical necessity, including Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis, and Treatment (EPSDT), the services listed in subparagraph (7)(a) do not meet the definition of medical necessity in accordance with Rule 59G-1.010, F.A.C. Proposed 59G-1.050(7)(b). I have attached the notice here for ease of reference.

There is a public hearing scheduled for July 8, 2022 from 3:00 – 5:00 p.m. in Tallahassee, FL.

I'm not sure if calls are already happening on this, but since they implicate both CMS and OCR equities it seems like coordination would be beneficial.

Best,

TAPED PROCEEDINGS
IN RE: PROPOSED RULE 59G-1.050
HELD ON JULY 8, 2022

Transcribed by:

CLARA C. ROTRUCK

Court Reporter

1 TAPED PROCEEDINGS

2 MS. COLE: My name is Chloe Cole, and I am a
3 17-year-old detransitioner from the Central Valley
4 of California. I was medically transitioned from 5 ages 13 to 16. My parents took me to a therapist
6 to affirm my male identity. The therapist did not 7 care about causality or encourage me to learn to be
8 comfortable in my body because of -- partially due
9 to California's conversion therapy bans. He 10 brushed off my parents' concerns about that because 11 he had hormones, puberty blockers, and surgeries.
12 My parents were given a suicide threat as a reason
13 to move me forward in my transition.

14 My endocrinologist, after two or three 15 appointments, put me on puberty blockers and 16 injectable testosterone. At age 15, I asked to 17 remove my breasts.

18 My therapist continued to affirm my 19 transition. I went to a top surgery class that was 20 filled with around 12 girls that thought they were 21 men -- I thought that they were men. Most were my 22 age or younger. None of us were going to be men.
23 We were just fleeing from the uncomfortable feeling
24 of becoming women.

25 I was unknowingly physically cutting off my

1 true self from my body, irreversibly and painfully.
2 Our transidentities were not questioned.

3 I went through with the surgery. Despite 4 having therapists and attending the top surgery
5 class, I really didn't understand all of the 6 ramifications of any of the medical decisions I was 7 making. I wasn't capable of understanding it, and 8 it was downplayed consistently.

9 My parents, on the other hand, were pressured
10 to continue my so-called gender journey with the 11 suicide threat.

12 I have been forced to realize that I will 13 never be able to breastfeed a child, despite my 14 increasing desire to as I mature. I have blood
15 clots in my urine. I am unable to fully empty my 16 bladder. I do not yet know if I am capable of 17 carrying a child to full term. In fact, even the 18 doctors who put me on puberty blockers and 19 testosterone do not know.

20 No child should have to experience what I
21 have. My consent was not informed and I was filled 22 by (inaudible).

23 A VOICE: Thank you for your comment.

24 (Applause.)

25 A VOICE: The next speaker will be Sophia

1 Galvin.

2 MS. GALVIN: My name is Sophia Galvin. I am a
3 detransitioner. I began detransitioning at 17 and 4 a half socially. At 18 was when I began
5 detrans- -- I mean transitioning medically.

6 I had a history of mental illness. I had 7 suicidal ideation and I would self-harm. And my 8 wanting to transition was all in an effort to 9 escape the fear of being a woman in this society
10 and because of traumas that I had been through in 11 my life.

12 So I continued down the process, and then I
13 ended up removing my breasts at 19 years old
14 because I was trapped, afraid to go back to my 15 original ideo- -- to my original sex, and basically
16 look crazy to the people around me.

17 When I detransitioned -- after I
18 detransitioned, it was very difficult because I
19 didn't have any support. The doctor basically just 20 told me to stop the hormones. I didn't have anyone 21 to speak to about it, I didn't go to a mental 22 health counselor, and I didn't prepare anything. I
23 just really want to say that this is not good for 24 children. I was harmed by this, and it should not 25 be covered under Medicaid.

1 A VOICE: Thank you for your comments.

2 (Applause.)

3 A VOICE: The next speaker is Katie Caterbury.

4 MS. CATERBURY: At the age of 14, my once
5 healthy and happy daughter was convinced by the 6 Gay-Straight Alliance at school that she was my 7 son. At the age of 16, a physician injected her
8 with testosterone without my consent and without my 9 knowledge. At the age of 17, Medicaid paid
10 surgeons to perform a double mastectomy and a
11 hysterectomy as an outpatient. At age 19, Medicaid
12 paid for her to undergo a phalloplasty.

13 She had and still has private insurance that 14 was bypassed. I fought against what happened to my 15 daughter every step of the way, but to no avail.

16 How can any rational adult, much less a
17 physician, not know that it is impossible to change
18 one's biological sex? Why are there doctors
19 convincing trusting parents to affirm the lie that 20 biological sex is changeable? They prescribe
21 irreversible puberty-blocking drugs and powerful
22 wrong-sex hormones and amputate healthy breasts and 23 remove reproductive organs from children against 24 the protests of their parents.

25 Affirming the false notion to a child that it

1 is possible to change one's sex is child abuse.
2 Administering powerful hormones that cause
3 irreversible changes to their bodies and their
4 brains is child abuse. Amputating the healthy body
5 parts of a child whose brain has not reached full
6 decision-making maturity is simply criminal.

7 Why are these doctors not criminally charged?
8 Why is this being funded with taxpayer dollars?
9 This must be stopped.

10 Three years ago, I traveled to Washington,
11 DC -- Washington, DC, to speak to federal
12 lawmakers. I begged their staff to do something.
13 Democrats and Republicans, no one seemed to care.
14 But I will not give up trying until this medical 15 experiment on children is over.

16 To every single person fighting for the health
17 and lives of our children, I am profoundly
18 grateful. Thank you.

19 (Applause.)

20 A VOICE: Just so we get through all the 21 speakers, we'd ask that you hold your applause
22 until the end of the program.

23 Next speaker will be Jeanette Cooper.

24 MS. COOPER: My name is Jeanette Cooper, and I
25 am here on behalf of Partners for Ethical Care, a
FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 nonpartisan, nonprofit organization that has no
2 paid staff.

3 No therapy is better than bad therapy, and 4 children are suffering because parents cannot find
5 professionals to serve the psychological needs of 6 their families and children, and they are being met
7 with a medical treatment for a psychological
8 condition. We need to make space in the public
9 sphere for ethical therapists by removing the 10 medical treatment option.

11 Nearly every therapist who publicly speaks is 12 a cheerleader for gender identity affirmation,
13 gluing that poisoned bandage on the skin of 14 children, causing permanent psychological and 15 physical harm by solidifying an idea that maybe you
16 were born in the wrong body.

17 We are here to state the obvious. No child
18 can or ever will be born in the wrong body.
19 Everyone knows what a woman is, but some people are 20 afraid to say it. We are not afraid.

21 Our organization was founded by a handful of 22 mothers who realized that no one was coming to 23 protect these children. We could not wait any 24 longer for help to arrive.

25 Families are desperate to find actual support.

1 They do not want a poisoned bandage that
2 cosmetically covers a wound that grows deeper when
3 covered and left untreated. Affirmation is a
4 poisoned bandage that does not help to heal, but 5 hides a deep need that will not be helped by 6 injections and surgeries.

7 The state has no business using taxpayer
8 funding to turn children into permanent medical 9 patients. The state has no business assisting
10 doctors in selling disabilities to vulnerable,
11 suffering children by prescribing puberty blockers,
12 cross-sex hormones, and extreme cosmetic body
13 modification. These so-called treatments are not 14 real health care.

15 The state should, however, fund legitimate and 16 proven care. For many children, a transidentity is 17 a crutch. It is a placeholder that stands in for 18 real suffering that hasn't been named. If they can 19 find a pediatrician, family therapist, or other
20 professionals who will address their actual needs,
21 children discard their transidentity and move
22 forward with self-actualization, rather than 23 staying in a state of stunted psychological and 24 physical growth, surviving with superficial,
25 short-term validation like a street drug that needs

1 to be injected every day. Our job is to protect 2 children, and we have to step in because the 3 medical field is failing these families.

4 Thank you for stepping in now before it costs
5 the State of Florida much more than dollars. Thank 6 you for this proposed rule. We support you.

7 (Applause.)

8 A VOICE: Thank you for your comments.

9 Next speaker, Donna Lambart.

10 MS. LAMBART: Hello. My name is Donna
11 Lambart. I am here on behalf of concerned parents 12 to speak in support of the rule to stop allowing 13 Medicaid to pay medical transition of children in 14 Florida.

15 Today I appeal to you on behalf of over 2,600
16 parents in our group. As parents, we know our 17 kids. As people, we know right from wrong. But 18 the health care professionals are presenting many 19 of us with a false and painful choice: Accept what 20 we know will permanently harm our children or lose
21 them to suicide. These false ideas are being 22 stated in the presence of children. This is not 23 only cruel, it's simply not true. There is no data
24 to prove that medically transitioning minors
25 prevents suicide.

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 Society, the Internet, media, schools, and
2 government convince kids that their parents que- --
3 if their parents question -- if their parents
4 question their identity, it is because their 5 parents hate them. Parents who are unwilling to 6 drop all rational thinking and surrender to the 7 affirmation-only model of care pay a social,
8 emotional, and custodial price no parent should 9 ever have to pay.

10 Parents lose their children every day to 11 people who help them transition, leading them down
12 a dangerous medical path that permanently --
13 permanently harming their healthy bodies with 14 off-label drugs and experimental surgeries.

15 I interact with parents on a -- every day
16 whose children are instantly derailed as a result
17 of adopting a transgender identity. These children
18 become angry and hostile and resentful. They begin 19 lashing out at anyone who will not agree with their 20 new-found identity. Parents are left -- have been 21 forced to rely on each other to figure out how best
22 to navigate this destructive social phenomenon.

23 The current one-size-fits-all affirmation
24 model cuts parents out of the equation, charging 25 forward with a rigid, transition-only course of 1 action.

2 A VOICE: Ma'am, excuse me, your time is up.
3 Could you please wrap it up?

4 MS. LAMBART: Yes.

5 I would just like to say that on behalf of 6 thousands of loving parents, we ask Florida -- the 7 health -- to stand up for the protection of 8 children and teens who are under -- who are being 9 offered a magic fix. Parents deserve support and 10 children deserve sound care.

11 Thank you for your support and your time.

12 (Applause.)

13 A VOICE: Thank you for your comments.

14 The next speaker is Gerald Buston.

15 MR. BUSTON: Ladies and gentlemen, I am here
16 as a Christian pastor. 71 years ago, I gave my 17 life to Jesus Christ and chose to live my life
18 according to the Word of God, the Bible. The Bible
19 teaches that God makes people male and female, and 20 it says that repeatedly. Jesus said that himself.
21 And for us to try to transition people away from 22 what God did should be -- well, it definitely is a
23 sin, but it should be a criminal abuse of children,
24 especially when they're not at the age where they 25 can properly process what they're doing to

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 themselves or allowing to be done to themselves.

2 I urge Medicaid don't support this. I urge
3 the State of Florida to pass laws against it and 4 not allow our children to be abused the way they 5 are being abused by people that have one goal in 6 mind, and that is depopulating the world by cutting
7 back on the birth rate and by cutting back on the 8 population we have in our world right now.

9 So I support the bill that we do not pay for 10 this kind of stuff, and I would say let's go
11 further and pass laws against it and make that 12 extreme child abuse to do that to children that 13 don't have the right to know.

14 (Applause.)

15 A VOICE: The next speaker is -- I believe
16 it's Brady or perhaps Brandy Andrews.

17 MS. ANDREWS: Hey there, Brandy Andrews. I'm 18 here to speak in support of banning Medicaid
19 funding for transgender surgeries and treatments.

20 Transgender surgeries, puberty blockers, and 21 cross-sex hormone treatments have been shown to be 22 extremely harmful, especially to minors, causing 23 sterility and irreversible physical and 24 psychological damage.

25 Physically healthy, gender-confused girls are
FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 being given double mastectomies at 13 and
2 hysterectomies at 16, while males are referred for 3 surgical castration and penectomies at 16 and 17,
4 respectively.

5 How have we reached this point in life where 6 we're allowing this at such a young age, but yet
7 you have to be 16 to drive a car, 18 to buy a pack
8 of cigarettes, where we're allowing children to 9 change their genders before they've even reached
10 puberty or shortly after?

11 Pharmaceutical companies are unethically
12 enriching themselves off the destruction of 13 countless young lives that are being fed puberty
14 blockers, which these companies are advertising
15 children. It's just straight-up child abuse, and 16 it's preying on our society's most vulnerable
17 youth.

18 Let kids be kids. I am asking Medicaid to 19 stop funding experimental medical treatments on 20 minors. Thank you.

21 (Applause.)

22 A VOICE: If I could remind folks to please
23 state your name before you start your comments.

24 Next speaker is Sabrina Hartsfield.

25 MS. HARTSFIELD: Good afternoon. My name is

1 Sabrina Hartsfield, and I am speaking just from my
2 own opinions. I am an alumni of Florida State
3 University and I am a born-again Christian.

4 Because of this conviction, I believe we as 5 human beings have an obligation to ensure poor and 6 marginalized people of all ages have adequate
7 medical care through the Medicaid program.

8 Without gender-affirming health care,
9 transgender and gender nonconforming individuals
10 will die. According to every major legitimate 11 medical organization, gender affirming care is the 12 treatment for gender dysphoria.

13 I am here today to speak against Rule
14 59G-1.050, the Florida Medicaid trans and medical 15 care ban, from being put into place.

16 Gender-affirming care is medically necessary
17 and life-saving treatment that should be decided 18 between a patient, their caregivers, and a health
19 care professional, not big government.

20 Florida is about freedom from big government
21 overreach. Medicaid should cover all
22 medically-necessary treatment, and under the right
23 to privacy found in Florida's constitution, this 24 is, again, a decision that should be hands -- in 25 the hands of the patient and their health care

1 providers.

2 This rule also violates the nondiscrimination
3 protections for people of all gender identities
4 found in the Affordable Care Act and the Medicaid
5 Act.

6 Transgender and gender nonconforming people
7 who have gender dysphoria are already at increased
8 risk for negative health outcomes, such as being 9 diagnosed with anxiety or depression, battling a
10 substance use disorder, and attempting suicide.
11 Denying medical care that has been determined to be 12 the best practice by every major medical 13 association from the American Psychological 14 Association to the American Medical Association to 15 the Endocrine Society will be life-threatening.
16 Denying transgender and gender nonconforming people
17 medical care can lead to depression, self-harming,
18 social rejection, and suicidal behavior.

19 If the trans medical care ban is enacted, it
20 will be putting the lives of over 9,000 transgender
21 Floridians in danger.

22 Please block proposed Rule 59G-1.050.

23 (Applause.)

24 A VOICE: The next speaker is Simone Chris.

25 MS. CHRIS: Good afternoon. My name is Simone

1 Chris and I'm an attorney. I'm the director of the 2 Transgender Rights Initiative Southern Legal
3 Council. We are a statewide, not-for-profit,
4 public interest civil rights law firm that utilizes
5 federal impact litigation policy reform and 6 individual advocacy to ensure communities that we 7 serve have access to justice and freedom from 8 discrimination.

9 We vehemently oppose the proposed rule based 10 both on the science and evidence supporting the 11 medical necessity of treatment for gender dysphoria
12 and our own extensive experience working with 13 hundreds of transgender adults and minors and 14 witnessing the tremendous benefits that access to 15 such care provides.

16 In effect, the proposed rule creates a blanket
17 exclusion for coverage of medically-necessary
18 health care for one of the most vulnerable
19 populations in our state, eliminating the right of 20 all transgender Floridians with Medicaid to even 21 have their health care needs subjected to a 22 medical-necessity analysis. The insidiousness of 23 this rule is exacerbated by the fact that it places
24 in its cross-hairs the individuals in our state who 25 are already disproportionately likely to experience

1 poverty, homelessness, unemployment, poor mental
2 and physical health outcomes, and to have the least
3 access to resources in health care as it is.

4 We urge AHCA to reject these proposed changes
5 to the rule excluding the coverage for all
6 medically-necessary gender-affirming care because 7 it directly contravenes the widely accepted,
8 authoritative standards of care and the consensus
9 of every major medical association in our country.
10 It will cause significant harm to the individuals
11 that we serve by depriving them of critical,
12 life-saving medical care. It interferes with and 13 substitutes the state's judgment in place of the 14 doctor/patient relationship, the rights of the 15 individual, and the fundamental rights of a parent
16 to determine appropriate medical treatment for 17 their own child, and it is a shameful waste of 18 state resources.

19 Similar exclusions have been enjoined or 20 struck down by courts across the country as 21 inconsistent with the rights guarantee to Medicaid
22 recipients under the Medicaid Act, under the equal
23 protection clause of the 14th Amendment, the 24 Affordable Care Act. And this litigation that the 25 state will certainly find itself embroiled in is

1 wasting valuable state resources that could be
2 better utilized enhancing the lives of Floridians
3 rather than attacking them.

4 Thank you.

5 (Applause.)

6 A VOICE: Matthew Benson.

7 DR. BENSON: My name is Matthew Benson. I'm a
8 board-certified pediatrician and pediatric
9 endocrinologist in the state, and I agree with this
10 rule. I think the data on which the gender
11 affirmative model is based is not scientific.

12 The National Board of Health and Welfare of 13 Sweden has recently enacted in that country pretty 14 significant restrictions. And if we're going to do
15 this type of care, it needs to be under an 16 IRB-approved protocol and it needs to be based on 17 the best data.

18 I'm used to prescribing these medications in 19 the sense of puberty blockers. And one of the 20 largest studies that came from Sweden was published
21 around 2016, and basically what they showed is that 22 in those individuals who are transgender and 23 receive these types of procedures, the rates of 24 overall mortality compared to the general
25 population was three times that of the general

1 population; completed suicide, 19 times that of the 2 general population; five times suicide attempts of 3 the general population. Similarly, in Denmark, out
4 of a 20-year period, by the time a similar study
5 was done, 10 percent of the population had died.

6 We need better data. We need long-term
7 perspective trials where we can look at adverse
8 effects. We need much more robust data to justify 9 these kinds of very aggressive therapies. And 10 we've already seen two individuals, Chloe and 11 Sophia, testify here today about how they were 12 harmed by these procedures.

13 Thank you for your time.

14 (Applause.)

15 A VOICE: Next speaker, Karen Shoen.

16 MS. SHOEN: My name is Karen Shoen. I'm with 17 the Florida Citizens Alliance and I'm a former 18 teacher.

19 I would like to know why .03 percent of the 20 population is dictating to 99.97 percent of the 21 population to accept and pay for an elective
22 surgery. Kids change their minds. I can tell you
23 as a teacher, one day they want to be a fireman,
24 the next day they want to be an engineer, and then 25 they go into being something else.

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 The problem is we are not explaining the 2 wonders of what it is to be comfortable in your 3 body with both our parents and in our biology and 4 hygiene glasses. So kids become fearful. It's our 5 job to take that fear away as a teacher, not to 6 force them into something else.

7 The children may be afraid of maturing, they 8 may be afraid of a lot of things, but we're not 9 looking for the root cause, we are now suggesting 10 and implanting in their brains that they're not 11 comfortable in their body.

12 I'd like to leave you with this thought: Can 13 I drive a car? No, you're 13. Can I have a drink?
14 No, you're 13. Can I shoot a gun? No, you're 13.
15 Can I change my gender? Yes, you're in charge.
16 How is that possible?

17 (Applause.)

18 A VOICE: Next speaker, Bill Snyder.

19 MR. SNYDER: Thank you. Bill Snyder. I
20 (inaudible) Monticello.

21 I want to talk about a disease that has 22 infected society today called reality disease.
23 Charlie had reality disease. He woke up one
24 morning and wouldn't get out of bed and go to work.
25 His wife said, "Charlie, you've got to get up,

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 you've got to go to work." He said, "I can't, I'm 2 dead." His wife said, "You're not dead, you're
3 talking to me. I can see you breathing." Charlie
4 says, "I can't get up and go to work, I'm dead."
5 The wife called in a psychologist. Psychologist
6 gave Charlie a lengthy interview. At the end of 7 the interview, the psychologist said, "Charlie,
8 come on, we're going to go downtown." They went 9 downtown to the morgue. The psychologist opened a 10 locker, (inaudible) out a cadaver on a tray, pulled 11 the sheet back over the feet of the cadaver, said, 12 "Charlie, dead people's hearts don't beat, they 13 don't have circulation, they do not bleed." He 14 took the toe of the cadaver, stuck a pin in it. No
15 blood came out. The psychologist said, "See,
16 Charlie, dead people don't bleed. Now, give me
17 your thumb." Took Charlie's thumb, stuck a pin in 18 it, out came bright, red blood. The psychologist
19 said, "See, Charlie, you're not dead. That's 20 blood." Charlie said, "What do you know? Dead
21 people do bleed."

22 The further we live from reality, the further 23 we move from morality, the further we move from 24 virtue, the more secular we become. The more
25 secular we become, the less freedom we have.

1 Please approve this proposed rule change. Thank
2 you.

3 (Applause.)

4 A VOICE: Next speaker, Ingrid Ford.

5 MS. FORD: Yes. Good afternoon. I'm Ingrid
6 Ford. Thank you for the opportunity. I'm with 7 Christian Family Coalition. I've been a college
8 counselor 15 years, and I'm here in support -- I'm
9 to speak in support of Rule 59G-1.050 to ban
10 Medicaid funding from transgender surgeries and 11 treatments.

12 This rule will protect Florida residents,
13 especially minors, from harmful transgender
14 surgeries, harmful blockers, and other unnatural
15 therapies being promoted by radical gender ideals
16 and with no basis in science.

17 This rule also will protect taxpayers from 18 being forced to subsidize these highly unethical
19 and dangerous procedures, which can cost upwards of 20 $300,000.

21 Thank you.

22 (Applause.)

23 A VOICE: Next speaker, Richard Carlins.

24 MR. CARLINS: Hello, my name is Richard 25 Carlins and I am in support of the rule and I'm

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 just going to speak from the heart a little bit. I
2 feel like I'm walking in a house of mirrors or 3 something or it's just -- it's surreal, the world
4 that I live in today from the world that I grew up
5 in.

6 I had a traditional family, a mother and 7 father. We're saying the Pledge of Allegiance in 8 schools and having prayer in schools. We were 9 founded upon Biblical principles. Our constitution
10 goes hand in hand with that. We're battling with 11 each other right now, you know, over things that 12 were clearly right and wrong before.

13 Seriously, a kid has no idea. They're being 14 indoctrinated. They're being indoctrinated even 15 through commercials, Disney World, Coca-Cola
16 commercials, the restaurants they go to. And then 17 when they want to be what it is that they were 18 pushed to be, we mutilate their bodies and it's 19 irreversible. It's horrendous. It's a horrendous
20 evil.

21 And with that, I go. I just can't believe
22 where we're at. And we're -- God raises up nations
23 and he brings down nations, and we are in judgment
24 right now. This is wrong, we need to be able to 25 admit that it is wrong and to help the children to

1 have wholesome lives that history prior to us --
2 this is just recent this -- what we're battling
3 with right now. I'm just -- you know, not
4 well-studied or anything, but I think it's 1,500
5 years that we've been living in Judeo-Christian
6 principles, you know, and it's just recently that 7 we're throwing any mention of God, the Bible, under 8 the bus. They're not allowed to hear it. They're 9 not allowed to know it. If you feel like you want
10 to have pleasure this way or that way, with this,
11 with that, you can and we're going to support it
12 and do whatever it is so that you can never change
13 your mind again and give you nothing wholesome to 14 hold onto. That's all.

15 (Applause.)

16 A VOICE: Amber Hand. Amber Hand.

17 MS. HAND: Hi, I'm Amber Hand and I am just 18 with the body of Christ.

19 So I come today because I represent -- well, I 20 come from a family, my mom was gay and my dad was 21 gay. He struggled with his identity his whole
22 life, but he fought against it because he was a
23 Christian. And I was taught by my dad I was a 24 little girl, and by mom, I was a little boy. And 25 so I got real confused, you know what I mean, and

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 I'm 36 today and I just realized -- last year I was
2 thinking about getting a sex change still. I've 3 always thought about it. And when I was a kid, I
4 was like, "When I get boobs, I'm going to cut them
5 off with a butter knife," you know what I mean?

6 And when we're kids, we're so impressionable.
7 I remember my sister going and seeing my dad use
8 the bathroom, and she went to use the bathroom like 9 him, but he corrected her, you know, because we 10 have to teach these kids right from wrong. And 11 it's wrong to take kids and teach them, "Hey, you
12 can make whatever decision you want and you don't 13 even know mentally what you're really going through 14 as a child." We need to take Medicaid and treat
15 people for psychiatric problems and depression and 16 teach them like you can be a female, it's okay to 17 be a female today and say that you're a woman, you
18 know, like -- and I just realized now at 36 that I
19 want to have a baby, and if I had done that, I
20 would have never been able to have a child.

21 And I just have to say that the Bible says,
22 "Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest
23 prosper and be in health even as thy soul
24 prospers." And when we struggle with identity, our 25 souls are in turmoil. And if we just begin to

1 realize that we just need to teach these kids right
2 from wrong and that it's not okay to change your 3 identity when God made you a male or a female, and 4 when a little boy puts on a high heel because he 5 sees his mother wearing a high heel, it's just 6 play, like it's okay, but that's not what you wear,
7 and teach him what to wear. We just don't
8 understand as kids what's going on until somebody
9 teaches us. We have learned behavior. We're
10 programming kids these days with everything --

11 A VOICE: Time's up. Please wrap it up.

12 MS. HAND: -- (inaudible) around us to be 13 somebody we're not. God bless.

14 (Applause.)

15 A VOICE: Shauna Peace.

16 MS. PEACE: Hi, my name is Shauna Peace, and I
17 am just am here to speak in support of Rule
18 59G-1.050 to ban Medicaid funding on transgender
19 surgery and treatment.

20 Children are being pressured and socialized at 21 a very young age to identify as transgender. Much 22 of the pressure is coming from on-line social 23 networking sites that celebrate and encourage 24 transgenderism while denying normal heterosexual
25 behaviors. It accounts for much of the metric rise

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 in the children's identifying as transgender in the 2 recent years. It has doubled since 2017, according
3 to the news sensors for the Centers for Disease
4 Control and Prevention.

5 The most thorough followup of sex reassignment
6 people, which was conducted in Sweden, documented
7 that 10 to 15 years after surgical reassignment,
8 the suicide rate is twenty times to comparable
9 peers. The alarmingly high suicide rate among 10 post-operative transgender demonstrates the deep
11 regret that may feel after irreversible mutilating
12 their bodies with these barbaric procedures.

13 I am here today because I have had children
14 that have battled with identity and sexual 15 identity, and that my stepson is now identified as 16 female. He wanted to when he was younger in years,
17 to change, but now that he has gotten into his 20s,
18 he has now decided that he wants to have children,
19 and if you mutilate these children's bodies at an 20 early age, they don't understand that they will 21 never be able to procreate ever again. Whether you
22 go female or male or male or female, neither sex
23 will be able to procreate ever again. And I just 24 think it's mutilating and it's not right.

25 Thank you very much.

1 (Applause.)

2 A VOICE: The next speaker, Leonard Lord.

3 MR. LORD: My name is Leonard Lord. I am much
4 in favor of the bill.

5 Even as a boy, I wasn't comfortable in my body
6 because I didn't know why I was here. So when I
7 got the age to say, "I want to find out why I'm 8 here," I spent three days fasting, praying, seeking 9 God. He brought me to his Word, and I found out
10 that the only way I got comfortable in my body was 11 to know what I was created for.

12 And so what I found, either we're playing 13 games, or if we really believe there's a God and 14 the Bible is true, we find out this whole problem
15 happens because we do not retain the knowledge of 16 God in our conscience and are given over onto our 17 own deception.

18 And now I hear all of the mental problems
19 we're having. Well, it's real simple. God's 20 spirit is the answer to what's missing in our 21 lives. We're only complete in Jesus Christ. And 22 the scripture says in Timothy 1:7, God has not 23 given us a spirit of fear, we ought to fear man or 24 woman, but he's given us power, love, and a sound 25 mind. You take the Bible out of school, you take

1 God out of school, you take prayer out of school,
2 and what have you got? You have no power, you have 3 no love, and you have no sound mind.

4 So I'm just saying let's go back to getting 5 mentally right is the only way I can at 75 is to 6 know God created me, his Word is true, live in 7 supernatural peace and joy and know where you'll 8 spend eternity and don't live confused.

9 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

10 MR. LORD: The devil is the author of 11 confusion. Get a pure heart and live in peace and 12 joy and enjoy things. If you spend your life
13 trying to find out if you're a man or a woman,
14 you'll never know why you're here.

15 All I can say, God bless you, I'm in support
16 of the bill, and hopefully America will wake up and 17 be a shining city on a hill for all the nations one 18 more time. Lord bless you.

19 (Applause.)

20 A VOICE: Pam Olsen. Pam Olsen.

21 A VOICE: Dan or Pam?

22 A VOICE: Pam.

23 MS. OLSEN: It's me, Pam Olsen.

24 Thank you for this proposal. I've read all
25 the pages. It's excellent. I am for stopping

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 Medicaid from paying for children and teenagers to 2 have sex changes.

3 I've talked to a lot of kids that are
4 confused, and they are confused. That's what's 5 going on today. There is so much onslaught against 6 these kids, and you've got kids saying, "I'm a boy,
7 I'm a girl; no, I'm a girl, I'm a boy." You have 8 kids today saying, "I'm a furry animal." Are we 9 going to start paying for them to have furry animal
10 body parts put into them? I mean, where does this 11 stop?

12 And I am so thankful that this has been
13 proposed, that we will stop the madness in Florida
14 and we will not do this. I hope that you guys do
15 approve this today because it matters for the sake
16 of the children. You know, I've got 12 grandkids
17 and I'm going to fight tenaciously, not only for my 18 grandkids, but for their friends and for all the 19 children across our state, our nation. We need to 20 say stop the nonsense and let's do what is right.
21 There are boys, there are girls, there are men,
22 there are women.

23 Thank you so much for approving this. I
24 believe you will do that. Thank you.

25 (Applause.)

1 A VOICE: Jon Harris Maurer.

2 MR. MAURER: Good afternoon. My name is Jon
3 Harris Maurer and I'm the public policy director
4 for Equality Florida, the state's largest civil
5 rights organization based on securing full equality
6 for Florida's LGBTQ community.

7 The proposed change to Rule 59G-1.050 is 8 without sound scientific basis, it is without legal 9 basis, and it is clearly discriminatory. The 10 agency should reject it.

11 The proposed rule is about politics, not 12 public health. We urge you to listen to the 13 numerous medical professionals opposed to the rule.
14 Experts from the country's and the world's leading 15 health organizations disagree with the fundamental 16 premise of the proposed rule. They endorse
17 gender-affirming [sic] care. These organizations
18 represent millions of medical professionals, and 19 they recommend gender-affirming care. We're
20 talking about the American Academy of Pediatrics
21 and its Florida chapter, the American Medical 22 Association, the American College of Obstetricians
23 and Gynecologists, the American College of 24 Physicians, the American Psychiatric Association,
25 the American Psychological Association, the

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 American Academy of Family Physicians, the American
2 Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, the 3 Endocrine Society, the Society for Adolescent
4 Health and Medicine, the Pediatric Endocrine
5 Society, the World Professional Health Association
6 for Transgender Health, and others; again,
7 representing millions of medical professionals.

8 Furthermore, AHCA lacks the specific delegated
9 rulemaking authority to adopt the proposed rule.
10 The statutes that AHCA names as its authority to 11 make this proposed rule --

12 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

13 MR. MAURER: -- grant no authority for 14 (inaudible) patient of the individual role for 15 health care practitioners to make decisions with 16 their patients.

17 The rule is simply discriminatory, it
18 undeniably targets the transgender community. You
19 may not understand what it's like to be 20 transgender --

21 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

22 MR. MAURER: -- or to be a parent of a
23 transgender kid just trying to find the best care
24 for your kid, but transgender Floridians are here
25 in this audience and they're telling you about how

1 harmful this rule would be to the more than 9,000
2 transgender Floridians on Medicaid. We know these 3 therapies are safe because the agency is not
4 opposing them for all Floridians.

5 A VOICE: Sir, please wrap it up. Your time
6 is up.

7 MR. MAURER: In conjunction with the state
8 willingly ignoring the body of scientific evidence
9 that supports gender-affirming care, there's no
10 question of the politically-calculated animus
11 behind this proposed rule. Please reject the 12 proposed rule.

13 (Applause.)

14 A VOICE: I appreciate your comments. I would 15 just ask for decorum in the crowd. We want to give 16 everybody equal opportunity to speak.

17 A VOICE: Next speaker, Anthony Verdugo.

18 MR. VERDUGO: Thank you. Good afternoon. I
19 want to start off by thanking all of you for being 20 here today and for your public service.

21 My name is Anthony Verdugo. I am the founder
22 and executive director of the Christian Family
23 Coalition. We are a leading human rights and 24 social justice advocacy organization of Florida,
25 and we're here to strongly support Rule 59G-1.050

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 to ban Medicaid funding for transgender surgeries
2 and treatment.

3 They call it gender-affirming care. They
4 don't care and it's not affirming. Let's get that 5 straight. And we know that because of heroes who 6 are among us here today, folks like Chloe Cole and 7 Sophia Galvin. They are heroes because they've had 8 the courage to come out and speak the truth in 9 love.

10 And everyone needs to be respected and treated 11 with dignity, but this is a war on children. These 12 are crimes against humanity. Groomers are using 13 their authority as adults to pressure children and 14 ruin their lives.

15 I'm going to share with you about a brand, the 16 No. 1 prescribed puberty blocker in America. It's 17 called Lupron. And they themselves list on their 18 package that "Emotional instability is a side
19 effect and warrants prescribers to monitor for 20 development or worsening of psychiatric symptoms
21 during treatment."

22 These so-called medical organizations which 23 were just listed --

24 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

25 MR. VERDUGO: -- have been discredited.

1 World-renowned organizations such as the Royal
2 College of General Practitioners in the United 3 Kingdom, Australian College of Physicians, and the 4 American College of Pediatricians -- and I will end
5 with their quote -- say, "Americans are being led 6 astray by a medical establishment driven by a
7 dangerous ideology and economic opportunity, not
8 science and the Hippocratic oath." The suppression
9 of normal puberty, the use of disease-causing 10 cross-sex hormones, and the surgical mutilation and 11 sterilization of children constitute atrocities to 12 be banned, not health care. Let kids be kids.

13 Thank you.

14 (Applause.)

15 A VOICE: Next speaker, Roberto Rodriguez.

16 MR. RODRIGUEZ: Thank you very much for this
17 opportunity. I love America as a veteran,
18 ex-police officer, father, grandfather -- let me
19 see what else, you know, and a father of a veteran
20 who is serving in the Navy today as a pilot. And 21 first of all, I wanted to thank you. You guys made
22 me cry. Why? Because, you know, I have a
23 question. Has -- you know, anybody can answer it.
24 Has a doctor ever been wrong? You know, has a 25 parent ever been wrong? Has teachers ever been

1 wrong? Have scientists ever been wrong? But,
2 then, why are we listening and waiting for 3 scientists and doctors to talk different to what we 4 have evidence here today?

5 We have the evidence right here today. They 6 came walking in this place and we're being blind to 7 them, and I want to recognize you and I want you to 8 let you know that the true dream is interwoven in 9 every atom of your existence. God will fulfill his 10 true dream to you, no matter what man try to do to 11 you. You have a purpose, you have a reason, and 12 today proves it.

13 And I'm here to tell you that this rule, we 14 need to go ahead, I support it. We need to stop 15 being ignorant to what faces us and listening to 16 people.

17 I am from the Centers of God and I have 18 multiple churches that will stand here today. So
19 I'll tell you what, we're bigger than any 20 organization there is right now and represent that 21 we are for this rule.

22 God bless you and thank you. We love you guys
23 for serving. Thank you.

24 (Applause.)

25 A VOICE: Next speaker, Michael Haller, M.D.

1 All right. Michael Haller, M.D.

2 DR. HALLER: Good afternoon, everyone. My
3 name is Michael Haller and I am a graduate of the 4 University of Florida's College of Medicine,
5 pediatric residency, and the pediatric
6 endocrinology fellowship. I hold a Master's in 7 clinical investigation and I am the professor and 8 chief of the Pediatric Endocrinology Division at 9 the University of Florida. The views expressed
10 here are, however, my own.

11 I have trained thousands of medical providers,
12 participated in the development of national 13 guidelines, and have treated tens of thousands of 14 children, including many transgender youth.

15 I provide this background with full humility,
16 but also to establish myself as an actual expert,
17 both in the management of gender-diverse youth and 18 as one who can review and analyze relevant
19 literature.

20 The Gapums document and proposed rule change
21 seeking to remove Medicare -- medical -- Medicaid
22 coverage for gender dysphoria makes numerous false
23 claims, uses a biased review of the literature, and 24 relies on more so-called experts who actually lack 25 actual expertise in the care of children with

1 dysphoria.

2 While there are a number of flaws, the state's
3 plan following deserves specific commentary.

4 First, the state's primary assertion that
5 gender-affirming therapy has not demonstrated
6 efficacy and safety is patently false. Nearly 7 every major medical organization that provides care
8 for children, as you heard previously, have 9 provided well-evidenced guidelines supporting 10 gender-affirming care as the standard of care. The 11 assertion from the state, the data included in 12 those guidelines, are not as robust as the state
13 would like them to be --

14 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

15 DR. HALLER: -- is at best a double standard,
16 and is at worst discriminatory [sic] political fear.
17 The state is either unwilling or willfully chooses
18 to ignore the totality of evidence in support of 19 gender-affirming care, and the latter seems most 20 likely.

21 Second, the state's use of --

22 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

23 DR. HALLER: -- (inaudible) experts as
24 (inaudible) advisers seeking to discredit evidence
25 used (inaudible) of care is laughable. Several of

1 the state's own experts have been legally
2 discredited from testifying as such in cases
3 regarding gender-affirming care, while others have 4 acknowledged publicly that they have never provided
5 gender-related care to children.

6 A VOICE: Wrap it up.

7 DR. HALLER: The proposal to limit
8 gender-affirming care to those dependent on 9 Medicaid is poorly conceived, is likely to cause
10 significant harm to Floridians dependent on 11 Medicaid, and should be rejected. Thank you.

12 (Applause.)

13 A VOICE: Next speaker, Robert Yules.

14 Jason, did you want to comment?

15 A VOICE: I'm sorry, we have -- the panel has 16 one comment to that. I'm going to refer this to 17 Dr. Van.

18 DR. V: So just some insight into the support
19 of gender-affirming care by the large societies,
20 medical societies in the United States. The 21 American Academy of Pediatrics has actually made a
22 statement against this -- this, and the Florida
23 chapter as well.

24 These are not standards of care. Standards of 25 care by definition are an arduous process of

1 listening to all input from every side, every 2 aspect, of a medical condition, and these
3 individuals get together and they agree on 4 someplace in the middle that they can all live with 5 as a then standard of care.

6 These are merely guidelines. The guidelines
7 from the Endocrine Society specifically state they 8 are not standards of care. They're just 9 guidelines. They are the opinions of the 10 individuals who wrote the guidelines. The 11 Endocrine Society guidelines were written by nine
12 people in the first go-round and ten in the second 13 go-round, all of which were ideologues from the 14 World Professional Association of Transgender 15 health.

16 That group -- that interest group excluded
17 world renowned experts in the field and did not 18 listen to their input, didn't include their input
19 on purpose. And so it's not surprising that you
20 come up with one view that does not really
21 represent any kind of standards of care.

22 So we have to stop using the term "standards 23 of care" when there are absolutely no standards of 24 care in this instance that have been addressed.

25 (Applause.)

1 A VOICE: Mr. Yules. Mr. Yules.

2 DR. HALLER: I would also --

3 A VOICE: Sir, you've spoken already. If you
4 have further comments, please submit them in 5 writing.

6 A VOICE: No, I'm sorry, Dr. Haller. If you
7 have further comments, you can -- you can refer
8 them in writing. You can refer them in writing,
9 Doctor.

10 A VOICE: Robert Yules.

11 MR. YULES: Yes, my name is Robert Yules.
12 It's an honor and privilege to be here. I was born
13 and raised in St. Petersburg, Florida, and my, how 14 things have changed. Forty-three years ago, my 15 senior high school class came here to view the 16 legislature, and the topic of the day was about 17 dog-catching rules in the state of Florida. My,
18 how far we've come.

19 This was not even in the purview of anyone at 20 that time. This was not in the purview of anyone
21 ten years ago. This was not in the purview really
22 of anyone five years ago to bring it to the state
23 level, the city level, the classroom level, to be 24 driven by the teachers' unions with all of their 25 ideology, and really it begins and ends when man

1 proclaims himself as God. The truth begins with me
2 and it ends with me. And our country is in a lot
3 of trouble because people aren't willing to say
4 "No, that's not your truth." There is a truth.
5 That might be your perspective of the truth, but 6 there is not your truth, your truth, your truth, my 7 truth, his truth. It's not the way it works, and 8 we're going down -- just even philosophically and 9 morally, we're going down a very, very slippery
10 road when we start delving into these things.

11 It's interesting to me also how a child cannot 12 own this or own that or own this, and the thing
13 we've been told for the last ten years, "Well,
14 their brain's not fully developed until around 25."
15 Everybody says that, right? Their brains aren't 16 developed until they're 25, and now our governor
17 caught such flack because he said don't teach
18 kindergarteners --

19 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

20 MR. YULES: -- about transgendering, leave it
21 out till third grade. I think they should leave it
22 out till 12th grade and let parents have those 23 conversations with people. Put it back where 24 parents talk to their own kids, and let's -- let's
25 make school about science, technology,

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 engineering --

2 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

3 MR. YULES: -- and mathematics and get back
4 where we need to be.

5 Thank you so much for your time. Thank you.

6 (Applause.)

7 A VOICE: At this time, we would like to 8 remind everyone that they can submit comments in 9 writing to medicaidrulecomments@ahca.myflorida.com.
10 Information is provided on cards at the exit when 11 we are finished, as well as up on the screen.
12 We'll continue with the speakers.

13 A VOICE: Flaugh. Keith Flaugh.

14 MR. FLAUGH: Good afternoon. My name is Keith 15 Flaugh. I am one of the founders of an 16 organization called Florida Citizens Alliance,
17 which is a not-for-profit organization of almost 18 200,000 parents and grandparents, and we focus on K
19 through 12 education.

20 We have recently completed a detailed study in 21 all 67 county school districts based on 58 novels
22 that we found throughout. I've left a copy with 23 Cole. I would encourage you to read it.

24 Twenty of those are LGBTQ and gender --
25 promoting gender dysphoria. Some of these

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 materials are actually designed for pre-K.

2 Children in our public schools are being
3 purposefully confused, desensitized, and even
4 pressured into abnormal sexual behavior. Gender
5 idealogues are coaching kids to be into this 6 dysphoria, and even telling them to threaten
7 suicide.

8 There is a considerable debate in the 9 psychiatric and medical circles about whether the 10 transgender condition is biological or 11 psychological. In numerous public schools, staffs
12 and even teachers are aiding this dysphoria and 13 purposely hiding what they're doing from the 14 parents. Further, taxpayers shouldn't have to pay
15 for this.

16 Florida Citizens Alliance strongly supports
17 the rule of 59G-1.050, especially to protect minors
18 from the harmful transgender surgeries, hormone
19 blockers, and other unnatural therapies. Thank 20 you.

21 (Applause.)

22 A VOICE: Robert Roper.

23 MR. ROPER: Hi, my name is Robert Roper. I'm 24 here to speak in support of the rule to ban
25 Medicaid funding for transgender surgeries and

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 treatments. The most important aspect of this rule
2 is that it serves to protect the children of the 3 state of Florida.

4 Gender confusion is the only disorder that
5 comes with a false assertion that a child can 6 actually be born in the wrong body. They are led 7 to believe that some day they'll actually become a
8 member of the opposite sex. That's impossible.
9 Maybe that's why they call it "transgender." You
10 never actually arrive at the desired outcome.

11 Gender confusion is the only disorder that the 12 body is mangled to conform to the thoughts of the 13 mind.

14 Gender confusion is the only disorder that the 15 child actually dictates his or her medical care to 16 medical and -- medical professionals and 17 counselors, instead of the other way around.

18 Gender confusion is the only disorder that the 19 parent can be completely excluded from determining 20 what is best for their own child.

21 Gender confusion is the only disorder that the 22 treatment takes the child down a dead-end road
23 literally. What we are seeing in Florida and 24 across the nation is a social media-driven epidemic
25 manufactured by social media influencers making a

1 lot of money off the very vulnerable element of our
2 society -- that's our children.

3 While most counselors somehow have been 4 convinced that affirmation is the only way, even
5 the APA would be the first to affirm that a child
6 simply does not have the capacity to make these 7 kinds of long-range decisions. In fact, you don't 8 need to be a doctor --

9 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

10 MR. ROPER: -- of psychology to know this.
11 Ask any parent. They will tell you that a child
12 wants what they want, and they want it now.

13 What some -- some will call on their faith,
14 some will call on a counselor, but all do so to be 15 delivered from the disorder, not to be sent deeper
16 into it.

17 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

18 A VOICE: You don't give drugs to a drug
19 addict, alcohol to an alcoholic, porn to someone 20 addicted to pornography. This is not a form of 21 treatment.

22 In closing, transgender regret is among the 23 fastest-growing movements on social media today --

24 A VOICE: (Inaudible).

25 MR. ROPER: -- on Reddit this morning. I

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 found a thread with 35,600 entries of people
2 regretting their transgenderism. It increased to a
3 hundred more while I drove here today.

4 Watchful waiting from loving parents yields an
5 exponentially higher success rate of resolving
6 gender disorders than any prescription drugs or 7 surgery, 90 plus percent. This rule will protect 8 Florida residents.

9 (Applause.)

10 A VOICE: Carl Charles.

11 MR. CHARLES: Good afternoon. My name is Carl
12 Charles and I'm a senior attorney in the Atlanta,
13 Georgia, office of Lambda Legal, the nation's 14 oldest and largest legal organization fighting for 15 the rights of LGBT people and everyone living with 16 HIV.

17 We are here today to share that we strongly 18 oppose and are deeply disturbed by AHCA's notice of 19 proposed rule, which if approved will remove 20 coverage of medically-necessary care for 21 transgender youth and adults from the Florida
22 Medicaid program. This essential and in some cases
23 life-saving care is clinically effective, evidence
24 based, and widely accepted and used by medical 25 professionals across the country to treat gender

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 dysphoria.

2 Unlawful exclusions of this kind cause
3 significant harm to a state's most vulnerable
4 residents. Indeed, should this proposed rule be 5 adopted, it will cause serious, immediate, and 6 irreparable harm to transgender Medicaid
7 participants in Florida who already experience
8 well-documented and pervasive stigma,
9 discrimination in their day-to-day lives, including 10 significant challenges, if not all-out barriers to 11 accessing competent health care services.

12 We are especially concerned by the 13 administration's characterization of this care as 14 experimental and ineffective. This is contrary to 15 all available medical evidence and relies on 16 misrepresentations of the findings of various 17 studies, as well as reports by so-called experts,
18 one of whom is on this panel, who have been 19 discredited and notably do not treat transgender
20 people --

21 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

22 MR. CHARLES: -- in their medical practice.

23 Finally, I would like to note for the record
24 as to whether or not this was a negotiated
25 rulemaking process and who on the panel is a

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 transgender Medicaid recipient in Florida. Okay,
2 there's no one.

3 Finally, singling out transgender Medicaid
4 participants for unequal treatment by denying them
5 coverage for services that non-trans Medicaid
6 participants access plainly violates the equal 7 protection clause of the U.S. Constitution and 8 federal law.

9 A VOICE: Time. Please wrap up your comment.

10 A VOICE: Furthermore, Section 15-57 of the 11 Affordable Care Act prohibits discrimination on the 12 basis of sex by any health program or activity
13 receiving federal financial assistance.

14 Finally, shame on you all for proposing this 15 rule.

16 (Applause.)

17 A VOICE: Jason, did you want to comment?

18 A VOICE: Just quickly, I would like to refer 19 everyone to the Gapums report, in particular the 20 numerous appendices that we attached to that 21 report. There have been references to the numerous 22 clinical organizations that have endorsed these 23 procedures, and in particular, I would refer you to 24 Dr. Canter's report, pages 27 through 28 -- I'm 25 sorry, pages 32 through 42, which go through each

1 one of those organizations. Thank you.

2 A VOICE: Speaker Ed Wilson.

3 MR. WILSON: Ed Wilson. I've traveled here
4 today to speak in support of Rule 59G-1.050 to ban
5 Medicare funding from being used for transgender
6 treatments and surgeries.

7 This rule will protect children who are not
8 mature enough to be comfortable in their own body
9 or to have sexual desires that they have not gone
10 through puberty yet from making mistakes that will 11 destroy their lives.

12 Children are being misguided into believing
13 that they're transgender. Taxpayer money should 14 never be used to destroy innocent lives.

15 Transgender treatments and surgeries never 16 actually succeed in changing someone to the 17 opposite sex, but do cause permanent harm to the 18 people who undergo such treatments.

19 Health care professionals need to focus on 20 healing the mind of confused and/or abused people,
21 not mutilating their bodies. As Anthony already 22 quoted, I'm going to skip part of the quote from 23 the American College of Pediatrics, but it ends
24 with, "The suppression of normal puberty, the use 25 of disease-causing cross-sex hormones, and the

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 surgical mutilation and sterilization of children
2 constitute atrocities to be banned, not health
3 care.

4 Please take their advice. Ban these
5 atrocities --

6 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

7 MR. WILSON: -- and keep Medicaid about health
8 care. Thank you very much.

9 (Applause.)

10 A VOICE: Speaker Suzanne Zimmerman.

11 MS. ZIMMERMAN: I'm Suzanne Zimmerman, and I
12 am merely a mother, grandmother, great-grandmother,
13 aunt, great-aunt, and specifically great great-aunt
14 of a young child who is going through the throes of 15 gender dysphoria from the age -- a young age. He 16 is now 8 years old, and I pray that our state
17 doesn't make it easy for her parents to be 18 dissuaded toward gender change.

19 I listened to the young people here who have 20 gone through this, and I think they speak volumes
21 more than any of the rest of us could say because 22 they've been through the difficulties and they've 23 learned through the difficulties.

24 And my bottom line is God doesn't make 25 mistakes. We're all created equal and different,

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 each in His image, and there are many, many
2 different people in this world and we are to love
3 them all. It's a commandment, it's God
4 commandment, and He loves us all.

5 I urge you to support this ban to make it easy
6 through Medicaid to have --

7 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

8 MS. ZIMMERMAN: -- the surgery for children
9 who are children with very young brains. Have a 10 heart and please pass this ban. Thank you.

11 (Applause.)

12 A VOICE: Judy Hollerza, H-o-l-l-e-r-z-a.

13 MS. HOLLERIN: I'm Judy Hollerin, poor work -- 14 poor penmanship apparently.

15 I support -- I support that we ban -- that we 16 ban this. I -- every day, of course, we wake up
17 seeing new things that we can't believe are 18 happening to us today. And I support everything
19 that's been said -- everything in support of that 20 has been said today.

21 The idea that Medicaid should be doing --
22 should be supporting this or paying for it --
23 again, this expansion of us paying for these kinds
24 of critical things without further thought. My,
25 I -- I would like to look 20 years younger, but I

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 do not expect Medicaid to be paying for it. Enough
2 said.

3 (Applause.)

4 A VOICE: Next speaker, Ezra Stone.

5 MR. STONE: Good afternoon. My name is Ezra
6 Stone and I'm a licensed clinical social worker.

7 Social work is a profession with a long
8 history of valuing human dignity and autonomy, and 9 according to the values of my profession, I have an 10 ethical obligation to support my clients in 11 reaching their fullest potential, problem-solving
12 barriers to treatment with them, and collaborating 13 with other professionals.

14 Additionally, we have a professional
15 obligation to provide evidence-based treatment, and 16 there is significant research that medical 17 transition is safe, effective at relieving symptoms
18 of dysphoria, and improves mental health.

19 In my private therapy practice, my clients
20 express tremendous relief at being able to access 21 medical care, which decreases their anxiety and 22 depression and increases their feelings of safety,
23 comfort, and joy as their bodies and minds become 24 more congruent. Understanding and being seen as 25 their true selves creates a sense of belonging,

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 which is a fundamental human need.

2 On the other hand, the current political
3 climate in the state is causing significant harm to 4 transgender, nonbinary questioning and gender
5 diverse Floridians. My clients report increases in 6 anxiety with each proposed anti-LGBT measure the 7 state takes, fear violence in their daily lives,
8 and worry about their continued access to medical 9 care.

10 These observations from my clinical practice
11 support the research on the minority stress model, 12 which demonstrates that expecting experiences of 13 harm, marginalization, and rejection have a 14 negative impact on people's mental health and 15 overall well-being.

16 Passing this change to Medicaid --

17 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

18 MR. STONE: -- will not only take away
19 medically-necessary care from several thousand of 20 the most vulnerable Floridians, but it will also 21 further create a climate of fear for LGBT people
22 and their health care providers across the state.

23 (Applause.)

24 A VOICE: Jason. Speaker Peggy Joseph.

25 MS. JOSEPH: Hello. I'm Peggy Joseph, and I

1 would just like to share some thoughts from an
2 author and doctor, Ryan T. Anderson, who wrote
3 about -- a book called, "When Harry Became Sally."

4 So in 2016, the Obama administration and the 5 Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services revisited
6 the question of whether sex reassignment surgery
7 would have to be covered by Medicare plans. It
8 refused on the grounds that we lack evidence that 9 it benefits patients. They stated, "Based on a
10 thorough review of the clinical evidence available,
11 there is not enough evidence to determine whether 12 gender reassignment surgery improves health
13 outcomes."

14 There were conflicting study results, and the 15 quality and strength of evidence were low. Many 16 studies that reported positive outcomes were 17 exploratory-type studies with no confirming
18 follow-up. The author says, "The lack -- the lost
19 of follow-up could be pointing to suicide."

20 The largest and most robust study, a study
21 from Sweden, found a 19 times greater likelihood of 22 death by suicide and a host of other poor outcomes.

23 To provide the best possible care serving the 24 patient's interest requires an understanding of 25 human --

1 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

2 MS. JOSEPH: -- wholeness and well-being. The 3 minimal standard of care should be with a standard
4 of normality. Our brains and senses are designed
5 to bring us into contact with reality. Thoughts
6 that distort --

7 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

8 MS. JOSEPH: -- (inaudible) are misguided and 9 cause harm. Okay.

10 (Applause.)

11 A VOICE: Next speaker, Jack Barton.

12 A VOICE: Actually, I have one comment with 13 respect to that, so as a partial addendum to my 14 earlier answer focusing on some of the clinical 15 organizations in the United States, but I wanted to 16 also mention because it has come up a couple times
17 here, that the Gamus report on pages 35 and 36 also 18 talks about international consensus as also talked 19 about in Dr. James Canter's report on pages 42 20 through 45. So I would encourage people to look at 21 that as well.

22 A VOICE: Go ahead.

23 MR. BARTON: My name is Jack Barton. I'm here
24 with the Christian Family Coalition. I'm an 25 Assembly of God pastor. The 37 years I have

1 counseled, among them I've counseled lesbians,
2 gays, and bisexuals. I believe in First
3 Corinthians 6:9, that people can escape from that 4 life. Unfortunately for the transgender, they 5 suffer. These young people have made that clear.

6 I believe that gender dysphoria should be 7 labeled as child abuse, it is not something that 8 should be happening to our children, and with the 9 doctors that will participate in this, it's not so
10 unlike the doctor who tears a child apart in 11 abortion and calls it health care.

12 These are the issues: The puberty blockers,
13 the hormone manipulations, that's not science. The 14 only name that was left out before was Anthony 15 Fauci. I kept waiting to hear them to say that.

16 Every -- any procedure like this should be 17 labeled criminal. You have a child that at that 18 age doesn't know if they like vanilla ice cream or 19 if they like chocolate ice cream, and yet they're 20 going to let them march in and either make that 21 decision to be led down that path. Nearly 22 90 percent of those that escape from that life do
23 it by the time they reach the end of puberty
24 because they come back to their senses that they 25 were created male and female by God.

1 Suicide that we talk about so much comes when
2 a person has followed up on these things, has done
3 it, and now they are confused because they still 4 don't find the completion that they thought they 5 felt.

6 Among those that go through these processes,
7 many of it comes from child abuse that happened
8 when they were kids, some who have wanted to have 9 acceptance by others and were rejected. One man,
10 his grandmother wanted a granddaughter. She 11 dressed him like that, and so he adopted that life.

12 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

13 MR. BARTON: I'll close with this. There are 14 two genders, male and female. Women bear children,
15 women breastfeed, women have menstrual cycles. Men
16 do not. I would not provide the anorexic with food
17 and I would not say give money to do something that 18 would harm a child.

19 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

20 MR. BARTON: It's a terrible thing to do and I
21 ask you to stand your ground.

22 (Applause.)

23 A VOICE: Jose Martin.

24 MR. MARTIN: Good afternoon. Thank you for 25 letting me speak. I'm also with the Christian

1 Coalition, and I'm here to speak in support of Rule
2 59G-1.050. I am a father and a grandfather, and I
3 am here to stand against mutilation that we all are 4 asked to fund. The people we are talking about
5 need counseling, not promotion to a destructive
6 choice.

7 I also want to remind that one day we will all
8 stand before a living God and give account for 9 where we stand on this and other issues. And I
10 also want to thank you brave people, who I think 11 are more qualified than all the other experts that 12 came up, because you are living and you lived
13 through it and you know the results of that, and I
14 thank you. Thank you very much.

15 (Applause.)

16 A VOICE: Folks, we have a number of speakers
17 coming up from the same organization. We just ask 18 that you be respectful of others' time. We've got 19 a number of speakers to get through before 5:00
20 p.m., so if you could just be brief and support
21 comments of others, if possible. Thank you.

22 Next speaker, Bob Johnson.

23 MR. JOHNSON: Good afternoon, Bob Johnson. I
24 am a retired and recovering attorney, but I am --
25 and I'll be very brief.

1 I say thank you to the Florida Division of 2 Medicaid for putting together this report. I've 3 read the whole report. It's not my area of 4 expertise, but I've had significant experience
5 working with the development of agency rules,
6 statements of need, and reasonableness as we call
7 them in the state that I come from, and I just want
8 to compliment the agency. I've read through it. I
9 think the case is compelling for the rule change.
10 I strongly support the rule change.

11 There is specifics in there again that's not
12 an area that I studied, but in reading the report
13 and looking how thorough that it was put together,
14 the case has been made for the need to adopt this 15 rule change, the case has been made for the 16 reasonableness of what you're proposing. I just 17 found it compelling the fact that the FDA does not 18 approve any medication as clinically indicated for 19 gender dysphoria. The fact that there's no
20 randomized, controlled trials for the use of these 21 puberty suppression, that's the gold standard, I
22 know, in medical studies, and there are no
23 randomized, controlled trials, and the fact that 24 there's no long-term data. I just think there is 25 so much concrete, substantial evidence that totally

1 justifies it, and I would just echo many of the 2 others that have testified here today. I urge you
3 to go forward, adopt these rules, changes --

4 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

5 MR. JOHNSON: -- (inaudible) we need them, we
6 need them in the state of Florida. Thank you.

7 (Applause.)

8 A VOICE: Next speaker, Sandy Westad,
9 W-e-s-t-a-d, I believe.

10 MS. WESTAD: My name is Sandy Westad and I'm 11 also here with CFC, Christian Family Coalition.

12 I -- I want to speak from the heart. I'm a
13 mother, I'm a grandmother, I'm a sister, whatever,
14 and my heart is breaking for what these kids are 15 going through. It just seems to me that if the 16 parents -- the parents need to stay in control.
17 They need to stay in the authority of their 18 children. They need to be able to speak to their 19 kids about the sex and the transgender.

20 Kids play house. They pretend. You know,
21 they do things in a play world, but they don't want
22 to be or understand or even know what it is to 23 change from one sex to another. They pretend. I
24 remember my sons playing and pretending they were 25 girls and sometimes they would pretend they were

1 boys, but they were boys and they grew up to be
2 boys. They didn't want to be girls. They felt
3 that that was what they were supposed to be. Jesus
4 made them boys, and they were going to stay boys.
5 But the thing is we -- we need to understand that
6 children cannot make those kinds of decisions.
7 They cannot --

8 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

9 A VOICE: -- decide who they are. The parents
10 need to be their guide, and the parents -- God gave 11 children parents for a reason.

12 So I just support this bill, this rule, and I
13 thank you so much for everyone that's here.

14 (Applause.)

15 A VOICE: Gail Carlins.

16 MS. CARLINS: Good afternoon. I'm Gail
17 Carlins and I'm with CFC also. And I am in favor, 18 I support this rule change here with not having the 19 funds -- the Medicaid funds go to supporting these.

20 My beliefs are based on the Bible, and the 21 Bible, I believe, is the only truth that there is.
22 And the Bible says, as was mentioned a couple 23 times, God created male and female. If you want to 24 bring science into it, females have two X
25 chromosomes, males have an X and a Y chromosome.

1 It's an impossibility to change from one to the 2 other. That cannot be done. And so no matter what 3 kind of mutilation or anything is done to a person,
4 they can't change it.

5 So, again, I am in support of this bill and I
6 thank you for your time.

7 (Applause.)

8 A VOICE: Dorothy Berring.

9 MS. BERRING: Good afternoon. My name is 10 Dorothy Berring, also with the Christian Family
11 Coalition. I also live in The Villages, Florida.

12 First of all, I would like to thank our brave
13 governor once again for bringing this to the 14 forefront. We are -- Florida definitely is going
15 to make change, and thank you to these brave people
16 and to Amber for not going along with what you were 17 trying to be brainwashed into believing.

18 Again, it's strange, you know, they're 19 definitely targeting our -- our youngest. We can't 20 seem to find baby formula anywhere, but yet
21 Medicaid can fund this nonsense.

22 Again, this has to be left up to the parents.
23 Whatever you choose to practice in the privacy of 24 your own home is your business. I'm not 25 discriminating against any genders or whatever. I

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 just -- it needs to be taken out of the schools,
2 and this doctor that was from UF or USF or 3 whatever, it's shameful, shameful what you are 4 trying to teach our students, and that's why we are 5 in this bloody mess right now. Okay? And this 6 needs to be changed --

7 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

8 MS. BERRING: -- and you all need to listen.

9 And thank you, doctors, for being here and for 10 giving us this forum. Thank you.

11 (Applause.)

12 A VOICE: We would ask that the comments be 13 focused on the rule and be respectful of other 14 speakers, please.

15 Troy Peterson.

16 MR. PETERSON: Good afternoon, Troy Peterson.
17 I come supporting Anthony and Christian Family
18 Coalition. I'm also the President of Warriors of 19 Faith here in Florida. We brought a few people
20 with us from the Tampa Bay area, and really we come 21 representing thousands that stand in agreement with 22 this rule.

23 And I want to thank you, doctors. I read the 24 40-page report. I'm not a doctor, I'm a pastor.
25 But when I saw the evidence, I could clearly see

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 that we need this rule.

2 In the book of Genesis, in the beginning God
3 created man in his own image, male and female, and 4 then he said, "Be fruitful and multiply the earth."
5 So that's why I'm here is because I'm opposed to 6 even that doctor back there. And I appreciate you
7 said that because if I had any authority in the 8 medical field, I would have his license revoked.

9 The most thorough follow-up of sex reassigning
10 people, which was conducted in Sweden, documented
11 that 10 to 15 years --

12 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

13 MR. PETERSON: -- of surgical reassessment,
14 that the suicide rate is 20 times that of the 15 comparable peers.

16 I also read in the medical evidence that 17 50 percent --

18 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

19 MR. PETERSON: -- of the gender
20 identity-confused children have thoughts of 21 suicide.

22 Thank you for your time.

23 (Applause.)

24 A VOICE: Janet Rath.

25 MS. RATH: Hi, my name is Janet Rath. I'm a

1 mother, a grandmother, and a new great-grandmother.
2 And I think 50 years ago as parents, we were
3 smarter than what is going on today. Parents are 4 left out of their children's lives. Some of it is 5 the parents' fault, and some of it's the teachers'
6 faults.

7 I have a granddaughter that's a teacher who 8 has said that if she has a child that comes in and 9 identifies as a cat, she must have a litter box
10 there and a bowl of water.

11 We are as a country going absolutely insane,
12 absolutely insane. We all bought into Dr. Fauci,
13 who was nothing but a money-grabbing liar -- pardon
14 my French -- and we have been hoodwinked ever
15 since. We have got to stop this.

16 Chinese children in third grade are learning
17 advanced calculus. Our third graders are learning
18 which bathroom to use. I'm sorry, but I do not 19 want my great granddaughter growing up in this 20 world if this is what it's going to turn into. We 21 have got to change, and we had best do it now.

22 Thank you.

23 (Applause.)

24 A VOICE: Gerald Loomer, L-o-o-m-e-r, Gerald.

25 MR. LOOMER: Good afternoon. My name is

1 Gerald Loomer. I drove three and a half hours from 2 Lady Lake, Florida, to be here because I want to 3 support Rule 59G-1.050. Especially I want to 4 support the best governor in the United States, Ron 5 DeSantis who also supports this.

6 (Applause.)

7 MR. LOOMER: But I'd like to share three quick
8 stories with you. The first is the little girl who 9 saw her brothers go fishing with their dad, out in 10 the backyard playing catch with a football, says,
11 "You know, I'd like to spend more time with Dad.
12 If I were a boy, I could spend more time with Dad."

13 Or the boy who said, "You know, those girls,
14 they're in the kitchen cooking with Mom, they go
15 shopping with Mom, they're doing makeup with Mom.
16 I want to spend more time with Mom. I think I
17 should be a girl, then I can spend more time with 18 Mom." Well, those things passed.

19 Remember the child who said, "Can I drive the 20 car?" "Of course not, you're 13 years old."
21 "Well, can I drink a beer?" "Of course not, you're 22 13 years old." "Can I smoke a cigarette?"

23 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

24 MR. LOOMER: "Of course not, you're 13 years
25 old." "Can I take hormones to block puberty?"

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 "No, you're 13 years old. Of course, you can. You
2 know what you want." "Can I take cross-sex
3 hormones?"

4 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

5 MR. LOOMER: "You're 13 years old. Of course,
6 you can. You know what you want." "Can I have
7 gender sterilizing surgery?" "You're 13 years old.
8 Of course, you can, you know what you want." "Can 9 I have body-mutilating surgery" --

10 A VOICE: Time. Please wrap up your comment.

11 MR. LOOMER: -- "that's going to alter my 12 sex?" "Of course, you can, you's are 13 years old,
13 you know what you want."

14 A VOICE: Sir, your time is up. Please wrap 15 it up.

16 MR. LOOMER: How absurd is all of this?
17 Continue to keep this resolution.

18 Thank you.

19 (Applause.)

20 A VOICE: Pastor Marta Marcano.

21 MS. MARCANO: Good afternoon. I'm Pastor
22 Marta Marcano from (inaudible) Jacksonville,
23 Florida. I'm a director of Protect our Children
24 Project, Duval County chapter, and an organizer of 25 the Christian Family Coalition in Jacksonville too.

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 I'm here to let you know that I'm support of 2 the Rule 59G-1.050 to ban Medicaid funding for 3 transgenders, surgeries, (inaudible) blockers, and 4 other unnatural therapies.

5 Also, this rule protect taxpayers from being 6 forced to subsidize the (inaudible) is driving by 7 unethical pharmaceutical companies enriching
8 themselves with the puberty blockers. That is an 9 atrocity of children abuse.

10 World-renowned Swedish psychiatric,
11 Dr. Christopher Gilbert, has said that pediatric
12 confusion is possibly one of the greater --

13 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

14 MS. MARCANO: -- scandal in medical history
15 and call for an immediate moratorium.

16 As a pastor --

17 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

18 MS. MARCANO: -- I want to remind you that doc
19 do not been a stumbling block for the little one,
20 because Hebrews 10:31 said --

21 A VOICE: Time. Please complete your comment.

22 MS. MARCANO: -- "It's a fearful thing to fall
23 into the hands of the living God."

24 Please protect our children. Thank you very 25 much for this time.

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 (Applause.)

2 A VOICE: Paul Arrans.

3 MR. ARRANS: Good afternoon. My name is Paul
4 Arrans. I'm a physician. In practice, I've had 5 transgender patients, and I have transgender
6 personal friends with whom I discuss their medical 7 care at length.

8 With profound respect for the young people who
9 testified earlier, I still oppose this amendment
10 (inaudible) the preponderance of medical science
11 and practice when we do irreparable harm to the 12 health and well-being of thousands of transgender
13 Floridians of all ages and their families.

14 The American Academy of Pediatrics and its 15 Florida chapter representing thousands of 16 board-certified pediatricians have directly 17 reviewed many controversial assertions in your
18 publication on gender dysphoria, and the Florida
19 Department of Health's statement responded.

20 Contrary to an earlier comment, the Endocrine
21 Society has stated, "Both medical intervention for 22 transgender youth and adults, including puberty
23 suppression, hormone therapy, and 24 medically-indicated surgery has been established as 25 the standard of care. Federal and private

1 insurance should cover such interventions as
2 prescribed by a physician," end quote.

3 Gender dysphoria is very real. You can learn
4 this for yourselves by meeting with transgender
5 people. You will then realize that denial of 6 appropriate gender-affirming care at any age would 7 be inhumane and a violation of human rights. These 8 medically-necessary treatments are the generally
9 accepted professional medical standards,
10 (inaudible) authoritative opposition to the 11 proposed rule.

12 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

13 MR. ARRANS: (Inaudible) to just rush this 14 through, thereby putting the health and lives of 15 trans people in danger.

16 It feels like Medicaid is crossing into a
17 political lane by seeking to preempt
18 provider/patient/family decision-making here, and I
19 urge you to withdraw this proposal.

20 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

21 MR. ARRANS: This represents knowledge and 22 practice regarding gender-affirming care. If you
23 are still determined to address this topic, at 24 least convene (inaudible) panels of experts,
25 including transgender community members, who inform

1 yourselves and the public about the overwhelming
2 evidence --

3 A VOICE: Time.

4 MR. ARRANS -- against denying coverage for 5 gender-affirming care.

6 Thank you for the opportunity to testify.

7 (Applause.)

8 A VOICE: Thank you for that comment. I'm 9 going to refer for further comment to Dr. Van.

10 VANMOLE, VANMO, VENMO?

11 DR. V: I would encourage everybody just to 12 read the Gaplins report, and particularly the 13 attachment to it. A great deal of attention has 14 been put in there into evaluating the science. And 15 some of the studies that have been brought up, both 16 pro and con, are involved -- they're specifically
17 the flaws that are in so many of these studies.
18 Specifically --

19 A VOICE: Hold on.

20 A VOICE: (Inaudible) while Dr. Vanmo speaks.

21 DR. V: Yeah, and by the way, I like the idea
22 that everybody lets everybody speak. So it kinds
23 of bothers me when I'm hearing speakers shout it
24 down because they're saying something you don't 25 like. How we treat other people with whom we

1 disagree is a reflection of our own character, not
2 theirs. So, please, let -- due decorum.

3 First of all, the Endocrine Society's 2017
4 guidelines are guidelines, just that. And it
5 states specifically page 3895 that they do not
6 guarantee an outcome and they do not establish a
7 standard of care. It's in black and white there.

8 I would refer you also, as is mentioned in the 9 Gaplins report, the histories in the United 10 Kingdom, Sweden, Finland, France, four nations that 11 were leading this from quite some time, they did
12 national-level reviews involving scientific 13 organizations, divisions of governments, medical 14 professionals. And mind you, these are nations
15 that were leading it. And after review, they all 16 came to the same conclusion, this should not be 17 going on in minors at all under 16, and only 18 between 16 and 18 under tightly-regulated studies,
19 the kind of which we really don't see happening.

20 And they also came to the conclusion that 21 strong psychological support is what's needed when 22 we talk about evaluating kids for this. We have 23 four decades of literature showing the overwhelming
24 probability of mental health problems, adverse
25 childhood events, neuropsychological problems like

1 autism spectrum disorder, and other things that
2 need to be addressed. And, in fact, also for these 3 nations, somebody strongly demonstrating
4 psychologic instability -- quite specifically, you
5 say you're suicidal -- blocks you from the 6 transition pathway. They insist that those things
7 be taken care of first because transition simply 8 won't fix them. The underlying problems of a 9 transgender youth become the underlying problems of 10 an adult who identifies as transgender. That's 11 what is going on here.

12 So, again, I'd refer you to the report and 13 some of the other letter, complaints, that I've 14 seen come in in the past 24 hours from the AAP, as 15 well as from the Endocrine Society, what they're 16 complaining about is actually addressed here,
17 including some of the studies they bring up, and 18 there too, it's a very well-researched document.
19 The State of Florida put a lot of effort into this.

20 You're free to disagree, but please make sure
21 you've read it and understand it before you do.

22 A VOICE: Just to be a little bit more
23 specific with respect to the report, I'd refer you
24 to Dr. Rigner (inaudible) Peterson's report, which 25 is Attachment C to the Gapkins report, and also a

1 doctor named Paul Hruz, H-r-u-z. Title of his
2 publication is, "Deficiencies in Scientific
3 Evidence for Medical Management of Gender
4 Dysphoria." He did not provide an expert report
5 for purposes of this report, but he is published in 6 medically reviewed literature, and I would
7 encourage you to read that as well.

8 Thank you.

9 (Applause.)

10 A VOICE: January Littlejohn.

11 MS. LITTLEJOHN: My name is January
12 Littlejohn. I am a mother of three children and a 13 licensed mental health counselor.

14 In the spring of 2020, our 13-year-old
15 daughter told us that she was experiencing distress
16 over her sex and that she didn't feel like a girl.
17 She had expressed no previous signs of gender 18 confusion, and three of her friends at school had 19 recently started identifying as transgender.

20 As we tried to understand our own observations
21 and seek professional help, we discovered that her 22 middle school had socially transitioned her without 23 our knowledge or consent. Her mental health
24 spiraled. We worked with a psychologist to help
25 our daughter explore and resolve co-occurring

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 issues, including low self-esteem and anxiety. We
2 also gave her more one-on-one time, in-person
3 activities away from trans influences, limited her
4 Internet use, and declined to affirm her
5 newly-chosen name and pronouns. We set appropriate
6 boundaries and allowed her to choose her hair style
7 and clothing, but denied harmful requests such as 8 breast binders, puberty blockers, cross-sex
9 hormones, and surgeries.

10 It was clear from our conversations that our 11 daughter was uncomfortable with her developing body
12 and had an intense fear of being sexualized. She 13 was filled with self-loathing and was in true
14 emotional pain, but had been led by peers and 15 influencers to believe that gender was the source
16 of her pain.

17 What she really needed was for us to help her
18 make sense of her confusion and remind her that 19 hormones and surgeries could never change her sex
20 or resolve her issues.

21 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

22 MS. LITTLEJOHN: I shudder to think what could 23 have happened if we had affirmed her false identity
24 and consented to medical treatment as opposed to 25 what we did, which was to lovingly affirm her as

1 she is: Beautifully unique and irreplaceable and 2 undeniably female.

3 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

4 MS. LITTLEJOHN: Our daughter has desisted and 5 is on a path to self-love, but, unfortunately,
6 gender-dysphoric children are being encouraged
7 through activism and peer pressure to disassociate
8 from their bodies and to believe their body parts
9 can be simply removed --

10 A VOICE: Time. Please finish your comment.

11 MS. LITTLEJOHN: -- modified, or replaced.

12 The irreversible consequences of medically
13 transitioning, including loss of sexual and 14 reproductive function, cannot be fully understood
15 by children or teens who lack the necessary
16 maturity or experience. These children need love
17 and therapy, not hormones or surgery.

18 Thank you.

19 (Applause.)

20 A VOICE: Next up, Kendra Paris.

21 MS. PARIS: Hi there, my name is Kendra Paris.
22 I still suffer from being an attorney. I'm a
23 mental health attorney, and I wanted to follow up
24 on the comment about the lack of peer-reviewed
25 standards of care, because as an attorney, the lack

1 of peer-reviewed standards of care mean that a lot
2 of people who are harmed or experience bad outcomes
3 from these surgeries or other interventions have no
4 ability to sue, and I find that problematic as an
5 attorney. They've had decades to create
6 peer-reviewed standards of care, and they have not.
7 And I suspect some people don't want those 8 standards of care because it would open them up to 9 lawsuits for bad outcomes, which is not happening
10 right now and it really frustrates me.

11 You all are so brave. I'm so proud of you for 12 coming and telling your stories.

13 We just don't know, and I want to talk about a 14 particularized thing that we don't know yet. When 15 you put a female on testosterone, within about five 16 years, she's going to have to have a hysterectomy,
17 though you passed most recent standards of care,
18 recommend hormone -- cross-sex hormone therapy for 19 females at 14. So we're talking about a potential
20 hysterectomy before she turns 20. We have known
21 for a very long time that hysterectomies correlated 22 with negative mental health outcomes and cognitive 23 decline. And we know that the earlier a
24 hysterectomy is performed, the worse mental health
25 and cognitive decline is. Essentially, the earlier

1 you do the hysterectomy, the earlier the onset of 2 dementia.

3 And so what I am very concerned about is in, I
4 don't know, 10, 20, 30 years, we're going to have
5 an absolute wave of young females, 40, 50 years
6 old, with early-onset cognitive decline --

7 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

8 MS. PARIS: -- or dementia in our assisted 9 living facilities.

10 And in surveys and anecdotal experience is 11 starting to indicate that some individuals who are 12 trans and have dementia forget that they're trans.
13 In a state like Florida, we have substituted
14 judgment.

15 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

16 MS. PARIS: So if they don't have written 17 documentation allowing for their medical proxy to 18 allow for detransition, they might be cut off. And 19 I really worry that we have not considered all of 20 the implications of this.

21 So I appreciate the rulemaking and I thank 22 you --

23 A VOICE: Time.

24 MS. PARIS: -- for your time. Thank you.

25 (Applause.)

1 A VOICE: Nathan (inaudible).

2 MR. BRUMER: My name is Nathan Brumer. I am
3 Florida's LGBTQ consumer advocate as appointed by 4 Commissioner of Agriculture Nikki Fried. One of 5 FDACS' many critical roles here in the state
6 includes serving as Florida's consumer protection
7 agency.

8 On behalf of health care consumers, I provide 9 the following comments in opposition to the 10 proposed changes to Rule 59G-1.050: As a state
11 agency, FDACS encourages all consumers to remain
12 aware, vigilant, and act when necessary, but to do
13 so, we know consumers must be provided with 14 accurate information, education, choice, safety,
15 representation, and redress.

16 Documented, well-researched standards of care
17 have been established, are based on a wide range of 18 evidence, and conclude gender-affirming medical 19 care is medically necessary and safe and effective.
20 In other words, gender-affirming care is the 21 standard of care, and the proposed rule as it
22 stands would deny health care consumers in the 23 state of Florida access to the standard of care.

24 State agencies must serve and advocate for all 25 Floridians. We should not deny any Floridian the

1 ability to thrive. We serve the public good and we
2 must defend the rights of every Floridian,
3 including transgender Floridians, and this includes
4 the right to nondiscriminatory health care
5 coverage. We must work to increase access to 6 health care, not lessen it or remove it all
7 together.

8 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

9 MR. BRUMER: On a personal note, Florida is my 10 home state. I am one of thousands, tens of 11 thousands of transgender Floridians here in our 12 state who have had the privilege to have access to 13 gender-affirming health care --

14 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

15 MR. BRUMER -- for decades who are happy and 16 successful and thriving. I'm an attorney, I'm an 17 advocate, and I work for and very hard and I'm 18 proud to serve the State of Florida. We are part
19 of the fabric of this nation --

20 A VOICE: Time. Please wrap up your comment.

21 MR. BRUMER -- and of this great state, and we 22 deserve the rights and benefits afforded to all.

23 (Applause.)

24 A VOICE: Nathan Bremmer.

25 MR. NEWELL: Hi, I'm Nathan Newell. I think

1 we got the Nathans mixed up. Here (inaudible) for
2 support. Tell you a little bit, I have a son, I
3 have four children. My son, 15, is -- doing
4 everything we can to keep him straight. He doesn't
5 make good decisions. One of the things lately, you
6 know those little things on the side of the road
7 that flashes and tells you your speed? Well, we 8 had one of those near our house. So he decides to 9 take his dirt bike in pitch black and with his 10 friends out there and go 80 miles per hour down the 11 road. We know this because of the ring. He was 12 bragging to his friends, so we watched the ring and 13 saw that.

14 Then a couple days ago, he was upset with us
15 and said he was leaving. So we said, "Where are 16 you going to go, Hunter?" He goes, "I'm going to 17 St. Teresa, I got friends down there." "How are 18 you going to get there, Hunter?" "I'm going to 19 ride my bike." I said, "It's going to take you
20 forever," and he goes, "It's going to take me four 21 hours."

22 So, anyways, this 15-year-old, he's not making
23 good decisions. And to sit here and to even think 24 that these kids can make a decision on what they 25 want that's going to be with them for the rest of

1 life is child abuse. These doctors are despicable.
2 They need to have their license taken away. They 3 are a disgrace to the human race. It's just 4 despicable to think that these people are taking
5 care of us and taking care of our children, and I
6 appreciate what y'all are doing.

7 (Applause.)

8 A VOICE: We'd ask that you please be
9 respectful to the other speakers.

10 A VOICE: Thank you for your comments. We 11 respect your comment, we respect everybody's 12 comments, including the doctors that you
13 referenced.

14 A VOICE: Nathan Brumer.

15 Dotty McPherson.

16 MS. MCPHERSON: Hi there, I'm Dotty McPherson.
17 I'm speaking as the District 2 representative for 18 the Florida Federation of Republican Women.

19 The age of majority is 18, but even at 18,
20 children don't have the maturity to handle certain 21 responsibilities given them, like driving, alcohol.
22 Even older adults don't.

23 Your agency's safety net programs include
24 programs for abused and neglected children, but not 25 gender decisions. Please prevent funding the

1 destruction of children's genitalia and hormonal
2 balance.

3 Please consider unintended consequences of,
4 No. 1, is taxpayer money that will need to be used
5 for lawsuits by those whose lives are ruined from 6 surgeries that got -- that they got while they were 7 immature or too young to understand, also by 8 parents whose parental rights were denied to 9 protect their children's future.

10 I grew up in a low-income neighborhood on the 11 low-income side of town. When I got to junior high
12 school, I saw how rich kids were, and a lot of them
13 were just real brainiacs, and I felt so inadequate.
14 I had a terrible inferiority complex, but I got 15 over it. I graduated with honors from FSU. I had 16 a good job and made a good life for myself and my 17 four children. Life isn't fair. We've got to stop
18 giving in to the poor, pitiful me syndrome. People 19 need to get their brains right and --

20 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

21 MS. MCPHERSON: -- get straight. Government
22 has no business funding these things. Our elected
23 governor has authority to make this rule, which 24 should be upheld. Please support our governor's
25 rule. Thank you.

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 (Applause.)

2 A VOICE: I'm going to get this first name
3 wrong, but I think it's Marjorie Caulkins.

4 MS. CAULKINS: Hello, my name is (inaudible)
5 Caulkins and I am from Milton, Florida, and I came 6 in support of the ban of Medicaid funding for 7 transgender surgeries and treatments.

8 I believe that Floridians do not need our 9 taxpayers' money to be spent in this funding of 10 surgeries that are both unnecessarily and 11 tremendously harmful.

12 As a mother of two, I believe there is a war
13 on our children and we need to stand on the right
14 side of this war and protect our children, support
15 our Governor DeSantis. We are blessed with our 16 governor, and I think we should be on the right
17 side and support this rule and ban Medicaid funding
18 for transgender surgeries.

19 Thank you so much, and thank you for your 20 service.

21 (Applause.)

22 A VOICE: James Caulkins.

23 MR. CAULKINS: Hi. I'm James Caulkins from 24 Milton, Florida, and I just want to say we really 25 need this rule passed to support Rule 59G-1.050 to

FOR THE RECORD REPORTING, INC. 850.222.5491

1 ban Medicaid funding for transgender surgery and
2 treatment.

3 We are in a battle in this country, and I'd
4 like to thank all the people who showed up today,
5 because your voice matters. Our state -- the 6 people have spoken. They elected the greatest 7 governor in the United States, Ron DeSantis. They 8 put Republicans in office in this state to stand
9 for what's right, and this rule change is what's 10 right.

11 We don't need this stuff, this evil, this 12 Medicaid funding for transgender surgery. We don't 13 need this in our state of Florida. We need to lead
14 in Florida, we need to lead the other states in 15 Florida against this evil transgender surgeries.

16 So please pass this rule. Thank you all so 17 much for your public service and God bless the 18 state of Florida. Thank you.

19 (Applause.)

20 A VOICE: Tuana Aman.

21 MS. AMAN: Thank you for the opportunity for 22 us to be here. I am in support of the ban to the 23 Medicaid funding for transgender surgeries and 24 treatments. And let me say that years ago, I was 25 told that I needed to go on hormone therapy, and I

1 had one doctor tell me that it was the right thing
2 to do, but as I did more and more surg- -- more and
3 more study and research, I saw the risks involved
4 to hormonal therapy. And when someone tries to 5 tell you there isn't any risk to these kinds of 6 procedures and these kinds of things that are 7 happening to young people, to young kids -- I mean,
8 I'm an adult who's fully developed, right, as a
9 human being now, right, and they say 25 generally,
10 look at these kids and their development, the 11 process.

12 And what I think is even more sad is that 13 they're born like the young girl with a certain
14 amount of eggs that will be released every month
15 from the time she starts puberty, and here we're 16 trying to prevent those natural things from 17 occurring and expect it not to have any problems.

18 I was watching Bill Mayer, which he's not a 19 favorite of conservatives, right? And he came out
20 a couple of weeks ago and was slammed by the LGBT
21 community because he said, "Isn't it
22 interesting" -- and this is him, right -- "Isn't it
23 interesting that if you look at Los Angeles and New 24 York and Miami and all these different hubs, that's 25 where this transgender service -- these surgeries

1 are going on, the focus," and he got slammed. They 2 said they wanted him off the air, and, I mean, he
3 had -- they had a campaign against him --

4 A VOICE: Thirty seconds.

5 MS. AMAN: -- because it was focused on the 6 fact that he was just saying, "Isn't there
7 something ironic about the fact that you look at 8 the rest of the country and these things aren't 9 going on, and then you look at these hubs where 10 social engineering is happening and where people
11 are being influenced that I" --

12 A VOICE: Fifteen seconds.

13 MS. AMAN: -- "can't go out into the media and 14 say anything against transgender, because what will 15 happen? I will be criticized and condemned." It
16 isn't fair. I think it's right to be here and have 17 the opportunity to give our voices, but I believe 18 that the government should not be involved in 19 supporting any --

20 A VOICE: Time. Please wrap up your comment.

21 MS. AMAN: -- kind of procedure for these
22 young kids. Thank you. Amen.

23 (Applause.)

24 A VOICE: Jason, do you have a follow up?

25 A VOICE: Just very quickly. We appreciate

1 your comments, just like we appreciate the comments
2 of everyone in this room and all the people that
3 have made comments on-line and otherwise.

4 I just wanted to make sure -- clear, just so
5 we're crystal-clear about the purpose of this rule
6 is that we're not talking about a ban of treatment
7 for gender dysphoria. We're talking about not
8 covering through reimbursement in the Florida
9 Medicaid program for the services that are 10 enumerated in the rule itself.

11 I also want to make clear that there are other
12 comprehensive coverage of services for gender
13 dysphoria currently in the Florida Medicaid
14 program, and I just want to read a couple of those:
15 "Community-based health services provided by an 16 array of provider types; psychiatric services
17 provided by a physician or other qualified health
18 care practitioner in office settings, clinics, and 19 hospitals; emergency services and inpatient
20 services in hospital settings; behavioral health
21 services provided in schools and by school
22 districts."

23 So I just wanted to make sure that everyone
24 was crystal-clear about the purpose of this rule.
25 I very much appreciate your comment and the

1 comments of everybody else.

2 A VOICE: Thank you, everyone, for your
3 participation in this hearing. We will accept
4 written material or comments until 5:00 p.m. on 5 Monday, July 11, 2022. Comments may be submitted
6 by e-mail to

8 That being our time, this hearing is now
9 closed. Thank you.

DeSantis targets trans health care in Florida universities

The request asks for a breakdown of how many people were prescribed puberty blockers, hormones or hormone antagonists, or underwent a medical procedure.

By ANDREW ATTERBURY

01/18/2023 06:07 PM EST

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The DeSantis administration is requesting a trove of information on individuals who receive gender-affirming treatments at Florida universities, furthering its practice of questioning or scaling back treatment for transgender people.

In a blanket request to 12 state universities, top officials with Republican Gov. Ron DeSantis are seeking data on the number of individuals who have been diagnosed with gender dysphoria or received treatment in campus clinics across Florida. It's unclear what exactly DeSantis intends to do with the information, but his administration says it involves "governing institutional resources and protecting the public interest."

"Our office has learned that several state universities provide services to persons suffering from gender dysphoria. On behalf of the Governor, I hereby request that you respond to the enclosed inquiries related to such services," wrote Chris Spencer, director of the Office of Policy and Budget for DeSantis, in a Jan. 11 memo to schools that was released Wednesday.

The request from DeSantis poses a list of questions for universities, such as asking them to provide the number of students or individuals who received gender-affirming treatment, including surgical procedures, spanning the last five years and where the treatment was sought. It also asks how many of those cases were "first-time" visits for treatment or were referred to other facilities.

The DeSantis administration also wants to know how many students were diagnosed with gender identity disorders under a medical classification. Additionally, the request asks for a breakdown of how many people were prescribed puberty blockers, hormones or hormone antagonists, or underwent a medical procedure.

Gender dysphoria refers to the feelings of discomfort or distress some transgender people experience when their bodies don't align with their gender. The American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Medical Association support gender-affirming care for adults and adolescents.

DeSantis in the past has made several statewide decisions on gender-affirming care, such as passing rules restricting children from receiving treatments despite medical associations supporting care. Florida under DeSantis also banned health care providers from billing Medicaid for gender-affirming medical treatments.

Equality Florida, an LGBTQ advocacy group, called the request by DeSantis "incredibly disturbing."

"This is another example of DeSantis using his office to attempt to intimidate colleges and universities into becoming less inclusive of their students for his political gain," Brandon Wolf with Equality Florida said in a statement. "Those institutions should continue providing affirming services for all students despite the governor's attempts to intimidate them."

This move by DeSantis is similar to his administration's request earlier this month for data from colleges regarding spending on diversity, equity and inclusion programs. With his budget request set to be released sometime in February, these actions could play a significant role in shaping state funding in Florida's upcoming legislative session as state conservatives continue to rail against "wokeness" and "indoctrination" in schools.

The data is due to the DeSantis administration by Feb. 10.

Subject: BREAKING: Students in Florida won't have to report their menstrual history to be allowed to play sports

*Fighting for gender justice in the courts, in public policy, and in our society.
Justice for her. Justice for all.*

NATIONAL WOMEN'S LAW CENTER

National Women's Law Center

Dear Lauren,

Florida student athletes will NOT be required to submit their menstrual history in order to play school sports.

We asked you to submit messages to the Florida High School Athletics Association (FHSAA) Board of Directors demanding they not implement this harmful and dangerous policy. Because you acted so quickly, we delivered more than 5,000 messages in less than 48 hours to the FHSAA Board of Directors, which held an emergency vote on the policy on Thursday.

Thank you for taking action against Florida's gross attempt to force the collection of student menstrual data. But the fight's not over yet.

Even though the FHSAA Board decided against requiring students to submit their menstrual history, they quietly moved from asking about a student's sex to specifying that students must attest their "sex assigned at birth." The Board couldn't be more clear: at the root of the proposed requirement was an attempt to monitor trans students and violate their bodily autonomy.

So much is still at stake: we need to stay outraged and protect trans, nonbinary, and intersex students who just want to play sports alongside their peers without bullying and exclusion.

This work would not be possible without our state partners fighting against these violations. Please consider supporting Progress Florida Education Institute, which organized on the ground against the FHSAA's harmful policy proposal and following Equality Florida for more ways to support LGBTQI+ youth.

Even though Florida students will not be required to report their menstrual history, any attack on trans and nonbinary students is an attack on gender justice. We'll never stop fighting for the rights of women, girls, and LGBTQI+ individuals.

Thank you for joining us in this fight.

In solidarity,

B. Workload

Despite the Region's continued inability to fully staff our office as indicated above, our workload and output continues to increase as does the complexity and significance of that work in the current political environment.

The region currently has 617 open cases in house. As of today, our average investigator case load is 88. Each year we continue to face a significantly higher number of case receipts with no commensurate staffing or budget increases. Instead, we have seen our staffing numbers go down with no present ability to hire new staff to fill those vacancies. Our current regional workload includes a mix of 162 civil rights cases, 330 HIP cases, and 125 breach cases:

Our current workload of 617 open cases has increased steadily despite declining numbers in our investigator staffing, currently at 7. Toward the beginning of this year, in late January, we had 572 open cases divided among 8 investigators. In the fall of last year, in September, we had 537 open cases among 9 investigators. Looking at cases closed at those same data points, our biweekly closures have increased from 64, to 69, to 104 at present. Our Region is proud of this accomplishment and our ability to do more with less, but this pace is unsustainable for our staff members.

Our work has continued to become more complex, as well as more politically significant, which adds to the pressures that everyone is feeling. OCR continues to receive more and more large breach reports for investigation, particularly reports regarding ransomware incidents, which require highly technical and complex investigations that are very time consuming. In addition, MAR currently has a wide range of publicly significant cases including in the areas of race and national origin discrimination, gender identity, and Olmstead, many of which will result in statewide high impact settlement outcomes in the Region. All the while, we continue to press forward with investigating more HIPAA right of access cases than ever before under the Right of Access Initiative. While this work is very important and meaningful, it is time consuming, complicated, and increasingly difficult to do without commensurate staffing in the regions. As an example, our region's high impact/enforcement portfolio currently consists of the following cases that we are actively working up, which does not include the cases that we currently have in monitoring:

- 25 Civil Rights cases
- 8 Security Rule/Breach cases
- 8 Right of Access Initiative cases
- 2 Privacy Rule cases

To put it simply, our staff is drowning with no apparent relief in sight and with the prospect of losing two more of our investigators by the end of the month. The regions are at a breaking point and the current workload, coupled with the anticipated increases in workload that the regions will likely be asked to take on are not sustainable at current staffing levels.

Re: Pacific Region – Workload Summary

As requested, the following is a summary of our current workload and the process we use to send documents for review/approval to OCR Headquarters (HQ).

Current Workload

We have 1450 active cases in the Pacific Region as of July 18, 2022:

- At the beginning of this calendar year we had 146 open breach report cases. We have since received 57 new breach reports. We have closed 64 breach report cases this calendar year. We are currently investigating 139 active breach report cases.
- At the beginning of this calendar year we had 1,347 active complaints. We have since received 2,205 new complaints this calendar year, which is more than any other region has received. We have closed 2,270 complaint investigations this year. Therefore, we are currently investigating 1,282 complaints.
- The region is also actively investigating 12 compliance reviews.
- The Pacific Region has completed 22 outreach events and still has 17 additional scheduled outreach events that have yet to take place.
- We are actively working on a total of 20 high impact Civil Rights and Health Information Privacy (HIP) matters and we are actively monitoring 9 high impact cases that have already settled with a Voluntary Resolution Agreement and Corrective Action Plan.

Current Workload

The RM Regional Investigators/EOSs carry an average caseload of 75 civil rights and HIPAA cases, as well as 500+ breaches. In 2020, Denver assisted the Mid-West Region by taking 250 older civil rights/HIPAA complaints and 30 breaches; in 2021 the Region took another 40 breaches – in an effort to ensure that Denver’s investigative staff caseloads were more in line with the average [larger] Investigator caseloads nationally. Denver hasn’t assisted the Mid-West Region in 2022, because it had to re-distribute over 110+ of its own cases when it terminated an investigator earlier this year, and also because a high-performing investigator is currently on leave for 5 months.

Working with HQ

The Region sends all HIP high impact enforcement related packages/documents to Emily Crabbe, Acting Senior Advisor for HIP Compliance and Enforcement. We also contact Emily for HIP-related case processing inquiries, requests for assistance, or to discuss unique or novel HIP issues.

Carla Carter, Associate Deputy Director, and/or Pam Barren, Director, are the Region’s contact for all high impact enforcement related packages/documents, and Carta serves as my contact for civil rights inquiries/requests for assistance.

Eastern & Caribbean Region

Memorandum

To: Melanie Fontes Rainer, Acting OCR Director

Cc: Shayla Moulton, Acting Deputy Director of Operations and Resources Division
Lauren Jee, Acting Chief of Staff
Michael Huggins, Senior Advisor

From: Linda C. Colón, Regional Manager

Subject: Eastern & Caribbean Region (E&C) Concerns

Date: July 19, 2022

One of the most pressing concerns in the E&C Region is employee morale and burn-out. While the E&C Region has continued to be productive and developed several high impact cases, both staff personal issues and organizational challenges have affected the Region and its ability to effectively manage its work. The caseload-of both complaints and breaches-with little relief has impacted the workforce in engagement and output. Staff have identified and worked up high impact cases which, for various reasons, once submitted to HQ, were not acted upon or reviewed. Once they were, many of the cases "aged out" and the hard work that went into working up an enforcement case and obtaining relief was lost. For other cases, additional data requests were required and questions about issues that were thought to already have been decided needed to be addressed. The push for high impact cases and then the stopping and starting has been extremely frustrating to staff. It has also hindered effective case processing and negatively impacted staffs' ability to work on other cases. The sense of needing to close cases has diminished some staffs' sense of purpose and mission. Despite this and to their credit, E&C regional staff continue to focus on the individuals who file the complaints with us, their allegations and ways that they can be resolved expeditiously. More creative ways of sharing the successes, even the small ones, and acknowledging regional work would be significant in demonstrating support for our staff.

The Region is constantly challenged with finding the right balance-or any balance-addressing the backlog of cases while maintaining quality and customer service and identifying high impacts cases to address equity and privacy issues. Changes in processes without regional leadership input and lack of communication about these processes and priorities have also challenged the Region. While priorities will always shift and the regional offices' have always adapted, providing more information and guidance and allowing for regional input and discussion would assist in adjusting to the changing priorities. Further, where changes have been recommended (notably, the detailed recommendations of a Case Processing Efficiencies Workgroup), they have, at times, been ignored or declined. The most recent change in leadership brings with it concerns by staff about the impact of this change on the regional offices. In a time when some of their colleagues have been notified of stop work orders and, concern about the sustainability of their jobs and ability to accomplish the mission has weighed on them.

Aside from the workload, regional staff face numerous challenges during case processing. One particular challenge is the lack of cooperation by covered entities during OCR's investigations. This may be a result of a lack of consistent and prompt enforcement action or strong messaging.

Another cause may be the decision to assign complaints irrespective of geographic area. While this decision may have been made to distribute complaints more equitably (based on size of regional investigative staff), there are significant challenges in working cases outside of our geographic region-regional staff have not developed relationships with the covered entities and we sometimes find ourselves addressing differences in regional case processing. This can hinder effective case processing.

SUBJECT: INFORMATION MEMO – Florida Proposed Rule 59G-1.050

1. Background

In June 2022, the Florida Agency for Health Care Administration proposed amendments to Florida Administrative Code Rule 59G-1.050, the General Medicaid Policy. 48 Fla. Admin. Reg. 2461–62 (June 17, 2022). The proposed rule states that certain gender-affirming procedures are not covered under Florida Medicare. Id.

This memorandum will first detail the content and timeline of the proposed rule, as well as the report used to justify promulgation. It will then explore the current status of the proposed rule and developments since its original publication. It will also note the work of Florida organizations on this rule, before turning to next steps on the proposed rule.

a. Timeline and Contents

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration proposed an amendment to the Florida General Medicaid Policy in June 2022. The proposed amendment adds the following text:

(7) Gender Dysphoria

(a) Florida Medicaid does not cover the following services for the treatment of gender dysphoria:

1. Puberty blockers;
2. Hormones and hormone antagonists;
3. Sex reassignment surgeries; and
4. Any other procedures that alter primary or secondary sexual characteristics.

(b) For the purpose of determining medical necessity, including Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis, and Treatment (EPSDT), the services listed in subparagraph (7)(a) do not meet the definition of medical necessity in accordance with Rule 59G-1.010, F.A.C.

48 Fla. Admin. Reg. 2461–62 (June 17, 2022). As rulemaking authority for promulgating this amendment, the agency cites Florida Statute § 409.919 and § 409.961, which some commenters have challenged as being insufficient for this proposal. See infra Appendix. Sections 409.919 and 409.961 both include the same language surrounding agency rulemaking. Both state that the agency “shall adopt any rules necessary to comply with or administer” Medicaid “and all rules necessary to comply with federal requirements.” Fla. Stat. § 409.919 (2021); Fla. Stat. § 409.961

(2021).

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration held a hearing on this proposed rule on July 8, 2022. Written comments were due to the agency on July 11, 2022, and they reportedly received approximately 1,200 total public comments. Forrest Saunders, Agency for Health Care Administration Set to Decide on Medicaid Coverage of Gender Dysphoria Therapies, WPTV (July 11, 2022). No further developments have yet ensued on the rule.

b. Florida Medicaid Report

In order for services to be covered under Florida Medicaid, they must be “medically necessary.” Agency for Health Care Admin., Florida Medicaid: Definitions Policy 7 (2017). Part of this definition includes being “consistent with generally accepted professional medical standards” and not being “experimental or investigational.” Id.

Shortly before the proposed rule was published, the Division of Florida Medicaid issued a report (“Florida Medicaid Report”) concluding that gender-affirming care is not medically necessary because it is not “consistent with generally accepted professional medical standards” and it is “experimental or investigational.” See Div. of Fla. Medicaid, Florida Medicaid: Generally Accepted Professional Medical Standards Determination on the Treatment of Gender Dysphoria (June 2022). In making this conclusion, the report opened the door for the Medicaid exclusion. The Florida Medicaid Report incorporates literature reviews on the etiology of gender dysphoria, desistance of gender dysphoria and puberty suppression, cross-sex hormones as a treatment for gender dysphoria, sex reassignment surgery, and the quality of available evidence and bioethical questions. Id. at 1. It also explores coverage policies domestically and in western Europe, and includes several attachments, including articles in support. Id. at 1–2.

The Florida Medicaid Report claims that “[a]vailable medical literature provides insufficient evidence that sex reassignment through medical intervention is a safe and effective treatment for gender dysphoria” and that studies focusing on the benefits “are either low or very low quality and rely on unreliable methods.” Id. at 2. It claims that current evidence around gender-affirming care shows that it “cause[s] irreversible physical changes and side effects that can affect long-term health.” Id. From the literature reviews conducted, the report states that “Florida Medicaid has determined that the research supporting sex reassignment treatment is insufficient to demonstrate efficacy and safety.” Id. at 3.

Numerous critiques have been levied against the Florida Medicaid Report, both in public comments as described infra Part 2 and in external documents. Most comprehensively, faculty members from Yale and other universities¹ drafted a report reviewing the Florida Medicaid Report (“Critical Review”). See Meredith McNamara et al., (July 8, 2022). The Critical Review states that the Florida Medicaid Report “purports to be a review of the scientific and medical evidence but is, in fact, fundamentally unscientific” as it “makes false statements and contains glaring errors regarding science, statistical methods, and medicine.” Id. at 2. The Critical Review is structured in five parts. It argues that “medical care for gender dysphoria is supported by a robust scientific consensus, meets generally accepted professional medical standards, and is neither experimental nor investigational”; that the Florida Medicaid Report is “a flawed analysis that ignores the scientific evidence and relies instead on pseudo-science” including experts who have been disqualified in court; that the Florida Medicaid Report “makes unfounded criticisms of robust and well-regarded clinical research and . . . cites sources with little or no scientific merit”; that the Florida Medicaid Report’s “linchpin” is an analysis which is “extremely narrow in scope, inexpert, and so flawed it merits no scientific weight at all”; and that the Florida Medicaid Report “erroneously dismisses solid studies as ‘low quality,’” which if followed regularly would mean that widely-used medications and common medical procedures would also have to be denied coverage. Id. at 3.

The Agency for Health Care Administration responded to the Critical Review, stating that it is “another example of the left-wing academia propaganda machine arrogantly demanding you follow their words and not the clear evidence-based science sitting right in front of you” and that it is a “hodgepodge of baseless claims” without authority or credibility. Dara Kam, Expert Report Condemns Florida’s Plan to Ban Medicaid Coverage for Transgender Care, Palm Coast Observer (July 17, 2022).

2. Current Status

a. July 8, 2022 Hearing

The Florida Agency for Health Care Administration held a lively public hearing on July 8, 2022 on the proposed rule. The hearing consisted mostly of public comments, a comprehensive summary of which is attached in the Appendix. The full hearing can be viewed online. 7/8/22 Agency for Health Care Administration Hearing on General Medicaid Policy Rule, Fla. Channel (July 8, 2022).

The hearing included a “panel of experts” consisting of Dr. Andre Van Mol, Dr. Quentin Van Meter, and Dr. Miriam Grossman. Dr. Van Meter has been found by a court unqualified to be an expert on the subject of gender-affirming care. See Stephen Caruso, A Texas Judge Ruled This Doctor was Not an Expert. A Pennsylvania Republican Invited Him to Testify on Trans Health Care, Penn. Capital-Star (Sept. 15, 2020). He is also the president of the American College of Pediatricians, an advocacy group whose primary focus is to advocate for conservative policies in medicine, which has been categorized by the Southern Poverty Law Center as a hate group. See American College of Pediatricians, Southern Poverty L. Ctr. (last visited July 22, 2022). Dr. Van Mol is also a member. Andre Van Mol, Pub. Discourse (last visited July 22, 2022). The panelists spoke at several times during the hearing, primarily to point the audience towards the Florida Medicaid Report. See Appendix.

Over the two-hour hearing period, fifty public commenters spoke. Forty-two of those commenters supported the proposed rule and eight opposed it. Of the forty-two in support, two formerly identified as transgender but have since detransitioned, eight were representatives of the Christian Family Coalition, and at least ten mentioned God or the Bible as part of their rationale. Many supporters also raised concerns that children and teenagers are not mature or knowledgeable enough to choose these procedures, or that they are being unduly influenced by their peers and may later regret transitioning. Notably, the proposed rule would apply to gender-affirming care for individuals of all ages, not only youth. 48 Fla. Admin. Reg. 2461–62 (June 17, 2022). Several supporters also cited the Florida Medicaid Report as being well-researched and providing a strong basis for the rule; some opponents of the rule noted criticisms of the report including those raised by the Critical Review.

b. Florida Organizations and Individuals

The university faculty who wrote the Critical Review also wrote a significant public comment on the proposed rule. See Letter from Anne L. Alstott et al. to Simone Marstiller & Tom Wallace re Rule No. 59G-1.050: General Medicaid Policy (July 8, 2022). The letter highlights similar concerns, noting that the “complete absence of scientific foundation for the Proposed Rule renders it an arbitrary and capricious use of rulemaking power” and that it “cannot [be] characterize[d] . . . as a valid interpretation of the existing Florida regulations on generally accepted professional medical standards, because the [Florida Medicaid] Report fails to satisfy Florida’s own regulatory requirements for scientific review.” Id. at 2. It reiterates concerns about the Florida Medicaid Report, including the cited experts’ bias and lack of expertise, errors about scientific research and medical regulation, and lack of scientific weight. Id. passim, 20.

Disability Rights Florida submitted a comment also opposing the proposed rule. See Letter from Peter P. Sleasman to Simone Marstiller re Proposed Amendments to Rule 59G-1.050. The letter focuses primarily on how this proposed rule “will cause unnecessary and disproportionate harm to individuals with disabilities living in Florida,” especially those who are low-income. Id. at 1. It notes that transgender individuals “are more than twice as likely as the general population to live in poverty,” and transgender individuals with disabilities are four times as likely. Id. at 2. Disability Rights Florida goes on to raise concerns about the agency’s “apparent failure to take even minimal steps to ensure that the rulemaking workshop . . . is accessible to the very people with disabilities it will directly impact,” citing to the lack of accommodations, contact information for seeking accommodations, and response regarding livestreaming. Id. at 3.

As did the Endocrine Society. See Letter from Ursula Kaiser to Agency for Health Care Administration re 59G-1.050: General Medicaid Policy (July 8, 2022). They note that their guidelines, “while not standards of care that clinicians are legally bound to follow, . . . provide a framework for best practices, and deviations must be justified.” Id. at 1–2. They expound on how their guidelines were developed—using a “robust and rigorous process that adheres to the highest standards of trustworthiness and transparency” and with a “systematic review of the evidence that supports [clinical] questions”—in contrast to the Florida Medicaid Report, which “did not include endocrinologists with expertise in transgender medicine,” “makes sweeping statements against gender affirming medical care that are not supported by evidence or references provided,” and “does not acknowledge the data showing harm reduction and improvements in behavioral health issues” that result from gender affirming care. Id. at 2–3. The letter goes on to state that this proposed rule would cause irreparable harm to transgender youth, including putting their lives at risk. Id. at 6.

Equality Florida advocated against the rule as well. Equality Florida, Press Release, Equality Florida Decries Proposed Rule to Eliminate Medicaid Coverage for Gender Affirming Care (June 17, 2022). They note that this will affect approximately 9,000 transgender Floridians insured with Medicaid, and that “major medical and mental health associations recognize the critical importance of gender affirming care.” Id.

The Florida Coalition for Trans Liberation has also put together a short policy brief around the proposed rule. See Fla. Coal. for Trans Liberation, Stop Rule 59G-1.050 (2022). They note that this proposed rule contravenes all major medical advice, pushes a political agenda, and can be life-threatening. Id.

Florida Policy Institute also submitted a comment. See Letter from Anne Swerlick to Thomas Wallace re Proposed Rule 59G-1.050, Florida Administrative Code (July 7, 2022). They note that the proposed rule would “bar transgender patients from accessing essential care and reverse current Medicaid policies which have been in effect for years. Id. at 1. They also point out that this is counter to established standards of care, inconsistent with antidiscrimination laws, and exacerbates the challenges that transgender individuals already face. Id. It closes by noting that this rule seems to be “weaponiz[ing] [the Medicare program] as a tool for promoting a particular political agenda.” Id.

While the majority of public comments during the July 8 hearing were in support of the rule, few comments posted online seem to be, and Florida Medicaid has not made all of the comments publicly available. Christian Family Coalition, who was also heavily represented at the July 8 hearing, did make a public statement, stating that this rule was “important and necessary” to protect Floridians, “especially minors, from harmful transgender surgeries, hormone blockers, and other unnatural therapies.” CFC Florida to Testify in Support of DeSantis Administration Rule Banning Medicaid Funding for Transgender Surgeries and Puberty Blockers, Best Things Fla. (July 8, 2022).

3. Next Steps

Several nonprofit groups in Florida are prepared to push back against the proposed rule. Lambda Legal, the National Health Law Program, the Florida Health Justice Project, and Southern Legal Counsel issued a statement criticizing the Florida Medicaid Report and stating that they “stand ready to defend the rights of transgender people in Florida.” LGBTQ Groups to Fight Florida Over Medicaid Ban for Trans Treatments, CBS Miami (June 6, 2022).

One potential avenue for doing so may be seeking an administrative determination. Florida law says that any person “substantially affected by a . . . proposed rule may seek an administrative determination of the invalidity of the rule on the ground that the rule is an invalid exercise of delegated legislative authority. Fla. Stat. § 120.56 (2022). If a complaint is properly filed, the state must assign an administrative law judge (ALJ) to conduct a hearing within thirty days. Id. at (1)(c). The ALJ may declare the proposed rule wholly or partially invalid, and the rule then may not be adopted unless the judgment is reversed on appeal. Id. at (2)(b).

Appendix: Summary from July 8, 2022 Hearing

This appendix will detail the public comments made at the July 8 hearing regarding the proposed changes to 59G-1.050. There is no readily available transcript of the proceedings, so please note that names below may be missing or misspelled. Each speaker was met with audience applause at the end of their remarks, but any audience reactions during remarks are noted below.

The meeting opened with introductions of the panelists and representatives and a brief summary of the rule before opening the floor for public comments. Public commenters were asked to state their name and organization and to limit comments to two minutes, focusing only on the proposed rule language. The agency also noted that comments could be submitted via email.

The first speaker was Chloe Cole, a 17-year-old detransitioner from California. Cole began medical transition at the age of 13. In retrospect, she states that she was not becoming a man, but was just “fleeing from the uncomfortable feeling of being [a] wom[a]n.” Chloe states that she “really didn’t understand all of the ramifications of any of the medical decisions that [she] was making” when she chose to undergo a double mastectomy at the age of 15. She lamented that she will never be able to breastfeed, has blood clots in her urine, cannot fully empty her bladder, and does not know if she can ever give birth.²

The next speaker was Sophia Galvin, also a detransitioner. She states that she had a history of mental illness, including self-harm and suicidal ideation, and that her desire to transition was “all in an effort to escape the fear of being a woman in this society.” Galvin stated that she had no support when she chose to detransition; her doctor told her to stop taking hormones but she did not see a mental health counselor. She said that “this is not good for children” and she “was harmed by this, and it should not be covered under Medicaid.”

Next, the mother of a transgender boy spoke. She said that a physician gave her son testosterone at the age of 16 without her consent or knowledge, and that Medicaid covered her son’s double mastectomy, hysterectomy, and vaginoplasty. She states that her son had private insurance but it was bypassed. She said that it is “impossible to change one’s biological sex” and that doctors should not be affirming the “lie that biological sex is changeable.” She characterized these lies as “child abuse,” at which point the crowd began to applaud, and said that “amputating the healthy body parts of a child whose brain has not reached full decision-making maturity is simply criminal.” This led to more applause. She further characterized gender-affirming care as a “medical experiment.”

The next speaker, Jeanette Cooper, spoke on behalf of Partners for Ethical Care. Cooper stated that “we need to make space in the public sphere for ethical therapists by removing the medical treatment option” and characterized gender identity affirmation as a “poisoned bandage on the ² Several news sources also reported on Chloe and her testimony. See, e.g., Tyler O’Neil, California Ex-Trans Teen Backs Florida Ban on Medicaid Funds for Transgender Medical Interventions, Fox News (July 10, 2022), <https://www.foxnews.com/health/california-ex-trans-teen-backs-florida-ban-medicaid-funds-transgender-medical-interventions>. In one article, she urged individuals to “wait until you are a fully developed adult” prior to transitioning. Id. Notably, the Florida proposed rule is not only a prohibition on gender-affirming procedures for minors, but prohibits Medicaid funding for any gender-affirming procedures regardless of age.

DELIBERATIVE

skin of children causing permanent psychological and physical harm.” The audience applauded when Cooper said “everyone knows what a woman is, but some people are afraid to say it.” Cooper went on to state that “the state has no business using taxpayer funding to turn children into permanent medical patients” and “assisting doctors in selling disabilities to vulnerable suffering children.” She further said that gender-affirming care is “not real healthcare” and that the state should instead fund “legitimate care” that addresses trans children’s “actual needs.” She likened the satisfaction children get from gender-affirming care to “a street drug that needs to be injected every day.” Cooper closed by stating that the medical is “failing these families” and that her organization supports the proposed rule.

Donna Lambert, on behalf of Concerned Parents, also supported the rule. She said that “the healthcare professionals are presenting many [parents] with a false and painful choice: accept what we know will permanently harm our children, or lose them to suicide.” She stated that “there is no data to prove that medically transitioning minors prevents suicide” and that parents lose their children down this “dangerous medical path permanently harming their healthy bodies with off-label drugs and experimental surgeries.” Lambert said that transgender children “become angry and hostile and resentful; they begin lashing out at anyone who will not agree with their newfound identity.” She described this as a “destructive social phenomenon” which “cuts parents out of the equation.”

A Christian pastor spoke next, stating that the Bible teaches that “God makes people made and female” and to try and transition people “is a sin” and “should be a criminal abuse of children, especially when they’re not at the age when they can properly process what they’re doing to themselves.” He said that the “one goal” of doctors who provide gender-affirming care is to “cut[] back on the birth rate.” He supported the proposed rule and said Florida should “go further” and classify aiding in this case as “extreme child abuse.”

Brandy Hendricks stated that gender-affirming procedures “have been shown to be extremely harmful, especially to minors.” She lamented that children are being allowed to “change their genders before they’ve even reached puberty or shortly after.” She said that pharmaceutical companies are advertising puberty blockers to children and unethically enriching themselves. She too characterized gender-affirming care as “child abuse” and as “experimental.”

Sabrina Hartsfield, an alumna of Florida State University and a born-again Christian, spoke against the rule. Hartsfield said that “without gender-affirming healthcare, transgender and gender nonconforming individuals will die.” She said that, “according to every major legitimate medical organization, gender-affirming care is the treatment for gender dysphoria.” She said gender affirming care is “medically necessary and lifesaving treatment” that should not be decided by big government overreach. An audience member shouted something indiscernible at this point in Hartsfield’s comment. Hartsfield went on to state that the proposed rule violates the Affordable Care Act and Medicaid Act’s nondiscrimination provisions. She noted that denying gender-affirming care can be life-threatening.

Simone Chris, an attorney and the director of the Transgender Rights Initiative at Southern Legal Council, “vehemently oppose[d]” the proposed rule. She stated that her organization’s experience working with hundreds of transgender individuals has evinced “the tremendous benefits that access to [gender-affirming] care provides.” Chris went on to state that “the insidiousness of this rule is exacerbated by the fact that it places in its crosshairs the individuals in our state who are already disproportionately likely” to face poverty, homelessness, poor health outcomes, and limited access to healthcare. She noted that every major medical association supports gender-affirming care, and that the proposed changes would “cause significant harm” by depriving individuals of “critical, lifesaving medical care.” Chris went on to state that the changes to the rule substitute the state’s judgment for that of the patient and their doctor, and that it is a “shameful waste of state resources.” She cited to nationwide litigation which has struck down similar laws as inconsistent with the guarantees provided by the Medicaid Act, the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, and the Affordable Care Act, and noted that Florida will undoubtedly face similar challenges, wasting taxpayer money.

The next speaker, Matthew Benson, a pediatrician and pediatric endocrinologist, agreed with the proposed changes, stating that the data used to support gender-affirming care “is not scientific.” He cited to a Swedish study from 2016 which found that the mortality rates of transgender individuals who received gender-affirming care were three times that of the general population, and that they attempted suicide five times more often than the general population. He also cited a similar study from Denmark wherein 10 percent of the study population died over the 20-year study period. Benson said we need better data and longer-term trials “to justify these kinds of very aggressive therapies.”

Karen Schoen, a former teacher, spoke on behalf of Florida Citizens Alliance. She opened by stating that she would like to know “why 0.03 percent of the population is dictating to 99.97 percent of the population” that their elective surgeries should be paid for. This was met with audience applause. Schoen said that “kids change their minds” and that they become fearful of maturing. She lamented that thirteen-year-olds cannot drive a car, have a drink, or shoot a gun, but are “in charge” when it comes to changing their gender. This was met with audience laughter and applause.

The next speaker was Bill Snyder. Snyder first told a story about “reality disease,” stating that “the further we move from reality, the further we move from morality” and that “the further we move from virtue, the more secular we become.” Secularity leads to less freedom, he said, and then urged Florida to approve the changes to the rule.

Avery Fork with Christian Family Coalition, a college counselor, also spoke in support of the proposed rule. She characterized gender-affirming procedures as “unnatural therapies being promoted by radical gender ideals and with no basis in science.” She said the proposed rule would prevent taxpayers from having to pay for “highly unethical and dangerous procedures.”

Richard Carlins also spoke in support of the rule. He said that our Constitution was founded on “biblical principles.” Carlins said children are being indoctrinated through commercials, Disney World, Coca-Cola commercials, and restaurants, and that gender-affirming procedures are a “horrendous evil.” He said that “God raises up nations and he brings down nations,” which was met with audience vocal support, and that this is a recent phenomenon. He said we’ve been “living in Judeo Christian principles” for 1500 years, and “it’s just recently that we’re throwing any mention of God [or] the Bible under the bus.”

DELIBERATIVE

Amber Hand with the Body of Christ grew up with two queer parents. She said she had been considering gender transition for most of her life, but that “we have to teach these kids right from wrong” and that it is wrong to teach children they can make these decisions. Hand said that she is glad she never transitioned because she recently realized she wanted children. She went on to quote the Bible and that it’s “not okay to change your identity.”

The next speaker, Ms. Hazen, also supported the rule. She said that children are being pressured at a young age to identify as transgender, and that much of the pressure comes from the internet. She cited a follow-up study of individuals who transitioned, which found that the suicide rate in those individuals was twenty times the general population. She said that this evinces the “deep regret” they face after “mutilating” their bodies. She said that children “don’t understand that they will never be able to procreate ever again” when we “mutilate these children’s bodies at an early age.”

Leonard Lord also spoke in favor of the proposed changes. He said that he was also uncomfortable in his body as a child but was able to get comfortable by becoming closer with God. The audience murmured in approval. He said that “either we’re playing games, or we really believe there’s a God and the Bible is true,” and that this “problem” happens because we don’t believe in God. Lord said that, with regard to mental health issues, “God’s spirit is the answer to what’s missing in their lives,” again leading to audience applause and cheers. He said that by taking God, the Bible, and prayer out of schools, we are removing ourselves of power, love, and a sound mind. The audience again applauded. He said the “devil is the author of confusion” (the audience cheered) and that “if you spend your life trying to figure out if you’re a man or a woman you’ll never know why you’re here” (again, audience applause).

The next speaker, Pam, also supported “stopping Medicaid from paying for children and teenagers to have such changes.” She said that children are “confused” and likened gender-affirming procedures to “paying for [children] to have furry animal body parts,” to which the audience cheered. She said she is thankful that Florida will “stop the madness” for “the sake of the children.”

Jon Harris Maurer, the public policy director for Equality Florida, spoke next against the proposed rule. Maurer said that the proposed changes are without scientific or legal basis and are “clearly discriminatory.” He cited to numerous experts and organizations who endorse gender-affirming care. Maurer also said that the agency “lacks the specific delegated rule-making authority to adopt the proposed rule” and that the statute cited “grants no authority” for the agency to usurp the role of healthcare providers. He said the rule is discriminatory and targets the transgender community, and that it would harm the 9,000 transgender Floridians on Medicaid. An audience member began to shout, and the audience began to speak over Maurer. He said that the proposed rule is politically calculated and urged them to reject the rule.

Anthony Verdugo spoke on behalf of the Christian Family Coalition as the Executive Director. Verdugo supported the rule. He said that “they call it gender-affirming care” but “they don’t care, and it’s not affirming.” He called Chloe Cole and Sophia Galvin “heroes,” and said that this is a “war on children and this is a crime against humanity.” Verdugo said that “groomers” are pressuring children to undergo gender-affirming procedures. He cites to the warning label on a package of hormones which states that emotional instability is a side effect. He said that the organizations Maurer listed “have been discredited” and cited to “more renowned” organizations who believe that “the suppression of normal puberty, the use of disease-causing cross sex hormones, and the surgical mutilation and sterilization of children” are “atrocities” and “not health care.”

The next speaker, a veteran and police officer, said that doctors, parents, teachers, and scientists have been wrong before, but that detransitioners are the “evidence” we need. He said we need to “stop being ignorant” and that churches are bigger than any organization and in support of the proposed change. The audience met this with cheers and applause throughout.

Michael Haller, a doctor and professor of medicine at the University of Florida, spoke on his own behalf. After establishing himself as an expert, he said that this proposed rule makes “numerous false claims, uses biased reviews of the literature, and relies on more so-called experts who actually lack actual expertise” in caring for transgender youth. He said that the state’s assertion that gender-affirming care is not safe or effective is “patently false” and that nearly every major medical organization supports this care. He says the state is “either unwilling or willfully chooses to ignore the totality of evidence for gender-affirming care.” He said that the state’s experts are unqualified. Haller noted that the proposal is “poorly-conceived,” likely to cause harm, and should be rejected.

At this point, a member of the panel, Dr. Van Meter, made a comment. He said that the Endocrine Society guidelines are not standards of care, but merely guidelines, drafted by “ideologues” from the World Professional Association for Transgender Health. He said that this group excluded “world renowned experts in the field” and did not include their input “on purpose.” He said that we “have to stop using the term ‘standards of care’ when there are absolutely no standards of care in this instance that have been addressed.”

Robert Youelis spoke next, lamenting that gender-affirming care was not on anyone’s radar even five years ago. He said that this is man “proclaim[ing] himself as God” and that there is only one truth. Youelis said we are “philosophically and morally” going down a slippery slope when we start considering gender-affirming care. He said that brains are not fully developed until the age of twenty-five, and children cannot make other decisions in life, so we should not be educating anyone about gender identities until they are in twelfth grade.

The next speaker, Keith Claw of Florida Citizens Alliance, spoke next. He said that children in public schools are “purposefully confused, desensitized, and even pressured into abnormal sexual behavior” and that “gender ideologues are coaching kids to be into this dysphoria.” He said that there is ongoing debate as to whether gender dysphoria is biological or psychological. He said that taxpayers should not have to pay for gender-affirming care.

Robert Roper spoke next, also in support of the rule. He said that it “serves to protect the children.” He said “gender confusion is the only disorder that comes with a false assertion that a child can be born in the wrong body” and that it is “impossible” to become the opposite gender. He went on to say that gender dysphoria is the only “disorder [where] the body is mangled to conform to the thoughts of the mind” and where “the child actually dictates his or her medical care . . . instead of the other way around.” He called this a “social media epidemic manufactured by social media influencers making a lot of money off the very vulnerable element of our society.” He likened gender-affirming procedures to giving drugs to a drug addict or alcohol to an alcoholic and cited to a Reddit post where 35,000 individuals expressed regret of transitioning.

Karl Charles of Lambda Legal spoke against the proposed rule. He said that this care is “essential and in some cases lifesaving,” “clinically effective,” “evidence based,” and “widely accepted.” Charles said that exclusions such as this one cause “serious immediate and irreparable harm” to those who already experience “well-documented and pervasive stigma” and barriers to healthcare. He said that he is particularly concerned by the agency’s characterization of this care as “experimental and ineffective,” and that this is contrary to available medical evidence and misrepresents studies. He notes that the so-called experts relied on have been discredited and do not treat transgender patients. He noted that no one on the panel was a transgender Medicaid recipient in Florida, and that singling out transgender Medicaid participants violates Equal Protection and ACA § 1557.

A panelist at this point referred everyone to the appendices to the Florida Medicaid Report, including Dr. Cantor’s reports cited to on page thirty-nine, which discusses each organization that has supported gender-affirming care.

Ed Wilson spoke in support of the proposed rule, saying that it would “protect children who are not mature enough to be comfortable in their own bodies” from “making mistakes that will destroy their lives.” He said that taxpayer money should “never be used to destroy innocent lives” and that gender-affirming care “never actually succeed[s]” but does cause harm. He characterized it as “mutilation” and an “atrocit[y]” to be banned, “not healthcare.”

Suzanne Zimmerman, a relative of a gender dysphoric youth, spoke next. She “pray[ed]” that the state “not make it easy” for this youth’s parents to be persuaded towards gender-affirming care. She pointed to the testimony of detransitioners to state that “God doesn’t make mistakes” (the audience said “amen”). She urged them to support the changes.

Jean Halloran also supports the changes. She said that Medicaid should not be supporting or paying for gender-affirming care. She likened gender-affirming care to cosmetic changes to make her look younger, receiving audience applause and laughter.

Ezra Stone, a clinical social worker, pointed to research that medical transition is safe and effective. They pointed to clients who have “expressed tremendous relief” and an increased sense of safety when they are able to access medical care. They said that “understanding and being seen as [one’s] true self creates a sense of belonging, which is a fundamental human need.” They pointed to the political climate in Florida as causing harm and anxiety to “transgender, nonbinary, questioning, and gender-diverse Floridians.” Their patients “worry about their access to medical care” and experience fear of violence daily, which supports the minority stress model that says that expecting harm and violence has a negative impact on mental health and well-being. They said that this proposed change will create an atmosphere of fear and take away medically necessary care.

DELIBERATIVE

Peggy Joseph shared the thoughts of Ryan T. Anderson, author of When Harry Became Sally. She cited to the Obama Administration's refusal to mandate coverage of gender-affirming surgeries under Medicaid, which said that there was "not enough evidence" to determine whether it improved health outcomes. She said that studies with positive outcomes were exploratory, without follow-up, which "could be pointing to suicide." She cited to the Swedish study regarding suicide rates, as well. She said the "minimal standard of care should be with a standard of normality" and that gender dysphoric thoughts are "misguided and cause harm."

A panelist again interjected to note that the report on pages 35–36 and 42–45 discusses the international consensus.

Jack Walton with the Christian Family Coalition is a pastor. He said he has counseled queer individuals for thirty-seven years. He believes that "gender dysphoria should be labeled as child abuse" and the doctors who prescribe gender-affirming care are "tear[ing] the child apart and call[ing] it health care." Walton says that gender-affirming care is "not science" and that any such procedures "should be labeled criminal." He said that "nearly 90 percent of those that escape from that life do it by the time they reach the end of puberty because they come back to their senses that they were created male and female by God." Walton expressed that suicide happens when a transgender person transitions but "still do[es]n't find the completion that they thought they felt." He said that many individuals transition because of child abuse they faced as children or because they were not accepted by others. He closed by saying there are "two genders, male and female; women bear children, women breastfeed, women have menstrual cycles, men do not." He said he "would not provide the anorexic with food and [he] would not say give money to do something that would harm a child."

Another member of the Christian Family Coalition, Jose, also supported the changes. He characterized gender-affirming care as "mutilation" and said that transgender individuals need "counseling" and should not be given a "destructive choice." He said that everyone will have to "stand before our living God and give account for where we stand on this and other issues." He thanked Chloe Cole and Sophia Galvin for their testimonies.

The panel then asked that members of the same organization be mindful of their time.

Bob Johnson, an attorney, spoke next. He thanked the agency for putting together the report, noting that it is "thorough," and said the "case is compelling." He strongly supports the rule change, and this is in large part due to the report making the case. He noted that the "FDA does not approve any medication as clinically indicated for gender dysphoria" and lamented the lack of randomized controlled trials and long-term data for puberty suppression medication.

Sandy Westad also spoke on behalf of Christian Family Coalition. She said that her heart is "breaking for what these kids are going through" and that "the parents need to stay in control." She said that kids "play house" and "pretend," but they "don't want to be or understand or even know what it is to change from one sex to another." She said, "children cannot make those kinds of decisions" and "cannot decide who they are."

Gayle Carlins also spoke from Christian Family Coalition. She said her beliefs are based on the

DELIBERATIVE

Bible, which is “the only truth that there is,” and which says that “God created male and female.” She went on to “bring science into it,” stating that females have two X chromosomes and males have an X and a Y chromosome, and that “it’s an impossibility to change from one to the other” “no matter what kind of mutilation or anything is done to a person.”

Dorothy Barron spoke next, also from Christian Family Coalition. She first thanked Florida’s “great governor,” eliciting audience cheers and applause, and thanked Chloe Cole and Sophia Galvin for not “going along with what you were trying to be brainwashed into” (also eliciting audience cheers and applause). She said “they’re definitely targeting our youngest,” and lamented that “we can’t seem to find baby formula anywhere but yet Medicaid can fund this nonsense.” Barron said it “has to be left up to the parents,” and that “whatever you choose to practice in the privacy of your own home is your business”; she is “not discriminating against any genders or whatever.” She said that it needs to be “taken out of the schools.” She said Michael Haller’s testimony was “shameful” and is “why we’re in this bloody mess right now,” to which the audience also cheered and applauded.

The panel reminded the public to be focused on the rule and respectful of other speakers.

Troy Peterson, the president of Warriors of Faith, supported Christian Family Coalition, and came from the Tampa Bay area. He said that he represents “thousands that stand in agreement” with the proposed change. He thanked the doctors for the report and said that “when [he] saw the evidence, [he] could clearly see that we need this rule.” He quoted from Genesis and said that God created male and female, and he is opposed to Michael Haller as well. He said that “if [he] had any authority in the medical field, [he] would have [Michael Haller’s] license revoked.” The audience whistled and verbally approved. He said that the most thorough follow-up of transgender individuals in Sweden said that “the suicide rate is twenty times that of the comparable peers” and that “50 percent of the gender identity confused children have thoughts of suicide.”

Janet Rath spoke next. She said that “fifty years ago, as parents, we were smarter than what’s going on today,” and that parents are being left out of their children’s lives. She said some of this is the fault of parents and some is the fault of teachers. She said her granddaughter, a teacher, has told her that “if she has a child that comes in and identifies as a cat, she must have a litterbox there and a bowl of water.” Rath said that our country is going “absolutely insane,” and the audience murmured in agreement. She said that Dr. Fauci is “nothing but a money-grabbing liar” and “we have been hoodwinked ever since.” Rath went on to say that “Chinese children in third grade are learning advanced calculus” but “our third graders are learning which bathroom to use.”

Gerald Lomer drove 3.5 hours to attend the hearing. He supported the proposed rule and “the best governor in the United States,” to which the audience cheered and applauded. He told “stories” of a girl who wanted to spend more time with her father and thought that being a boy was the best way to do so and a boy who wanted to spend more time with his mother and thought that being a girl was the best way to do so. He said that thirteen-year-olds cannot drive a car, drink a beer, or smoke a cigarette, but are able to take hormones and obtain surgeries for gender-affirming care. He characterized gender-affirming surgeries as “mutilating.”

DELIBERATIVE

A pastor from Florida spoke next on behalf of Protect Our Children Project, Duval County Charter House, and Christian Family Coalition. She supported the rule prohibiting funding for “unnatural therapies” and does not want taxpayers to subsidize transgender care. She said that “transgenderism is driven by unethical pharmaceutical companies enriching themselves with puberty blockers” and that this is child abuse. She cited to Swedish psychiatrist Dr. Christopher Gillberg, who has said that “pediatric transition is possibly one of the greatest scandals in medical history.”

Paul Aarons, a physician, spoke next. He said he has transgender patients and friends. He said that he opposes the proposed change, because it “conflicts with the preponderance of medical science and practice and would do irreparable harm” to transgender Floridians of all ages. He said that the American Academy of Pediatrics and its Florida chapter have directly refuted the agency’s report. Aarons said that, “contrary to an earlier comment, the Endocrine Society has stated, ‘medical intervention for transgender youth and adults, including puberty suppression hormone therapy, and medically indicated surgery, has been established as their standard of care. Federal and private insurers should cover such interventions as prescribed by a physician.’” He said gender dysphoria is “very real” and that people should meet and speak to transgender individuals, which will help them realize that denial of care “at any age would be inhumane and a violation of human rights.” He said that gender-affirming care is “generally accepted professional medical standards” and that this rule would put the health and lives of transgender people in danger. He said that “it feels like Medicaid is crossing into a political lane by seeking to preempt provider/patient/family decision-making.” He said that, if the agency still wants to address this topic, they should “at least convene an appropriate panel of experts including transgender community members to inform yourselves and the public about the overwhelming evidence against denying coverage for gender affirming care.”

A doctor on the panel then encouraged everyone to read the report and its attachments. He said that the report focuses on studies which have been brought up, and “specifically the flaws” in those studies. He also encouraged audience members not to interrupt when others are speaking. He went on to say that the Endocrine Society’s 2017 guidelines “are guidelines, just that,” and they “do not guarantee an outcome” and “do not establish a standard of care.” He also referred to international reviews which “all came to the same conclusion” that “this should not be going on in minors at all,” to which the audience applauded. He said that children need “strong psychological support” and that four decades of literature point to the “overwhelming probability of mental health problems after these childhood events” and “problems like autism spectrum disorder.” He said that in other nations, having “psychological instability . . . blocks you from the transition pathway” and that “those things be taken care of first because transition simply won’t fix them.” He said that the report is a “very well-researched document” and addresses a lot of the concerns raised in comment letters.

Another panelist then referred everyone to Attachment C of the report and Dr. Hruz’s Deficiencies in Scientific Evidence for Medical Management of Gender Dysphoria.

January Littlejohn, a mental health counselor, spoke next. Her child expressed that they were experiencing gender dysphoria in 2020, shortly after three of their friends had started identifying as transgender. She said that the middle school had “socially transitioned [her child] without their knowledge or consent”³ and that her child’s “mental health spiraled.” She said that she has worked with a psychologist to help address her child’s low self-esteem and anxiety, and has “given [her child] more one-on-one time, in-person activities away from trans influences, limited [her child’s] internet use, and declined to affirm [her child’s] newly-chosen name and pronouns.” She said that they set “appropriate boundaries” and allowed her child to choose hairstyle and clothing but “denied harmful requests such as breast binders, puberty blockers, cross-sex hormones, and surgeries.” She said it was “clear from [their] conversations” that her child was uncomfortable with their developing body and had “an intense fear of being sexualized.” Littlejohn said that her child was “filled with self-loathing and was in true emotional pain,” but “had been led by peers and influencers to believe that gender was the source of [their] pain.” She said that her child needed to be “remind[ed] that hormones and surgeries can never change [their] sex or resolve [their] issues.” She said that she “shudder[s] to think what could have happened if [they] had affirmed [her child’s] false identity and consented to medical treatment” as opposed to “lovingly affirm [her child] as [they are], beautifully unique and irreplaceable and undeniably female.” She said that her child has “desisted and is on a path to self-love” but unfortunately gender dysphoric children are “being encouraged to activism peer pressure to disassociate from their bodies and to believe their body parts can be simply removed, modified, or replaced.” Littlejohn said that “the irreversible consequences of medically transitioning, including loss of sexual and reproductive function, cannot be fully understood by children or teens who lack the necessary maturity or experience.”

Kendra Barris, a mental health attorney, spoke next. She first addressed the comment about the lack of peer-reviewed standards of care, saying that this lack means that “a lot of people who are harmed or experience bad outcomes from these surgeries or other interventions have no ability to sue.” She said that “they have had decades to create peer-reviewed standards of care and they have not,” and she suspects that some people do not want to standards because it would open them up to lawsuits, which is not currently happening. She went on to say that “when you put a female on testosterone, within about five years [they are] going to have to have a hysterectomy,” which for teens could mean a potential hysterectomy before the age of twenty. She said that “hysterectomy is correlated with negative mental health outcomes and cognitive decline” and that this is worse the earlier a hysterectomy is performed. She said that “essentially, the earlier you do the hysterectomy, the earlier the onset of dementia.” She is “very concerned about” how in a few decades “we’re going to have an absolute wave of young females, 40–50 years old, with early-onset cognitive decline” in assisted-living facilities. She said that “some people who are trans and have dementia forget that they’re trans” and if they don’t have written consent to continue their transition, they “might be cut off.” She worries that “we have not considered all of the implications of this.”

The next speaker was Nathan Bruemmer, Florida’s LGBTQ Consumer Advocate. He opposed the proposed rule “on behalf of healthcare consumers,” saying that consumers “must be provided with accurate information, education, choice, safety, representation, and regress.” He said that

³ Note that news organizations have reported that Ms. Littlejohn was aware of her child’s choice to change names and pronouns at school and told the school she would not stop them from doing so. She later filed a lawsuit against the school. See, e.g., Leyla Santiago, Fact Check: Emails Show One of Desantis’s Stories Backing the Rationale for So-Called ‘Don’t Say Gay’ Law Didn’t Happen as the Governor Says, CNN Politics (Apr. 6, 2022), <https://www.cnn.com/2022/04/06/politics/fact-check-desantis-dont-say-gay-family-narrative/index.html>.

DELIBERATIVE

“documented, well-researched standards of care have been established, are based on a wide range of evidence, and conclude that gender-affirming medical care is medically necessary and safe and effective.” In other words, “gender-affirming care is the standard of care.” Bruemmer said that the proposed rule would “deny health care consumers . . . access to the standard of care.” He said that agencies must defend the rights of all Floridians, including transgender Floridians, and that this includes the right to non-discriminatory healthcare coverage. He said we should work to increase access to healthcare, not lessen or remove it. Bruemmer said that he is “one of . . . tens of thousands of transgender Floridians” who have had access to gender-affirming care, and who are “happy, and successful, and thriving.” He said that transgender Floridians “deserve the rights and benefits afforded to all.”

The next speaker’s name was inaudible, but he also spoke in support of the proposed rule. He told examples of his fifteen-year-old son making bad decisions, including speeding on his dirt bike and wanting to leave home, as proof that “these kids can[’t] make a decision on what they want that’s going to be with them for the rest of life.” He said that the doctors who spoke previously “are despicable,” “need to have their licenses taken away,” and “are a disgrace to the human race.”

A panelist thanked him for his comment and said, “we respect everybody’s comments, including the doctors that you referenced.”

Dottie McPherson spoke next on behalf of the Florida Federation of Republican Women. She said that even at the age of eighteen “children don’t have the maturity to handle certain responsibilities given them” like driving and alcohol, and that “even older adults don’t.” She said that state programs include “programs for abused and neglected children, but not gender decisions.” She urged the panel to “prevent funding the destruction of children’s genitalia and hormonal balance.” McPherson urged the panel to consider unintended consequences, such as “taxpayer money that will need to be used for lawsuits by those whose lives were ruined from surgeries that they got while they were immature or too young to understand,” parents whose “parental rights were denied to protect their children’s future.” She said that “life isn’t fair” and we have to “stop giving in to the ‘poor pitiful me’ syndrome.” McPherson said that government “has no business funding these things.”

Maria Caulkins spoke next in support of the proposed rule. She said that taxpayer money should not be spent on funding surgeries that are “unnecessarily and tremendously harmful.” She said that there is “a war on our children” and that we need to “protect our children” and “support our governor” by being on the “right side” of this war.

James Caulkins also spoke in support of the rule, saying that we’re “in a battle in this country.” He said that the people of Florida “have spoken” by electing “the greatest governor in the United States,” to which the audience cheered and applauded. Caulkins said that we “don’t need this stuff, this evil, this Medicaid funding for transgender surgery” and that Florida should lead other states against “this evil.”

The final speaker, whose name was also inaudible, spoke in support of the proposed rule. She said that, years ago, she was told by a doctor that she needed to undergo hormone therapy, but she “saw the risks involved.” She said that hormone therapy is an attempt to “prevent . . . natural things from occurring,” such as menstruation, and we can’t expect it not to have any problems. She cited to Bill Maher, who pointed out that transgender procedures were only occurring in major cities where “social engineering is happening and where people are being influenced” but not in the rest of the country. She lamented that she can’t go to the media and say anything against transgender individuals because it will be “criticized and condemned” which “isn’t fair.” She said that “the government should not be involved in supporting any kind of procedure to these young kids.”

A panelist thanked everyone for their comments and then clarified the purpose of the rule. He said that it is not “a ban on treatment for gender dysphoria,” but rather lack of Medicaid coverage for services mentioned in the proposed rule. He also said that “there are other comprehensive coverage of services for gender dysphoria currently in the Florida Medicaid program” before reading some of those services (community-based services, psychiatric services, emergency services and inpatient services, and behavioral health services in schools).

Hi Dylan,

I hope your week is going well! Attached is a rough draft of the Florida Medicaid justification memo. It's not fully polished yet, because I had some questions (noted here in comments) that I was hoping you could answer before I finalize everything. Once some of this is clarified I should be able to get you a more solid version pretty quickly.

Please let me know if you'd rather hop on a call to talk through some of this, or if I should consult with Susie or someone else instead! I know you're busy 😊
